Rated The #1 Tasting Vodka In The World.

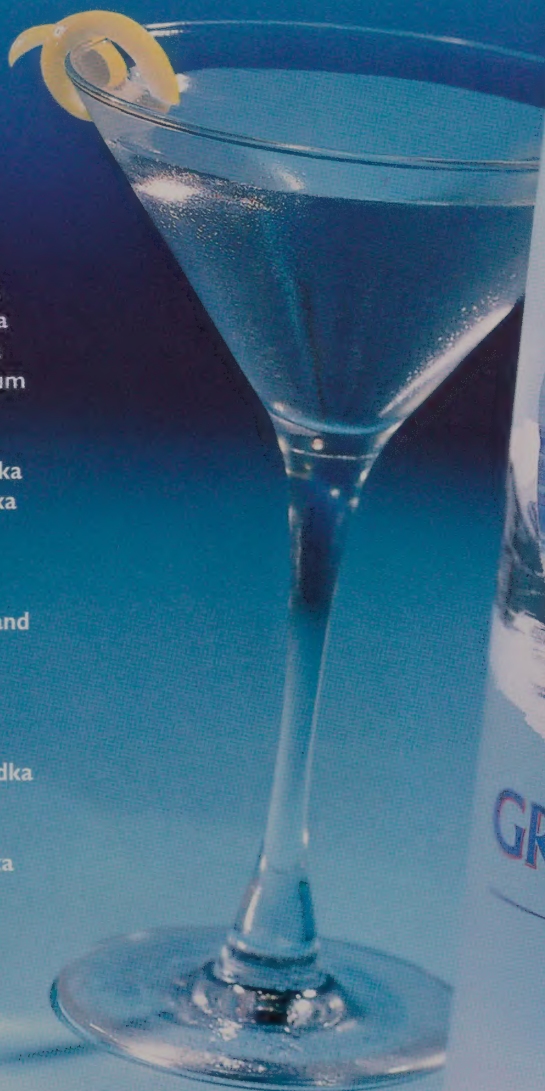

In 1998, the Beverage Testing Institute of Chicago conducted a blind taste test of more than 40 vodkas. They awarded points based on smoothness, nose, and most importantly, taste. Of all the vodkas, Grey Goose® Vodka emerged victorious, receiving 96 points out of a possible 100.

Founded in 1981, the Beverage Testing Institute conducts tests in a specially designed lab that minimizes external factors and maximizes panelists' concentration. The Institute selects judges based on their expertise, and its tasting and scoring procedures are widely praised as the best in the industry.

INTRODUCING TOWER III

50% SOLD

THE LAST OF THE BEST VIEWS ON FLORIDA'S BOCA COAST. NEW MODELS NOW OPEN.

Presenting Toscana's grand finale—the extraordinary Tower III—offering the grandest views, location, and lifestyle on the Boca Coast.

With Tower I and Tower II sold out and occupied, Tower III represents your very last and very best opportunity to live a lifestyle beyond compare.

Tower III residences—from the 2,935 total sq. ft. Arezzo to the 6,284 total sq. ft. Lucca—feature astonishing vistas of both Atlantic Ocean sunrises and Intracoastal Waterway sunsets.

The interiors are masterfully designed and magnificently appointed, from restricted access elevators opening into private Grand Rotunda foyers, to granite-clad kitchens and lavish marble baths.

Impeccable in-building amenities include a fitness center, billiard lounge, party and event room, card parlor, cigar and wine tasting room, business center, and an attentive staff. Outdoors, 17 lush acres feature the five-acre Grand Piazza with its trellised walkways, fountains, pool deck and tennis courts.

Steps away, on the beautiful beachfront, Toscana's Ocean Club offers friendship, relaxation and celebration. All at a premier Highland Beach location, convenient to Boca Raton's outstanding restaurants, shopping and cultural events.

From the $400,000s to $3 million. Toscana's sales office is located within Tower II, 3720 South Ocean Boulevard, Highland Beach.

Need a mortgage, but feeling limited by a uniform approach?

At The New York Mortgage Company, we deliver personalized service with one person in mind . . . you.

These days, it seems that most mortgage lenders all offer the same types of loans, giving you fewer options. As a direct lender, NYMC can be as versatile as you need us to be, providing hundreds of highly flexible loan products and innovative programs designed to accommodate your needs.

What's more, we make the entire loan process easier, quicker and more convenient by minimizing the red tape and bureaucratic headaches that are often associated with borrowing from a large bank. Among the many different kinds of loans you can choose from at NYMC are:

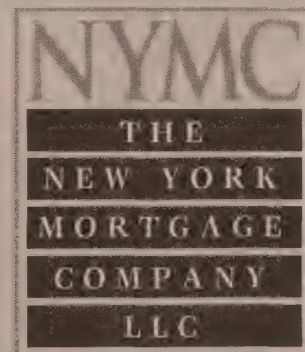

- Interest Only Loans
  - Bridge Loans
  - Refinance Loans
  - Jumbo Loans
  - Construction Loans
  - True No Doc Loans
- and a wide range of others.

We also offer the best rates around, with fast approvals.

Ask about our LIBOR Interest Only loan at 2.75%.

2.75% based on 3.35% APR. Rates subject to change without notice.

Contact NYMC today, and see why when it comes to your mortgage,

GIVE YOUR CHILD A HEALTHY SMILE

Many parents don't realize how early dental problems can occur, or just how important those "baby teeth" are!

Prolonged and frequent bottle or breast feeding can cause baby bottle tooth decay. Diets high in sugar from fruit roll-ups, sticky candies, juice and soda can also cause lots of cavities. Thumb and pacifier habits can cause malformations of the palate.

Children are not done losing their baby teeth until they are 12-13 years old! These teeth hold the spaces for permanent teeth, shape your child's face, and help with speech, eating and chewing.

Dr. Nancy Cosenza specializes in dentistry for children from infancy to their teenage years. At Hampton Pediatric Dental Associates, we know that not only children, but their teeth, are entirely different from adults. In fact, pediatric dentists require 2 years' additional training and education beyond dental school!

(There are only 5,000 pediatric dentists in the U.S. and we're the only pediatric dental practice in the Hamptons!)

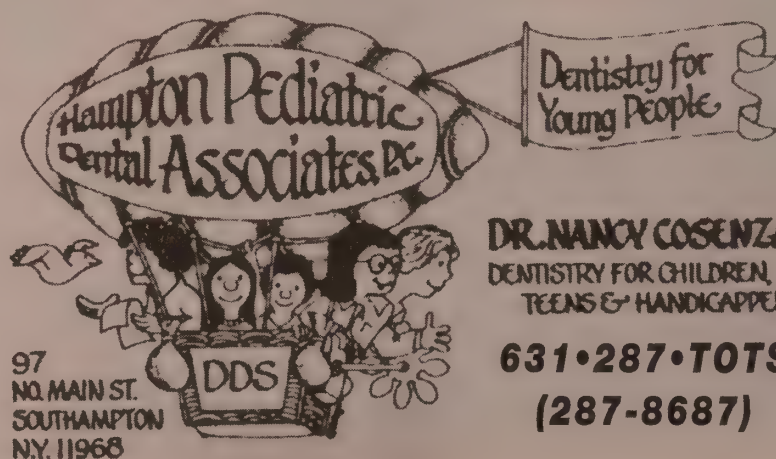

Our office is colorfully painted and cheerfully designed - a definite "kid-friendly" environment. Our staff is genuinely warm and cheerful too!

Call us at (631) 287-8687 if you have any questions or would like to arrange an appointment.

Remember that good dental habits and experiences started in childhood will last a lifetime! We know how to make kids leave the dentist's chair smiling -- and their parents, too!

A Best Buy From The Languedoc

The firm of Antonin Rodet has been one of Burgundy's world renowned sources for outstanding wines for over 20 years. Burgundy-lovers have long enjoyed the wines they produce from their estates in the Cote Chalonnaise, Cote de Beaune and Cote de Nuits. Their exceptional skill in vineyard growing, vinification and aging of Pinot Noir and Chardonnay led them to look for an adventure outside of Burgundy.

After a long and meticulous search they chose the foothills of the Pyrenees mountains in the Languedoc. Here they found all the assets needed to make great wine: rich, sloping land, good quality clay and limestone soil; and ideal climatic conditions due to the high altitude. Their goal is to produce the greatest Pinot Noir and Chardonnay outside of Burgundy. After sampling the wines below, we're sure you'll agree with their wise choice.

RODET CHARDONNAY 2000 Aged in oak barrels, this well crafted Chardonnay is sure to be a crowd pleaser. Golden in color, it has delicate aromas of fresh apricot, peach and pineapple fruit. It is soft and lush on the palate with beautifully balanced acidity. (4439)

RODET PINOT NOIR 2000 Ruby red in color with tinges of purple, this fresh, ripe and pleasantly fruity wine displays a delicate spicy touch. Look for cherry, strawberry and raspberry fruit that is well balanced by oak aging. (4441)

RODET SYRAH 2001 "Smoky and meaty. Lovely plum, leather and spice flavors are rich and deep, and linger on the long finish. Impressive for its concentration and length. An excellent value in French syrah." -Wine Spectator (4451)

Search the inventory of more than 3,000 wines by color, and country, style and vintage, appellation and price. A hunt for sauvignon blanc from New Zealand served up 17 bottles, including the 1999 Lofthouse Marlborough for $15.95. Use the pull-down menu to browse popular choices like Port, Madeira and Sherries (110 choices). The key-word function helps track down specific bottles or wines whose names you partially remember. Most listings come with a brief description, a picture of the label, a picture by the bottle or a picture of the wine in a glass. A rich menu of many more choices is available.

■ Ten million dollars' worth of inventory hints at the "mind-boggling" number of labels at this "upscale" East Side "institution" that's rated the Survey's No. 1 Wine Shop thanks to its "deepest selection" of "hard-to-find" bottles, including old Bordeaux and Burgundies; a "suave, informed" staff, "catalogs that are works of art" and a sophisticated, "civilized" atmosphere fuel its "great snob appeal", though truthfully there are plenty of inexpensive options too.

...over 4,000 ways.

East End Hospice offers pain and symptom control in a familiar and loving at-home environment. Serving the entire East End from Patchogue to Montauk and Ridge to Orient for the past 12 years, our team of skilled health professionals and hometown volunteers has cared for over 4,000 patients and families. We provide an individualized plan of care and comfort -- with short-term local hospitalization when needed -- under the direction of the patient's primary physician. We also offer bereavement counseling for families, and Hospice's Camp Good Grief, to meet the special needs of children who have experienced the loss of a loved one.

INTRODUCING AN EXCITING NEW WEBSITE THAT LETS YOU MONITOR AND CONTROL YOUR HOME FROM ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD

No matter how far from home, through ConnectedHearth.com, you can control your security system, your heat and AC, your indoor and outdoor lighting.

You can pan a camera throughout your house and gardens. You can even have a hot cup of espresso waiting for you when you arrive. All this, from a computer. Wherever you happen to be.

SIMPLE AS A MOUSE CLICK

Log on to our secure website, where an easy-to-use, elegant interface allows you to view and control your home. Invent some "Macros," custom-built to get your house just the way you want it, automatically. A "Homecoming" macro, for example, might turn on the front lights, set the thermostat to 71 degrees, get the hot water heater going, and fire up the jacuzzi...with one click of a mouse!

EMERGENCIES

ConnectedHearth.com will continually connect to your home, monitoring for emergency conditions such as unauthorized entry, fire, water leaks and low temperature. You will be immediately notified by email of an emergency.

EQUIPMENT

ConnectedHearth will install a complete home automation system. The equipment can be controlled both over the Internet and in the home. Many aspects of our system can even be controlled by telephone. The burglar and fire alarm equipment meets the highest industry standards and provides for central station monitoring.

OUR DEDICATION

Our business is made possible by technology, but is driven by our customer's needs. We are members of the Hamptons community and are dedicated to providing intelligent solutions to intelligent homeowners.

Isn't it good to know that whether you're in Manhattan or on vacation, your home is as well cared for and protected as if you were there?

Here Today, Gone Tomorrow? Cliffs Crumble, The Sea Washes In

By Dan Rattiner

Last Monday, with a great roar, part of the great cliff that overlooks the eastern end of downtown Montauk slid unceremoniously into the sea. The size of the chunk, about as big as a house, altered the coastline of that town by about fifteen feet. They'll have to redraw the maps. The East Hampton Town Supervisor, realizing that if anyone had been on the rocks at the bottom or standing on the cliff admiring the view would have been killed, declared a state of emergency, along the oceanfront from Montauk's downtown, all the way, out to the Montauk Lighthouse, and closed Shadmoor State Park to the public.

"Where there is one break like this, the experts tell me there can be more," he said.

Then, two days later, on Wednesday, another huge chunk of the cliff broke off from Montauk and thundered down to the rocks and the sea below. After this second incident, officials are warning all lighthouse visitors to stay away from the cliffs. Five beachfront houses on Surfside Drive lost their backyards. One of them, the home of John Ryan, was sitting so precariously on the cliff face thirty feet up, that and soggy became wobbly. On Monday and Wednesday they came tumbling down. There is a little less of Montauk than there was before.

Just a day after the second collapse at Montauk, an ad appeared in some local papers inviting people to a meeting at the main office of the Bridgehampton National Bank in Bridgehampton. The meeting is to take place at 5:30 p.m. on Thursday, July 3, at which time people who will be running this meeting, probably the attorneys for some beachfront property owners, will be looking for public comment about their plan to create a new village on eastern Long Island. It will have no stores and no downtown. It will consist, simply, of the police only let the owners in briefly to gather up whatever they could in a few minutes and get out. The house has been temporarily condemned.

into the Village of Dune Hampton.

The cause of all of this, according to the experts, was the enormous amount of rain we had in May and June. The cliffs became soggy all the oceanfront homes and oceanfront lots that exist between the East Hampton Town line and the Southampton Village line, a distance of seven miles. In some places it will be less than a few hundred yards wide and in other places, particularly along Sagg Pond, the

South O' the Highway (and the North too)

Two percent may not look large, but Steven Spielberg of East Hampton has realized over $1 billion from Universal Studios' theme parks in Orlando and Osaka from royalties. Since Mr. Spielberg could easily earn another $3 billion in the coming years, Jurassic Park, ET and Jaws are blockbusters on which thrill rides and dreams work.

Spike Lee, represented by Johnnie L. Cochran of East Hampton, has been ordered to post a higher than expected bond in the amount of $2.5 million to pay for Viacom's expenses if Mr. Lee loses his law suit against them. Mr. Lee hopes to prevent Viacom's TNT from becoming Spike TV.

Although she has not appeared on The Early Show on CBS for over a year, Martha Stewart has been out and about in the Hamptons, attending galas that support charitable causes. Marthataalks.com has received over 11 million visitors in recent weeks, with tens of thousands of letters writing in support of the domestic arts mogul.

John Steinbeck's words live on. The Sag Harbor resident's book, East of Eden, tapped by Oprah Winfrey's Book Club, had Penguin scrambling to reprint another 790,000 copies, following an initial printing of 600,000 of a new edition. The classic has sold 40,000 to 50,000 copies per year since 1952.

A 23 member Grand Jury will spend the next several months hearing evidence in the murder of Ted Ammon of East Hampton. Thus far no suspects have been named by authorities, although Mr. Ammon's ex wife, Generosa, and her husband, Daniel Pelosi, have not been ruled out.

Susan Lucci, who will sing with a full orchestra on July 4 at the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center's 5th Anniversary, highlighted Habitat for Humanity in All My Children. Ms. Lucci and AMC's cast helped to build a home in the Bronx and the project was integrated into the story line.

When a waitress at the new Jeff and Eddie's Restaurant in Sag Harbor slipped and fractured her knee, partner Jeff Resnick was so distraught that he fainted. That won't stop Billy Joel, who has a house in Sag Harbor, from eating there, though. He is dating, Kate Lee, a hostess at the eatery. They enjoyed dinner there the other night with Jimmy Buffet of North Haven, who owns the building. Jimmy Buffet's All for the Sea concert is scheduled for July 13 at Southampton College.

THINGS WE SHARE

Our Community. Our Commitment. Our Historic Lands.

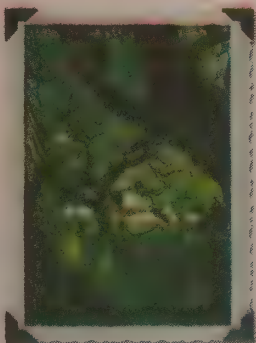

For ten thousand years, the Shinnecocks have lived on these lands. Year after year, our community changes, bringing us neighbors of many colors and cultures.

Throughout time the Shinnecock Nation has been committed to preserving our ancestral homeland and its natural environment. As our lands were taken we adapted our economy and our way of life. Still, we continued to preserve and protect our remaining lands while we struggled to become self-reliant.

The Shinnecocks now come to an important moment in our history. We are exploring the development of new economic opportunities that will bring true self-reliance to our nation for generations to come. These opportunities include an Indian gaming establishment built to preserve open space while benefiting the larger Hamptons community. Year-round jobs would be created for local residents. Income would fund local community programs. Property taxes for our neighbors could be reduced. And in keeping with our heritage the building would be at one with its environment and tastefully designed, totally unlike urban casinos.

THOUGHTS TO SHARE

The Shinnecock Nation has the right under the law to use our tribal lands as we see fit. However, we pride ourselves as good neighbors. It's been that way for over 400 years, and as always, we are sensitive to our neighbors and committed to doing what is best for our historic lands.

As we explore options to improve our quality of life, we invite your comments, your questions and your support.

Log on. Let's share our thoughts.

south end of which is included, it will be half a mile wide. It will include the 110,000-square foot home now under construction by industrialist Ira Rennert which, when finished, will be the largest private home in America. And it will include the vacant land where the home once stood of William Rudin that erosion washed into the sea five years ago.

The Indians who lived here when the white men came knew it was a bad idea to live down near the ocean. The ocean would come over the dunes every decade or two and flood the land. Pieces of cliffs would fall into the sea. There were probably oral legends among the Indians that explained these things in mystical terms at that time. Better to make your home farther back from the sea, and just visit the sea from time to time to gather shells for making wampum or to carve up the whales that get stranded on the shore. The Indians placed a high value on the tails of such creatures.

If the Indians of eastern Long Island knew the true story of the beachfront, which was that the sideways current of the ocean was constantly washing along the shore from east to west making the East End smaller and smaller and the west end larger and larger, the oceanfront residents who have built mansions along the shore today don't want to know about it.

These residents have, in the last six months, become alarmed at a new law being considered by the Town of Southampton which will make it far more difficult for oceanfront homeowners to buttress their homes against the inevitable. The new law, taking into consideration the fact that the beaches below the high water mark belong to the townspeople in common and everybody can walk upon them, that building on the ocean is an accident waiting to happen and that efforts made to save these buildings cannot be of a permanent nature, have proposed a law saying that hard structures — steel walls and stone jetties — will not be permitted. And furthermore if a structure falls into the sea, it cannot be replaced where it was, but will have to be replaced further back from the water than it was.

Simple, obvious rules, you might say. They have been interpreted as a call for alarm. And so oceanfront property owners have gotten together to consider seceding from the Town of Southampton, removing themselves from the jurisdiction of that town, and forming themselves into the Village of Dune Hampton. It will cost them more, but they will make their own laws. Furthermore, to a certain extent, it will allow them to become an exclusive enclave. For example, parking at the beach could be restricted to just oceanfront homeowners in many cases.

Over the years, there have been numerous attempts to create new villages on the East End. One of them, called North Hampton between Quogue and Riverhead, foundered in a sea of unpaid bills and had to be dismantled. Another, along Dune Road in the western end of Southampton Town, was created so the people of that community could, in an organized fashion, fight and get federal money to restore about two hundred oceanfront homes that had fallen into the sea because of some county incompetence involving the building of stone jetties and the stopping of the project in mid-construction years before.

We'll Be Coming Out East, Let's Get Together This Saturday Night

By Dan Rattiner

— Hi, Henry. You coming out this weekend? Martha and I were thinking we'd love to see you. Call me when you get this. Maybe dinner tomorrow night? That would be Saturday. We're thinking Nick & Toni's around 8 p.m. Let us know.

— Yup, David, we're driving out. Saturday night is not good for us. We're going to the Channing's. How about Sunday morning for brunch? We'll be home. Call us.

— Doesn't look good for this weekend anymore, Henry. Martha got stung by a bee at the Hopping's benefit yesterday afternoon. So we're going to lay low. But we'll be coming next weekend. Call us.

— Hi David, this is Henry, four p.m. Wednesday. Hope Martha is getting better, unstung, so to speak. Let's make a plan for the weekend. We're going out. Both Friday and Saturday look good. Want to play golf Saturday morning?

— Saturday morning is no good, Henry. We're running in the Shelter Island 10K. But it's over around eleven. We could play nine holes in the afternoon. If you can't do that, how about dinner

Saturday night at Basilico?

— You're on for Saturday night at Basilico. I've made a reservation for 8.

— Hello? Hello? This is Mr. David's house calling. Mr. Henry asked me to call you to say that he has house guests coming Saturday afternoon. If it's okay with you, he and his wife will bring them. So make the reservation for six. And he say he will pucker up the chick, whatever people.

— David, It's is Friday morning. I just heard your message. I think we have to beg off Saturday night. Priscilla McBee was my first wife's attorney. This is definitely not a good idea. But what about tonight? We could meet you at Savanna's at 8 either for dinner or a drink. The Witch McBee isn't coming until Saturday night, right?

— Hey Henry. Friday at 8 at Savanna's. We'll be there. I think we will stop to eat on our way out. There is a great steak house in Happaugue called Pace's. Just five minutes from the Expressway. You might want to try it sometime.

— Hi David. It's 7:45 Friday night. We're still on the LIE at Exit 52. The radio says a tractor trailer truck filled with aerosol spray can air fresheners turned over at Exit 58. The whole road smells like lavender the radio says. Cans popping all over the place. At this rate, we're going to try to get over to the Northern State. But we're definitely not going to make 8 at Savanna's. Sorry.

— Hi David. Call me. It is 10:30. We're still in that mean.

— Hi David. Saturday night at 8 a table for six. I'll make the reservation.

— Hi Henry. It's Thursday. I was talking with our upcoming house guests. His wife thinks she knows you. Priscilla McBee. An attorney. Name ring a bell? His name is Giancarlo. Interesting this traffic jam. You wouldn't believe it. We've had nothing to eat. I'll call you in the morning.

— This is David. It's Saturday morning. We waited for you at the bar. Just got this message. We forgive you. Call us when you wake up. I saw it all on television on News at 11. But I've had to go back to the city. Problem with a client. You know the routine.

— Hi David. This is Henry. I'm at work. Today is Tuesday. Give me a call. I've got a great story to tell you.

— This is David. We'll be out again next weekend. Going to the fundraiser at Villa Maria. Al Roker will be there. It's Saturday at 6 p.m. We could meet you there and have a drink after. Tell me a story.

— This is Henry. So we finally got out to the Hamptons at midnight and we're starving to death. We stop at this dive in Hampton Bays called the Boardy Barn. It's the only thing open. We're eating cheeseburgers, and a Rolling Stones song comes on and this girl gets up on her table and strips all her clothes off. She was terrific looking. But she stepped right in Martha's food. We left. Anyway, Saturday at 6 at Villa Maria. You're on.

— Hello. This message is for Henry and Alicia Reiser. This is David Granger's office. Mr. Granger has been called away to Los Angeles and will not be coming out to the Hamptons. He hopes to see you the following week.

— Hi David. Got your message. Have a nice time in LA. When are you coming back?

— Henry this is David. They're putting us up in a bungalow at the Beverly Hills Hotel. This is really nifty. I should be here until Tuesday. Have to straighten out a script. You understand. We'll be back in New York Tuesday afternoon, and we'll be coming out for the weekend. Will you be out that next weekend?

— This is Henry. We won't be out this weekend, but we'll be out the next. How about that weekend, twelve days from now. This is a Tuesday. Bobby Van's?

— Bobby Van's on the 17th, Henry. 7 p.m. I'll make the reservation.

— This is David. Martha and I are looking forward to seeing you two. This is the last weekend of the summer. Didn't it just fly by?

— Hi David, this is Henry. It's Thursday. One of the kids got his grades. He got 4 A's and a B. He was so happy he ran skipping down the school steps where we were waiting for him in the car and he slipped and went all the way down to the sidewalk. We're at Lenox Hill Hospital now. I don't know how long this is going to take and how it's going to come out. These were the best grades he ever got, and hey, he made the Dean's List.

— Hi David. This is an hour later. Well, he broke his ankle. This is Alicia. He was supposed to be in a play tonight. He's distraught. I think we ought to postpone our dinner plans tomorrow night. We'll have to stay with him here.

— Hi Henry. I was going to call you. We got an invitation to go to a dinner party at the Bakeman's Friday night. Jerry and Jessica Seinfeld are going to be there. And Martha really wants to go. Oh well. Listen. It was really nice seeing you this summer.

— Hello David. Another summer comes and goes. It's good to have friends like you. And it was so good to see you. Someone said you're staying out there another week or two? Well, you know, we can't. Kids and all. See you back in town.

It's Time For Some New Hamptons To Be Built In The Pine Barrens

By Dan Rattiner

If you look at a map of Long Island, you can see all these people, roads and traffic up by New York City, a less developed center of the island, and then all these people, roads and traffic on the East End. Why they come out here, of course, is because of "the Hamptons." Everybody wants to go to the Hamptons in the summertime.

I mention this obvious fact about all the woods and pine barrens in the center of Long Island because it just seems so unfair that all these people come zooming out in their cars — and they can't even see the pleasures of the center of the island because of the Expressway walls which block the view — and they get here and there are just people and cars and traffic jams everywhere in our quaint little New England villages.

This past spring, Riverhead Town approved two giant rock concerts on one of the abandoned runways of the old Grumman Aerospace Fighter Testing facility. People think the Grumman facility is in the East End town of Riverhead because Riverhead administers the site, but it isn't. It is in Brookhaven Town, which really is part of the pine barrens and the wooded center of the island. It is just that years ago, Grumman, when they left, gave it to Riverhead for a dollar. 4,000 acres. One dollar.

That there would be two weekend long rock concerts on the Grumman site during the summer — one in June and one in August — seemed on the one hand a bad idea what with maybe 70,000 people heading out east and then stopping in the middle of the island, but on the other hand a good idea what with maybe 70,000 its permits and got cancelled, and the second of the rock concerts decided not to proceed because of what happened to the first rock concert, so it is back to square one. Grumman gave the site to Riverhead ten years ago. With all the meetings, proposals, architectural plans and votes, there still hasn't been anything going on there except for a few seagulls landing and taking off now and again in all that time.

This past week, a Manhattan group of investors proposed building a theme park on the site. Some of the things mentioned include water rides, go carts and a log flume. There'd also be a hotel.

I think the center of the island does not need another theme park of roller coaster rides and ferris wheels. What it does need is some upscale old New England Villages with the name Hamptons in them. WE need a few more old New England Villages with the name Hamptons in them. The Hamptons, as it is now, is simply not big enough to accommodate everybody who wants to visit here. We start in the east with East Hampton and sprawl out about sixty miles to the west and Westhampton Beach and then people heading out east and then stopping in the middle of the island. Those two weekends, out of our fifteen weekend long season, would give us a well-needed reprieve from the crowds.

Well, the first of the rock concerts failed to get

we kind of peter out into the Pine Barrens.

A whole series of "Hamptons" should be built in the Pine Barrens and they should continue all the way to the west to Patchogue (which could change its name to something with the word Hampton in it). And we should start this process with the former Grumman site, all 4,000 acres of it, where, I believe we could fit at least four new Hamptons.

Here's how I see it. These four new Hamptons should each have a Main Street and a secondary shopping street. They should be separate and distinct. And they should be separated one from the other by a few hundred yards of farmland. People would park their cars in a big parking lot the size of twenty shopping center parking lots, and they would walk to all these new Hamptons and enjoy them. The walk through the two hundred yards of farmland would take just about as long as a drive three or four miles through some farmland, which is what we have out here today.

CELEBRITY HAMPTON.

This would be a Hampton where all the movie stars and famous writers and artists live. There would be large waterfront homes (around an artificial pond called Georgika Pond) and in the windows of them would be wax figures made by Madame Toussaud. There would be Peter Jennings, Christie Brinkley, Jack Nicholson, Edward Albee and so forth and so on. With Disney animation, they could be made to move. The main street would be all upscale shops. And there'd be a movie theater where every night there would be a movie premiere and a big gala.

SHARE HAMPTON

A village entirely made up of share houses. There'd be ten to a bedroom, a swimming pool, dueling sound systems, and a downtown entirely of singles bars. There would be mandatory pillow fights every evening and mandatory strolls — two by two and hand in hand — through the woods.

WASP HAMPTONS

Great shingled houses with wrap around porches and vast mowed lawns and gardens would house the Upper Crust of the Hamptons. There would be coming out parties, cotillions, fundraisers and tennis clubs, golf clubs and beach clubs and you would be allowed in, but only as a guest, and people would look at you funny. The downtown would be filled with upscale designer clothing stores, tea rooms and if you went in, the merchants would look at you funny.

HAMPTON HARBOR

Lots of small houses with large yachts on their lawns on trailers. Fishing gear, lobster traps and buoys everywhere. Downtown there would be a bar where every afternoon a fisherman would sit on a stool and tell a tall tale. There'd be lots of restaurants that sold fish and chips or lobster rolls. People would clomp around town in fishing waders. And in the center of town there would be a big scaffolding with a replica of a shark hanging by a rope attached to his tail. You could go over and put your head in its mouth and get your picture taken.

Well, those are the four Hamptons that could fit in the abandoned Grumman site. We should appoint the Riverhead Town Board to decide on the themes of any new Hamptons that would be built, and we would expect dozens of them, in the rest of the Pine Barrens. •

The Award Follows This Man Wherever He Goes Around The World

By Dan Rattiner

Recently, friends of ours were in the Zuva Gallery in Scottsdale, Arizona, to see the stone sculptures by one of the greatest living artists of Zimbabwe, Dominic Benhura. Benhura's work is to be found all over the world. He has installations in Holland, Germany, Sweden, England and more than a dozen countries in Africa. He has permanent installations at the Singapore Botanical Gardens, at Atlanta's Hartsdale Airport and at the Chapungu Sculpture Park in Australia. Recently he presented a sculpture to Nelson Mandela for his permanent charitable collection.

In any case, the friends of mine were looking at some of the playful sculptures Benhura has made of children and animals that make the stone seem feather light — "he is in a class of his own," one critic recently wrote — when the owner of the Zuva Gallery became quite reverent.

"He received a Best of the Best Award from Dan's Papers in both 2001 and 2002," the owner whispered.

Our friends made gleeful note of this honor that had been bestowed and reported upon with such conspiratorial effect. Then they returned home and told the story to me.

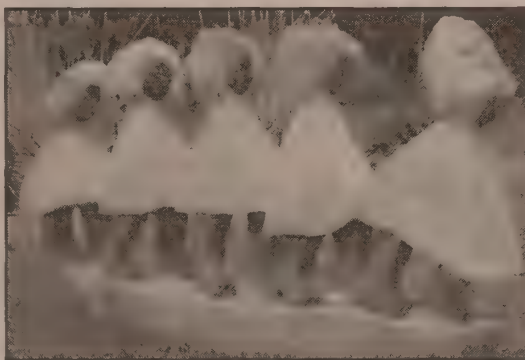

Benhura, who speaks little English, apparently considers his Dan's Papers award among his major accomplishments. In a listing of his recent one-man shows — there have been about two dozen of them all over the world in recent years — Dan's Papers "Best of the Best" award is featured prominently. It is at the top of his Web site, dominicbenhura.com. At a recent one-man exhibition of his work at the Boschendral Wine Estates in Cape Town, South Africa, the entire show was entitled "The Best of the Best," with the name of the event attributed to Dan's Papers in Bridgehampton, New York. The award certificate has been reproduced and framed and featured prominently in other recent one-man shows he has held, specifically in Germany, England, Zimbabwe and the U.S., both in Scottsdale and in Bridgehampton, where the Zuva Gallery and the Native Accents Galleries have exclusives on the sale of his work.

I recently met Dominic Benhura. He was accompanied by gallery owners Mark and Susan Baron to the "Barbecue and Beyond" fundraiser at the Villa Maria in Water Mill to benefit Maryhaven. This was last Saturday. He is a handsome African man of about 35 with a shy smile. He shakes hands firmly. He was in town for about a week, and this would be his last day. He was flying back to the two studios he supervises in Zimbabwe on Monday.

I went by Native Accents Galleries in Bridgehampton late Monday morning in the hopes of talking a bit with Benhura, but I missed him. He was already in the car, being driven to JFK. So I talked to Mark and Susan.

Pieces of Benhura's works are displayed around the gallery. I've taken some pictures of them and they accompany this article. They seem to use stone in a way I have never seen it used before. The Dan's Papers "Best of the Best" Award is prominently displayed by the front door.

"Benhura was born and raised in the bush, in a small town not too far from the capitol, Harare," Mark told me. (Mark Baron was born and raised in Zimbabwe.) "His father died before he was born and he was raised by his aunt, uncle and cousins in the city. He did not have a pair of shoes until he was nine years old."

Mark gave me a flier to read about Benhura. He apprenticed to a cousin, who carved rock with a chisel and hammer. Benhura sold his first sculpture when he was twelve. Today he owns six homes in Harare with one home being a sculpture studio where he has twenty-seven artists working, creating their own careers. He supplies the stone, tools, space, sales outlets, and two meals a day. He also hosts artists from other countries who seek his artistic knowledge and energy.

Benhura was quoted in the flier. "From the time I started sculpting, a day could not go by without using my hammer and chisel. It had become my life. I work nearly every day, Sunday to Sunday. I cannot do without it."

He also had this to say about the fact that many of his sculptures are images of children.

"My love for children and their development stems from my personal background. I grew up with my uncle because my mother was poor. The absence of parental love and guidance gives me the urge to give other underprivileged children hope."

And of course, in between the comments about Mandela and other world leaders, there is his award as Dan's Papers Best of the Best, two years in a row.

The Dan's Papers Best of the Best awards, which are framed and hang prominently in many stores in this community, are given out every October after two weeks of voting by our readers. This will be the tenth year we have given out the awards. A big party is held for the winners after the voting and a group photograph of the many winners is taken on the front lawn of our newspaper office. It's a big deal.

review: roger rosenblatt

By Catherine Gandel

Essayist Roger Rosenblatt read from his new book, Anything Can Happen: Notes on My Inadequate Life and Yours, at Bookhampton on Saturday, June 28. Rosenblatt, who is also Parsons Family University Professor in Writing at Southampton College, was tieless and relaxed as he explained, in a humorously self-deprecating way, the origin of this book, quite different in tenor from his other best-selling books like Rules for Aging.

"Originally I wanted to be a poet," Rosenblatt told the crowd, "but I wasn't good enough. Whatever it took, I didn't have. I wasn't content just to do the work, I wanted to be read."

Fast forward to summer, 2002 when Rosenblatt was a guest at the Southampton College Writers Conference. "One of the things that struck me about the conference," he said, "was that this was a group of writers who all liked each other. The other thing I realized was that these writers, like Bharati Mukherjee, Kaylie Jones, and Jules Feiffer, were just 'doing it,' writing what they felt compelled to write, what they wanted to write."

Inspired by these examples, Rosenblatt wrote the essays in Anything Can Happen, mostly short, almost formless essays, that "don't explain anything," as he said. As he read "My Bear" ("Was he a bi-polar bear?"), "Advice to Those About to Acquire a Rembrandt," and "On Your Conduct at a Dinner Party," the familiar Rosenblatt insight, use of language, sometimes biting sense of humor and take on the oddball customs of our 21st century world came through.

But some of the essays are quite scathing and disturbing. For example, "Tyranny for Beginners," begins this way: "Lyndon Johnson badgered Hubert Humphrey into killing a deer on a visit to Johnson's Texas ranch, then he sent the vice president the severed head of the animal to remind him of his power over him. That's really all there is to it." Rosenblatt's point is that tyranny is more than having power over someone else, it's letting the other know that you have that power, twisting the knife. Letting someone else take the blame for something you have done is an everyday example of tyranny.

Ground Breaking

Dirt Flies As Shinnecocks Start New Casino Project In Hamptons Bays

By Dan Rattiner

The first shovels went into the ground in Hampton Bays on Monday for the start of construction on Long Island's first gambling casino. The shovels were each manned by a trustee of the Shinnecock Indian Nation, Lance A. Gumbs, Charles K. Smith II and James Eazer before a quiet crowd of several hundred people on Monday morning who came, by invitation of the Nation, to watch the proceedings.

The morning started at 10 a.m. with a walk through the woods to the site, which is 85 wooded acres near Peconic Bay north of Route 24 right by the Shinnecock Canal. There was a drum ceremony, an opening prayer and then two of the trustees, Smith and Gumbs, spoke about the need for the tribe to create an economic base after so many years of economic neglect. Then the shovels went into the ground and the first holes were dug. Afterwards, the architectural plans and the drawing of the casino were made available for those who wished to see them. They showed a large log cabin structure, 65,000 square feet, which is about the size of a supermarket, on 15 cleared acres. The remaining 70 acres surrounding it would be preserved forever. After this, some of the Shinnecock children participated in games across the street while the trustees answered questions.

"Are you going to respect the injunction?" the tribal leaders were asked.

At least until tomorrow, they replied. Then they would see.

"You are going to fight the injunction?"

Yes we are.

Four copies of a temporary injunction, drawn up by Suffolk County District Attorney Daniel Comley, had been placed on the front doorsteps of the homes of four members of the tribe on Sunday night by process servers. Thus, Monday morning, which the tribe hoped would go well, began under a cloud. The temporary injunction, which prohibits the tribe from having anything to do with the construction of a gambling facility, would certainly not apply to the digging of a few shovelfuls of dirt, their attorneys advised them. They would conduct their ceremony. And then, on Tuesday, they would bring a document to the County Courthouse asking that the matter be removed to Federal Court. If successful, which it was, the temporary injunction would probably be null and void.

The tribe faces several large hurdles before they will be able to open a casino to the general public. But it is a road well traveled by Indian tribes around the nation, who, aided by lawyers familiar with this path, have nearly always succeeded in these enterprises. The first

PARKS DEPARTMENT FAILS TO REPAIR 1741 "THIRD HOUSE"

By Dan Rattiner

What is going on at Montauk's Historic Third House reminds me of the following story.

A man works for an insurance company on Long Island for many years. He gets married, has a family. One day the insurance company says they want to offer him a big promotion. But there is good and there is bad in it. The good is that he gets a raise and is to be the Vice President in charge of a regional office. The bad news is that the regional office is in Cleveland. If he accepts the offer he will have to uproot his family, sell his house and move there.

The man calls a family meeting of his wife and kids. After some discussion it is voted unanimously that for the good of everybody he accept the offer. And so, he does, and a plan is made for him to go to Cleveland to shop for a new home and to meet his staff. The rest of the family, meanwhile, will stay home and begin packing.

The night before his trip to Cleveland, he is up in the attic going through some boxes. He comes upon a box of military paraphernalia, from his days in the Army during basic training at a camp outside of Cleveland. He finds his uniform, some medals, a pair of boots, his helmet. And he finds a ticket stub. It is for a pair of shoes he left to be repaired at a shoe store on Flagg Avenue in downtown Cleveland just before shipping out. Thirty years ago, in a hurry to get on a transport for Vietnam, he had left them there and had never returned to pick them up.

He thinks — I wonder if that shoe repair place is still there? The address is right on the ticket. It couldn't be. Nevertheless, on a whim, he puts it in his wallet.

The next day, he is walking down a busy street in downtown Cleveland when he suddenly realizes that the street sign says he is on Flagg Avenue. The place looks nothing like he remembered it thirty years ago. He takes out the ticket, however, and notes the street address and he walks toward it. He passes huge glass skyscrapers and big office buildings. And then, wedged in between two skyscrapers is this little wooden shack with the dirty window in the front and the tin chimney on the top. It is the shoe repair shop.

hurdle to be overcome will be in getting the Federal government to recognize the Shinnecocks as a tribe. It would seem unlikely that this can be refused, because the Shinnecocks have a continuous and well-documented history on eastern Long Island that dates back nearly four hundred years. The first white settlers to land in Southampton in 1639 were greeted by Shinnecocks. After federal recognition, and certainly, right up until the present day, the Indians have insisted and the white men have treated those who live on the Shinnecock Reservation as separate and distinct from those who live in the United States, denying them welfare, Medicaid, worker's compensation, disability, proper schooling, pre-school and health services, even property ownership, using the fact that the Shinnecocks are a separate Nation to explain all this. It has not been very successful. But if it goes around it ought to come around, the tribe believes.

The history of all of this in recent years is really quite remarkable. In all recent memory, the tribal council of the Shinnecocks conducted their affairs in private, with little or no communication to the outside world. I think, there was the belief, quite accurate, that the goal of the American dream at that time was assimilation and integration. America was the melting pot, and all our differences would fade away in what would become, finally, the bland Americanized experience. The Shinnecocks wanted no part of it.

About ten years ago, however, a tremendous change occurred in how America viewed its minorities. The melting pot idea was put aside. A new approach, in which all our differences are celebrated, came to the fore. Indeed, quite astonishingly, the American government decided to make a gift of a way out of poverty to the Indian nations within our borders. They and they alone could own gambling casinos, as long as it was on tribal land and a tribe wanted to go into that business. It was in keeping with the adage that whatever goes on on tribal land is no business of the United States of America.

Personally, I don't think the Shinnecocks are going to have any problem in the long run qualifying for the Native American rights to run gambling casinos on their land. For this reason, I think our local officials should be working together with the Shinnecocks. There might be other alternatives to a gambling casino. Years ago there was a clam hatchery on the Shinnecock property. It didn't work out. But it was one idea. There must be others. As for a gambling facility, a building about the size of a supermarket, occupying, together with its parking, just 20% of a parcel that is otherwise preserved in perpetuity as woods, is not exactly Atlantic City, Las Vegas or Foxwoods.

Regardless of opinions, local authorities should be at least considering what to do should this facility come to pass.

Instead, local governments are taking the familiar adversarial route and are thereby dealing themselves out, something which does not serve their constituencies well. People would be better served if local officials were part of the solution rather than part of the problem.

People should at least be talking about access roads, perhaps from the Long Island Expressway through the depressed part of Flanders. It would do some good there.

Studies show that small facilities are self-contained. People come there and stay there. Then they go home.

We Love You Kenny

An Outpouring Of Affection At Amagansett's Indian Wells Beach

By Dan Rattiner

One of my most favorite beaches in the Hamptons is Indian Wells in Amagansett. It is one of two large oceanfront beaches in this hamlet. The other one is available to everyone for the purchase of a beach sticker. Indian Wells is reserved for East Hampton Town residents only — the idea being that if you live in these parts at least there ought to be someplace where you are guaranteed a parking spot at the beach.

The way to get there is to go down the Montauk Highway to Amagansett, turn south on the appropriately named Indian Wells Road and drive to the end. Long ago, the local Indians got their fresh drinking water from a well here. Thus the name.

Late in the afternoon, the beach tends to wind down a bit and there are usually lots of places to park. Saturday was a hot day. And so, at 4 p.m. I went down there. I was very surprised when I got there. As I approached the place where you can park your car facing the ocean, I saw the hot dog wagon that Kenny has dispensed treats from for years parked not in his usual space at the side of the street, but more in the middle of the row of cars where it actually took up one of the five parking spaces facing the beach. Kenny should know better than to do that, I thought. What was going on? In his old spot, there were people crowded around bought a newer one. Then I read the signs on the side of the white car.

WE MISS YOU, KENNY, the signs said. COME BACK SOON, KENNY. On the table there was a big glass jar with another sign on it. DONATIONS FOR KENNY.

And nearby, there was a young woman selling bead necklaces, or at least I thought she was selling necklaces.

I turned around and looked at the hot dog wagon. The sign on it read CYRIL'S HOT DOG WAGON and inside there was a young man with a black handlebar moustache, definitely not Kenny.

The woman with the necklaces asked if I would take a donation of one and make a donation in the jar.

"Where's Kenny?" I asked.

"Over there," she said to my great relief. She pointed to Kenny, who stood in a blue T-shirt, jeans, a baseball cap, sunglasses and a three-day growth of white beard, talking to several sunbathers. He is a small man. They towered over him. They would come over and shake hands with him and then pat him on the back.

something, a table with blue helium balloons on it, and behind it a white car festooned with flowers and with several signs. There seemed to be an event of some kind going on.

I parked and walked over. The hot dog wagon looked very different than Kenny's usual hot dog wagon, but then, I thought, maybe he

I walked over, got his attention and pointed at CYRIL'S HOT DOGS.

"My truck caught fire," he said. "I'm out of business for awhile. I've got a new van coming Tuesday but it is bare inside. I'm going to have to get all new equipment. What a mess."

I nodded to Cyril. "Will they give you your old spot back? You've been here fifteen years," I said.

"And I know everybody. I know your two sons." He named them. "How are they?"

"I have three sons."

"Yeah, but the third never was an Indian Wells kid." He meant a lifeguard. My third son writes poetry. Kenny named him, too.

All during the time I talked with Kenny, he was continually interrupted by people who wanted to hug him, to talk to him, to just touch him. He knew them all and called them by name. One of them motioned to CYRIL'S HOT DOGS.

"Oh, I don't blame him," he said. "People want hot dogs and ice cream."

Then he turned back to me. "Dan, I have a town concession license. But it's not for a particular spot. People have come here to sell before. Remember the hot dog wars? What year was that?"

Kenny's wife Carole came over. And the mention of the hot dog wars prompted her to tell the story with a certain gleeful relish, if you'll pardon the pun.

"That was six years ago," she said. "This guy Swanky Frankie. He parked on the other side. Offered lower prices. And nobody bought from him. All they wanted was Kenny."

"That's cause I know everybody," Kenny said.

"Finally he went away. He told Vinnie the barber there was no sense going back."

Kenny has been selling hot dogs at Indian Wells for his entire retirement. He was born and raised in Queens where he was, as he put it, a bread man. He worked at bakeries. Then, thirty years ago, he and his wife bought a small fisherman's cottage at Lazy Point. It was just a few steps from the bay beach there. And they'd come out summers. When he retired, they decided to move out here permanently. He bought his hot dog wagon, the first of several wagons, and he began coming out to Indian Wells Beach every day in the summertime. Spring and fall he'd sell his wares at the East Hampton Town kid's park on Abraham's Path where they have a rollerblade hockey rink, several basketball courts, a tennis court and a running track.

"How did the fire start?" I asked.

"It was last Tuesday morning. I backed out of my driveway and smelled smoke. It was a gas leak. The whole truck went up. Just like that. I opened the door and dived out."

The young woman who was giving away the necklaces came over. I asked if she were a member of his family.

"Kenny is the first person who ever offered me space to sell my necklaces," she said. "He sold them from the hot dog truck. So now I'm giving them away. But I'm asking people for donations. Kenny is a hero. When the truck caught fire he disconnected three propane gas tanks from the house. The whole house could have gone up."

"I'm no hero," Kenny said. "People who fought in Vietnam are heroes."

Tanya Waxler, the necklace girl, said she is from Maryland but lives here now and she explained the subtle distinction between giving

When Max Baer Came To America To Fight Joe Louis For The Title

By Joe Mintzer

You can't miss it, the tall tower rising above The Promised Land north of the Napeague strip. Its role in the history of the pre-World War II boxing world and the war itself has never before been told.

The war clouds were gathering in Europe in 1936. The Olympics were getting underway and the "American Negro" runner, Jesse Owens, (there were no "African-Americans" back then) had just won four gold medals right under Hitler's master race nose. But der Fuhrer had his revenge in the hulking shape of world heavyweight champion Max Schmeling who had flattened Joe Louis that same year. It was not only a black vs. white sports world, but also a world facing devastating conflict between the United States and Germany. And, it was the decade of the great idols who fought in the ring at Madison Square Garden — of Max Baer, the Jewish boxer who beat Schmeling in '33 and James Braddock, and the giant Primo Carnera.

It was right after Schmeling's win over Louis in '36 (in a re-match two years later

A TALE OF TWO EAST END TOWNS AND THE SEA

By Catherine Gandel

The Architectural + Design Forum presented its first program of the 2003 summer last Sunday afternoon. Priscilla Dunhill gave a slide lecture on "A Tale of Two Towns: Sag Harbor and Shelter Island." It was an easy-to-take history lesson that began with illustrations of how, to this day, both towns share a love of, respect for and economic dependence on the sea.

Ms. Dunhill, who has summered on Shelter Island for 40 years, is the author of An Island Sheltered, with photos by Alex McLean. Her theme was that, despite their closeness — only a 1/2 mile of water separates the two areas — Sag Harbor and Shelter Island developed different economies, cultures, and architecture over the centuries. Sag Harbor had whaling; Shelter Island, wool. Sag Harbor is known for its Greek revival homes and so-called "watch case houses"; Shelter Island its Georgian mansions and bungalows. Sag Harbor developed industries like the Bulova Factory; Shelter Island built grand resort hotels. Both towns had windmills.

To prove that we in the 21st Century did not invent the concept of an economic debacle, Dunhill offered the example of Sag Harbor's whaling industry. After the discov-

Louis was to drop Schmeling in just two minutes and four seconds of round one!) that the German, seeking to avoid reporters' questions about his forthcoming welcome from Adolph Hitler, was said to have been seen "somewhere on Long Island," boarding the Hindenburg, Germany's gigantic 400-foot trans-Atlantic passenger dirigible. That conjecture was borne out when the following story eventually surfaced.

At dusk, on an uncertain date in July of 1936, a party of Bonackers, with a full sack of scallops, looking up from the waters of Napeague Harbor, claim to have seen this huge "flying cigar" with the Nazi cross on its flag, moored for two hours at the top of the 200-foot tower (it's still standing. Were they picking up Max Schmeling, a few hundred yards down the oiled-sand stretch of road leading from the Amagansett hamlet to the Montauk docks — opposite the food cart called "Lunch"?

None of this was ever reported in the local or any other press, But the Hindenburg, later to crash and burn on a routine landing in new jersey, that night lifted off and floated across the dunes below, and in the light of a couple of flares, the photographer in the rear cabin slung under the zeppelin, took pictures of the land and sea below.

Six years later microfilm prints of these topographic and oceanographic photos were said to have been found on the Germany Army spies and saboteurs who were caught on the Napeague beach after rowing ashore from the U-boat that had dropped them there!

Some fighter that Joe Louis was.

ery of gold in California and kerosene in Pennsylvania, the industry that had given Sag Harbor its booming economy between 1820 and 1850 went bust, an earlier version of Silicon Valley in the late 1990s.

Dunhill concluded with a rather depressing present-day similarity between Sag Harbor and Shelter Island: property in both areas has become so expensive that it is almost impossible for the sons and daughters of long-time residents to stay. Dunhill asked the question: "What are we going to do about this," but neither she nor anyone in the audience had any answers.

Neighbor:

By John Capone

Marisa Tomei is living in the Hamptons this summer. Or so I hear. Yep, she's out for the summer. This does not, however, mean that you should try to find her. I already did that anyway.

I can tell you where Marisa Tomei is not. She is not at King Kullen in Bridgehampton. I asked the checkout girl if she'd seen her. "Marisa Tomei is out here this summer? Wow," she said. No sign of her though. I asked the cashier at Kmart if she'd seen Marisa Tomei. "No, but Roy Scheider was in the other week," she said, "He was one of our last self checkout customers. We stopped using it, you know. The machine was on the blink and I had to go over and help him. The next customer after Roy Scheider, when he swiped his card, the whole credit card swipe fell off the self checkout and hit the ground."

"I see," I said, and tried to get away before she could tell me what Mr. Scheider bought, and possibly what she had for breakfast. I made a speedy exit. Marisa Tomei was not at the Mobil on Montauk Highway. No sign of her at Pier One. She wasn't at the 7-Eleven either.

Back at the ranch (what we've taken to calling the new compound we live at) I asked my ever-faithful wingman, Bonacker Bones, if he'd help me track Miss Tomei down. "She's living out here?" he asked, "Damn, I thought she was from Brooklyn." She might be, I told him. But word on the street is, she's out for the summer. A neighbor of ours, in a way. "Marisa Tomei from My Cousin Vinny?" he asked. One in the same, I told him. He went on to drone in a high-pitched, nasal whine, "Viinneee, my biological clock is tickin!" Bonacker stamped his foot on the ground, "Tickin." Stop that, I said. She's probably heard it once or twice. "Didn't she win an Oscar for that?" he asked. Best supporting actress in 1993, I answered. "Joe Pesci is a funny guy," he said.

Bonacker and I then got into a protracted argument (as we are wont to do) on the relative merits of Joe Pesci's stand-up. After the fourteenth time Bonacker asked me if he was funny, I had to put a stop to it. I proposed that we watch some of Marisa Tomei's movies. But where to start? We rented Troma's The Toxic Avenger, the story of 98-pound weakling named Melvin who is transformed into a hulking monster after an accident with vat of toxic waste. With Tromaville really being just down the road from her hometown of Brooklyn, it made sense that she'd be in the cult-classic movie, but 110 minutes later we had not seen much of Miss Tomei. She appeared only briefly in an un-credited role as a girl in the health club where Melvin works. Bonacker pointed out to me that Marisa Tomei had a role in the Matt Dillon movie The Flamingo Kid, in 1984, a year before Toxie, and that we should have started with that. I don't think so, I told him. "That's a good movie," he said.

She does possess the elegance and grace of the old movie stars, I said. "And she has a tattoo..."

She does possess the elegance and grace of the old movie stars, I said. "And she has a tattoo," Bones informed me. Really? "Yes, the Egyptian Eye of Ra on her left foot."

The acting bug bit Marisa Tomei early. At the age of 12 a performance of the play "A Chorus Line," hooked her. After that she studied acting and dancing, and during the summers performed in plays at the Golden Bridge Colony upstate, New York. She graduated from Edward R. Murrow High in Brooklyn, and went on to attend Boston University until her acting career interrupted her studies.

After some TV and other small roles Miss Tomei went on to appear in The Cosby Show spin-off A Different World with Lisa Bonet for its first two seasons (1987-1988), but the video store didn't have any episodes. We looked on further.

We moved back into Oscar territory. The nineties began to bring meatier roles, more worthy of Miss Tomei's considerable talent. Alas, she first had to appear alongside Sylvester Stallone in the movie Oscar, which not only didn't win an Oscar, but sent critics into spasms of joy and convulsions of ecstasy dreaming up Academy Award related ways to insult it. Oscar was billed as a comedy of criminal proportions, although Bonacker proposed that it was only its intent to assault

Miss Tomei's career which was criminal. She began to fulfill her potential, though, with her role in the Academy Award nominated Chaplin starring chronic rehabber (and for the time being not a neighbor, so don't worry about him being in your bed) Robert Downey, Jr. Miss Tomei might have related as a fellow NYC girl to Mabel Normand, the silent film star born in Staten Island who she played in Chaplin. Miss Tomei began to see her star rise in the Richard Attenborough directed biopic. In 1992 she also starred in My Cousin Vinny, and the Academy noticed.

After watching her Oscar-winning performance in that movie, we pop Untamed Heart, a romance in which Marisa Tomei starred opposite Christian Slater. While watching the film it occurs to us that Slater's character is not so much a romantic as a stalker. If any man followed a woman home from work everyday to see that she got home alright in real life, she'd get a restraining order. "Yeah, but he saves her from those guys who attack her," Bonacker points out. True, I say, but think about it: You have a gorgeous woman being followed by a weird little guy who turns out to maybe have a baboon heart. She'd be screaming, freak and dialing 911. "Well, I liked it. To me, the movie is an urban fairytale," Bonacker shot back. We then argued the relative merits of onscreen stalkers deciding that John Cusack holding the radio blaring "In Your Eyes," outside Ione Skye's window late at night in Say Anything was definitely trespassing into stalker territory.

"Do you think," Bonacker began hesitantly, "That we've been stalking?" No. We were merely inquiring. Now let's watch In the Bedroom, for which Miss Tomei received some of her strongest reviews yet, I said.

Both Bonacker and I cursed ourselves for missing the recent revival of Oscar Wilde's "Salome." Miss Tomei played the title character opposite Al Pacino as Herod. The play closed on June 12, but we look forward to seeing more of Marisa Tomei on the stage. In the meantime we will resign ourselves to another trip to the video store to pick up Anger Management, which Miss Tomei appears in with Adam Sandler and Jack Nicholson.

By Susan Whitney Simm

Robert Caro is a great storyteller. His biographies read like historical novels or top flight mysteries, a characteristic which has won him legions of fans and two Pulitzer Prizes. The writing is tirelessly researched, often dramatic and, like the man himself, eloquent and to the point.

"History is a 'story,'" said Caro during a recent interview at his East Hampton home. "In my view, if you're not telling a story, you're not being faithful to history."

Caro grew up in Manhattan where an early love of journalism set the stage for a fascinating and often surprising career. His father was a businessman who immigrated to New York from Poland at the age of thirteen and his mother died tragically when Caro was only eleven. After attending Manhattan's private Horace Mann School, where he was editor of the school newspaper, Caro headed off to Princeton where he served as managing editor of the Daily Princetonian.

"The day after graduating" in 1957, Caro married Ina Slosberg and he and his young bride moved to a small town called Fords, a suburb of Metuchen, New Jersey, where he went to work for a little local newspaper in New Brunswick. There he got an education very different from the one he received in Princeton's hallowed halls.

"This newspaper was so closely tied in with the Middlesex County democratic organization that the chief political writer, a senior reporter, would be given a leave of absence to write speeches for the organization during the election campaign," Caro remembers, still in disbelief. When the reporter had a heart attack just before elections, Caro got the job of writing the speeches. The boss of the Democrats would pull out a wad of money and, if he liked the speech, peel off $50 bills.

"On Election Day, the boss asked me to 'ride the polls' with him. At each polling place, a police officer would come up to the car and tell the boss that they were keeping reformers well away and that he didn't have anything to worry about. I finally got so disgusted that at one stop I just got out of the car and never went back, even to get my paycheck."

Shortly after this incident Caro landed a job working at Newsday in Garden City. Newsday didn't have a Sunday edition in those days, and as low man on the reporting totem pole, Caro worked Saturday afternoon and night, writing memos for the "real" reporters who came in Sunday night for Monday's edition. The paper's managing editor, Alan Hathway, had been the city editor of a Hearst paper in Chicago during the 1920s when he was very young. And he wasn't impressed with college graduates, especially the Ivy League variety.

"I think I was the first Ivy League graduate to work in the Newsday city room," said Caro. "And it only happened because I was hired when Alan was on vacation. He was so furious when he returned that he wouldn't speak to me for months." Convinced that he would be let go during his six-month probationary period, Caro refused to relocate from New Jersey to Garden City, despite Ina's urging.

During Caro's first few months on the job, Newsday was crusading against something the Federal Aviation Administration was doing, and one Saturday night he received a call in the city room from the FAA saying that if the paper sent a reporter down right away, he would be allowed to go through boxes of files at what was then Idlewild Airport. The entire staff of reporters was at the paper's annual picnic on Fire Island, so Caro ended up going himself. He spent the night going through files before heading home Sunday morning, exhausted. First thing Monday Alan's secretary called and said that Alan wanted to see him immediately.

"I said to Ina, 'Thank God we didn't move,'" said Caro. "I'm about to be fired." He drove all the way back to Garden City from New Jersey and approached the corner of the city room where Alan had a glass cubicle.

"His big, bald, red head was bent over something and as I got closer I saw that it was my memo," said Caro. "As I approached he said, 'I didn't know anyone from Princeton could go through files like this. From now on, you do investigative work,' to which I blurted out, 'But I don't know anything about investigative reporting.' He just looked at me — and I keep this advice sacred to this day — he just looked at me and said, 'Just turn every page, turn every goddamn page. Don't assume a damn thing.' With all the awards that I have since won during my career, this is still one of the proudest moments of my life."

While doing investigative work for Newsday over the next six years, Caro became more and more interested in urban planning and intrigued by its larger-than-life central figure, Robert Moses.

"He wasn't elected. But he had this incredible political power and no one understood why. Moses was fond of saying that he was above politics, that he was an apolitical public servant. Of course the truth was that he financed the political machines out of the toll revenues he was collecting from the Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority. But this was by no means public knowledge."

To learn more about urban planning, Caro applied for and was granted a Nieman Fellowship to study for a year at Harvard in

Sunrise Canopy Bed $50,000

This unique canopy bed was designed by contemporary artist Cuca Romley, in 1981 for the ballet The Beauty And The Beast. The ballet was going to be in a timeless décor in the woods. Chairs, tables and gates were made in wrought iron following the trees shape in Haiti in 1981. The bed was inspired by the Place Furstemberg in Paris with four trees crossing branches like a canopy. In 1983 the ballet was indefinitely postponed. The Sunrise canopy bed was created in white oak in a queen size (60x80x70"H). The canopy is one piece and is held by the four poles.

Prices start at $10,500 (complete wedding coverage)

Special photos for your special day, your wedding day. These pictures are not like any other wedding photographs because each wedding tells a story and inspires couples to remember the turning point in their lives when they became one...Expect your photos to bridge a gap to the next generations so that children and grandchildren can see the way their parents and grandparents looked and behaved when they were full of life, love and happiness. Tanya Malott Lawson, photographer, photographs weddings because she loves them. Her work is about love, commitment, optimism, family, friends, tradition and individuality. She is un-intrusive as possible in order not to disturb the moments she is capturing on film. She blends with guests so that many do not even realize that she is the photographer. Available at Tanya Malott Lawson Photography Studio, 149 Madison Street, Sag Harbor. 631-725-8233.

"Legally Blonde 2: Red, White and Blonde!"

Ahhh yes another sunny, quiet, relaxing Saturday afternoon in Southampton... Okay, maybe not. It was more like Hollywood East this past weekend when Legally Blonde 2 premiered at the UA Southampton.

Hamptonites were camera ready and lined up along Hill Street, hoping to snap a star. The entire cast came out to host the event, including Reese Witherspoon, Academy Award winner Sally Field and Luke Wilson.

Reese strolled down the red carpet six months pregnant, while hubby, Ryan Phillippe took a step back and watched Reese promote the film. The happy couple reunited for photographers as they made their way into the theatre. Reese is back in "LB2" as Elle Woods but this time she's taking over Capitol Hill. Reese admitted, "I never thought there would be an 'LB2'. When we were making the first one, I don't think we thought anyone was going to see this beyond our close relatives." Nahhh, not too many people, just a little over one hundred million dollars worth came out to see Reese, a.k.a Elle Woods, take over Harvard Law School in "LB", and now she's at it again.

Reese believes the movie is empowering and fun for young women. "I think it's a great movie to come out at this time and to not feel like there are going to be obscenities and sexual stuff. So it's kind of nice. I try to take the responsibility of being a role model very seriously," she said. "I think that's one of the great things about being a producer on this film, because I get to put all of those great ideas that I have as a mother, about the kinds of movies that I want to see and my kids want to see, into the film."

Reese's many co-stars worked the red carpet like old pros. Her two main side-kicks in the movie – Jessica Cauffiel and Alanna Ubach – were eating up the cameras and having a ball. Alanna gave a few shout outs to her family, "Wow, from Downey to this...hi Mom what's up!" I even got Jennifer Coolidge (Stifler's Mom), who plays Paulette, to do the infamous bend and snap! "I had all these people tell me they have watched 'Legally Blonde' so many times they could do all of my lines, so I thought it was time for a second one," Coolidge said. Regina King plays Grace, and was flanked by two of the most important men in her life, her husband and son. Regina felt confident about the film, "It's the whole part 2 stigma that comes along with the movie, but it has a great message, speak up for yourself. It's a girl power movie," said Regina. Luke

GEORGE, THANK YOU.

You changed our lives.

Before we bought the Marquis Spa from you, our lives were completely boring. My husband was never home, he worked 18 hours a day at his law firm.

To keep busy, I jogged, joined volunteer groups, shopped 'til I dropped.

We never saw each other. It was terrible.

Since you installed the spa, our lives have really changed.

The warm water bubbling from those therapeutic heads completely relaxes us.

Look at this picture. We spent a fortune on different backdrops to fit our every mood. This one is a wooded lake. Another one is a deserted tropical beach. And another is...well it's just too personal to talk about.

Now we spend all of our time together, in our new spa.

Its wonderful... except he stopped going to work and lost his job.

If I can get him out of the spa, can you give him a job?

Nobody wants to take away the rights of the rich to protect their oceanfront homes. They began building them there a hundred and fifty years ago — great cedar-shingled fairy tale structures that everybody knew would, one day, get their comeuppance by the ocean. Back then, there were not many tools available to prevent this. Indeed, it was a daring thing for a rich man to build by the ocean. He could lose it. Or he could have the house lifted up and moved back on the property a hundred feet when the cliff crumbled or the dune gave way. But obviously he didn't care. Money would pay for it all.

What the argument really is about is what tools the rich can use to protect their oceanfront homes today. At the beginning of the twenty-first century, there are many more tools, many of which negatively impact the rest of those who live here. There are bulldozers and steam shovels to carry and place boulders, there are giant corrugated steel walls that can be pile-driven in vertically in front of homes to stop the sea. Or at least slow down the sea. There are things, space age things that can make an enormous mess on the beach. Even end the beach. And whether there are local laws or not favoring this or forbidding that, there is the EPA and the Army Corps of Engineers that will in any case have to be contended with.

In addition to all of this, there is the beach access. It could be possible for the new village to prohibit all parking at the beach that is owned by village residents. This will dramatically alter the ability of people not on the beach from accessing the beach, except by bicycle or bus drop off.

Finally, there is the matter of global warming. The area that is to be created as this Village, if it happens, will have a high point just five feet above sea level. According to my calculations, with what we know about global warming, the rise in the sea level from the melting ice caps and the erosion along the ocean in these parts because of the natural scouring of the sea from east to west, I figure, best case, the Village of Hampton Dune will be underwater within two hundred years.

As George Carlin most famously said, it is not the EARTH that is endangered. The earth will make out just fine. It is MAN that is en-

Those who don't own oceanfront wish those with oceanfront well. But the bottom line is go with the flow, gentlemen. Please don't do this. In the long run, it won't work anyway. And while it works, it will dramatically alter both the character of life here and the physical look of the beach, if any. Please work with the town. •

Caro (continued from page 79)

1965. There the idea for his first book, The Power Broker: Robert Moses and the Rise and Fall of New York, crystallized.

"I was listening to this professor drone on, explaining by way of mathematical formulas where highways get built, when all of a sudden I thought, no, those are NOT the reasons why roads get built where they get built. They get built where they get built because Robert Moses wants them built there."

Realizing that he couldn't explain this belief in the context of daily journalism, Caro sent off proposals for The Power Broker and got a very small contract from Simon & Schuster. He had no idea at this point that the book would take him seven years to write. His family, which now included a young son, Chase, took an apartment in Riverdale and fretted over the $300 rent every month as Caro worked away on his book.

By 1970 with only about half of the book written, Caro was running out of money and didn't know where to turn. So he sent in what he had, about 500,000 words, to his editor at Simon & Schuster, hoping to get the rest of his small advance. He was invited out to dinner at a cheap Chinese restaurant.

"It's a wonderful book," the editor said, "but there's going to be a small printing. No one is going to read a book about Robert Moses." So they wouldn't give me the rest of the advance until the book was complete." Caro walked for blocks before finding the words with which he'd tell Ina the bad news.

But then something miraculous happened. Caro's editor at Simon & Schuster left the publishing house and so left Caro free to take his book elsewhere. He hired agent Lynn Nesbit (still his agent today) and the first thing she asked him was, "Why are you so worried?"

"I'm worried because I'm broke and the book isn't finished," I told her. "How much do you need?" she asked. I needed only another couple of years. She said, "Bob, you can stop worrying right now. Everyone in New York knows about this book. I can get that amount for you just by picking up the phone. But first we have to find an editor that you can work with the rest of your life."

Nesbit set up appointments for Caro with four editors, "famous editors," and three of them said they could make him a star. The fourth, Robert Gottlieb, president of Knopf at the time, said that the book needed a lot of work.

"I knew I had found my editor," said Caro of Gottlieb. The Power Broker was published in 1974 and was awarded a Pulitzer Prize. Finally Caro could write without worrying about the rent.

With the completion of The Power Broker came Caro's realization of the importance of political power in our everyday lives. Believing that you can use biography to examine political power if you choose the right person, he chose Lyndon Johnson because to understand Johnson's character is to understand the history of the United States in the twentieth century.

"When Johnson became majority leader in 1955, it was the only time the Senate really worked since the days before the Civil War when the Senate, not the presidency, was the center of the government. Johnson turned the Senate into a center of creativity and ingenu-

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Observations of an Islander #255 You Might Be a Local

My #18 column in 1998 was called You Might Be A Local, based on the comedian Jeff Foxworthy's schtick, You Might Be A Redneck, one of my favorite comedy bits. I wrote a similar series of questions to help you determine whether or not you might be a Local. Since then, there have been additional qualifying items... I hope you get a good giggle and please have a safe and wonderful Fourth of July!

If you have more than three kinds of shells on your dashboard, you might be a local.

If you say your car is a quart low and you mean on sand, you might be a local.

If you know the locations of three Osprey nests you might be a local.

If you bring hot coffee and cocoa for the ferry-men in winter, you might be a local.

If you have been married twice and have the same in-laws you might be a local.

If you have the police duty roster memorized, you might be a local.

If you still look for things in Jack's Marina based on where they were before in the old store you might be a local.

If you measure time in ferries, such as, "well, it was a four boat wait..." you might be a local.

If you know how long a four-boat wait is you might be a local.

If you set your watch by the clock in the liquor store so that you know exactly when they close, you might be a local.

If you hold three or more on-Island jobs at the same time you might be a local.

If a power outage at IGA doesn't prevent you from shopping because you have the shelves memorized, you might be a local.

If the Board you sit on does not bother with elections, but just says, "Look Bill, it's your turn to be President", you might be a local.

If you are learning a little more about opera everytime you pick up pizza, you might be a local.

If you always check in at the Shelter Island Mall (Goodies sections at the Recycle) whenever you drive down Menantic, you might be a local.

If you ask people at off-island stores to please hurry or you'll miss your boat — and they look at you like you already have, you might be a local.

But Johnson's presidency presented a dichotomy. Despite, or maybe as a result of, growing up poor in the segregated South, he passed, with his Great Society programs, civil rights, anti-poverty, and education acts that had been initiated years before under FDR's New Deal. Johnson was, however, ruthless in his pursuit of political power. When he became president in 1963, 16,000 Americans were serving in Vietnam. When he left office, over 500,000 troops were fighting there, and the U.S. was in turmoil. For these reasons Caro considers Johnson's presidency a watershed in America's history.

"If, during the long evolution from a 'constitutional' to an 'imperial' presidency, there was a single administration in which the balance tipped decisively, it was the presidency of Lyndon Johnson," Caro writes in the introduction to his first volume on Johnson, The Path to Power.

At the beginning of Caro's research on Johnson, he thought that he would write two volumes. Now he is up to four and will probably top 3,500 pages. (Master of the Senate, Caro's third volume on Johnson, was published in 2002 and recently released in paperback.)

"The things that I discovered, such as stolen elections (to which he devotes most of his second volume, Means of Ascent), are so much a part of the political process in America, as recently demonstrated by the Bush-Gore election, but no historian had really examined them before. Johnson doesn't just steal the last 202 well-publicized votes in his 1948 race for the Senate, he stole 35,000 votes before that. I figured that if I could show how this happened for one election, I would be adding to people's understanding of the political process. During the Bush-Gore election, I received hundreds of letters from people who told me that they understood what was happening as a result of reading Means of Ascent."

Though Caro is sometimes accused of hating the subject to whom he has devoted, in a sense, nearly thirty years of his life, he maintains that he neither hates Johnson nor loves him. He is simply in awe of how Johnson used his political power, sometimes purely for personal gain, and at others to pass great legislation, such as the Civil Rights Bill of 1957, a pivotal moment in his political career. Some of the ways in which Johnson used his power are unpleasant for Caro to write about, but he doesn't feel that means they shouldn't be written.

"In Master of the Senate, you see Johnson using this ruthlessness, this I-am-going-to-do-this-no-matter-what. But at this point he's not using it to steal elections or to humiliate his staff, but to pass the first civil rights legislation since Reconstruction. That 1957 bill was known as Johnson's bill, not Eisenhower's. In fact, Johnson rewrote it to make it pass and, as a result, changed the lives of twelve million Americans."

One could argue that Johnson didn't pass the civil rights bill until his back was against the wall. It isn't until he loses the presidential election in 1956, running as a southern candidate, that he turns his back on the South and uses his power in the Senate to get the bill passed. Caro believes his behavior was often the result of compassion and ambition always being at war within him.

"His compassion was real, but he didn't act on it until it and his ambition were pointing in the same direction. Still, that doesn't take away from his accomplishments."

To research his books, Caro goes to great lengths to understand his subject. When he was writing The Path to Power, he and Ina spent years in Washington and later in the Texas Hill Country of Johnson's youth where Caro spent many nights out under the stars in a sleeping bag to experience firsthand the loneliness that both Johnson and his mother felt. The Hill Country was a place of great poverty, where women were permanently stooped from carrying water up from streams using yokes and buckets. When Johnson campaigned for Congress there in 1937, promising to bring electricity to the 30,000 residents of the 24,000-square mile area (an incredible undertaking he accomplishes by 1948), he appealed to the young women.

"Vote for me," Johnson told them, "and I promise that you won't end up looking like your mothers," said Caro. "That was his genius."

Caro plans, for his fourth and final volume on Johnson and his era, to spend time both in Vietnam, where Johnson supposedly hand-picked targets to bomb during the war, and in a poor, predominantly black southern town to determine "if Johnson's Great Society legislation really changed the lives of black people" in this country.

Today, Chase Caro, a lawyer in White Plains, is the father of Barry, Shana and Jesse, all of whom attend Caro's alma mater Horace Mann. Ina, having published The Road >From The Past: Traveling Through History in France, expects to complete a second book this summer. And Master of the Senate received the National Book Award in addition to receiving the Pulitzer Prize for biography earlier this year.

Yet despite his life's achievements, success has not gone to Caro's head. Very youthful for his 67 years, he is charming, approachable and as quick to laugh at himself as at a joke aimed elsewhere. He refers to Ina, "my whole research department" and wife of 45 years, as "a great historian." And Robert Gottlieb is still his editor, despite books that average 900 pages and weigh up to two pounds in paperback. In his dedication of Master of the Senate, Caro sums up perfectly what matters to him

ENDANGERED SALAMANDERS OUTFOXED

By Clara Jablonski

Local Tiger Salamanders were in a recent holdup, but luckily, there were no hostages. As culprits in a case against the Children's Museum of the East End (CMEE), the endangered species allegedly claimed their home to be the controversial 12.2 acres of land along the Bridgehampton-Sag Harbor Turnpike, an area that had been selected to be the site of the museum.

Much to everyone's surprise, however, there were no tiger salamanders to be found on the property. There were a few discovered wandering through the grounds of the nearby Slate Pond, but none stepped foot on the site under question.

Now, you wonder, how does one go about making sure there are no salamanders living on a property, without getting down on one's belly and mingling with the slithery creatures lurking down below? Well, working with the New York State Department of Conservation (DEC), the museum created a project to monitor the future construction site for a period of 60 days.

According to Adrienne Kitaeff, the Director at the Children's Museum, there was "drift fencing" put into the soil, encompassing the future construction site in order to create a shield so creatures couldn't stray into it. Along these walls were "pitfalls," or buckets to catch any little critters that encountered the wall. The pitfalls were filled with some essentials to sustain the animals until they were found. Every day for the 60 days, a licensed endangered species handler visited every one of the buckets to see what treasures the night had surfaced.

Strangely enough, the pitfalls never caught any tiger salamanders. Although a couple of shrews, one garden snake and 30 spade-footed toads among others were found in the buckets, there is speculation that the land that once was able to sustain the tiger salamanders had deteriorated, possibly because in recent years the land had become a dumping ground. Nevertheless, once construction

Breaking (continued from page 72)

Casino could very well prevail in all of this, though because of another situation. The Hampton Bays site is purchased land, not federally proscribed reservation. Perhaps a judge will say only the Southampton reservation itself is the property of the Indian Nation. Perhaps he will say a casino would be legal on the 80 acres of that reservation, in a more populous area with greater possibilities of a negative impact.

"No" and "somewhere else" are irresponsible replies in this particular situation. This is not a zoning variance application. It is something entirely new to this area and it should be treated as such.

begins, hopefully this coming fall, the handler will be back to ensure that on the mere chance that any salamander stragglers wander near the site, that they will be brought back to a safe place like Slate Pond.

As you probably know, the long-time controversial topic of the tiger salamanders residing on the lot created quite a speed bump for the establishment of the Children's Museum. And after about two and a half years of working on this project to make sure that the endangered salamanders were not harmed, the Museum's Trustee Board finally received site plan approval on June 12. It's interesting that no one thought twice about using the land along the Turnpike as a dumping ground, but when the CMEE wanted to rehabilitate the land and build a resource for the local community, it took 2.5 years to be approved.

But according to Kitaeff, it was simply a difference in opinion that made deliberations last so long. But she understood the importance of respecting the environment the museum would be moving into. She also added, "I'm a vegetarian. I don't even wear leather. So how could I want to harm the salamanders?" But she is relieved that the testing was successful and the long-awaited haven for local children to learn about their environment is one step closer to being built.

Also, most of the 12.2 acres of land that will be the museum's home will, in reality, not be used for the museum. Most of it will be cleaned up and preserved into its original state, meaning that along with other things, native species will be replanted. The building itself will only cover .227 acres of the land and the rest will be untouched, according to Anthony Trezza, an environmental planner at InterScience, the land planner company for the museum.

He also added that there will be box culverts, or tunnels "designed specifically to provide the tiger salamanders access to and from Slate Pond." These three box culverts will connect Slate Pond to the marshland on the other side of the property, allowing the little guys to get through the developed area unharmed. In addition, there will be salamander curbs built to prevent the salamanders from getting in the road.

So in the end, after lots of money and time being spent, the Children's Museum of the East End is on its way. Although the case is over, the so-called culprits are still MIA. But, hey, at least if the endangered critters ever decide to come back from their hiatus, they'll have some nice ramps and box culverts next door to entertain them, right?

And it is still there! He can hardly believe his eyes. He walks in and a bell on the inside of the door goes ding-a-ling. And out from behind a curtain comes a small old man.

"May I help you?" the old man asks.

"You will not believe this," the man says, "but thirty years ago, I left a pair of shoes here to be repaired."

The old man blinks. "Do you have a ticket?"

"Yes I do," the man says. And he produces it. The old man takes it, looks at it a moment, and then disappears behind the curtain. There is a wait. Then the old man is back.

"They will be ready tomorrow," he says.

Four years ago, the Federal Government and the State of New York granted the Suffolk County Parks Department a very large sum to be used for the purpose of fixing up the badly deteriorating historic building they own, Third House in Montauk.

This structure, to the east of town, is one of the great treasures of not only the town, but of the entire East End. It was built in 1741, served at first as an inn for travelers and ranch house for the oldest cattle ranch in the United States — Deep Hollow. In 1898, the victorious American Army under the command of General Shaftner, returned from the Spanish American War in Cuba to Montauk Harbor aboard troop ships, disembarked and set up an army tent camp here for a summer's maneuvers. The headquarters for this operation was Third House, where General Shaftner met with President McKinley visiting the troops and where a future President, Teddy Roosevelt, had a headquarters room for his Rough Riders horseback cavalry. It continued on as a cattle ranch, and then a Dude Ranch, right up until the Suffolk County Parks Department purchased it in 1992.

Today, it is in very disreputable condition. The paint is peeling off the trim, shingles are missing and several of the roofs are practically gone. Water leaks into the main dining room where the historic display is located. Over the winter the kitchen ceiling collapsed. And, citing budget cuts, the County Park ceased manning the facility after 5 p.m. Vandals sometimes came inside.

A phone call to the Parks Department asking about the large Federal donation earmarked for the repair of Third House five years ago produced this reply.

"We'll be fixing the place up this fall."

Meanwhile, the impasse between the Parks Department and our local ranch people, Rusty and Diane Leaver, seems to have cooled. The Leavers have a twenty-year agreement with the Parks Department to run a trail and wagon ride program on the Third House lands. They are in the tenth year of that agreement. The trail and wagon ride, which takes three hours and leaves from the nearby Third House barn, begins an hour before sunset every afternoon in the spring, summer and fall. In the spring and fall it is for the school children and their teachers from the local schools, and in the summertime it is for the summer visitors. It is called a "Living History" trail ride because, along the way, those on the ride encounter actors dressed up in historical costumes that bear a relationship to Third House, including not only Teddy Roosevelt but Captain Kidd and several other historical figures.

The spring school program has just ended. And the Leavers are planning to start the summer program this weekend, heading out on the three hour excursion at 5 p.m. and returning at 8. The Parks Department has made an issue about food — in the past there has been a BBQ along the way — and this year the Leavers, at the suggestion of the County Health Department, are going to conduct the ride without it, although participants can bring food or have it delivered to the site by a local restaurant such as the Shagwong, Rick's Crabby Cowboy, Herb's Market or Ron's Deli. Just call ahead. Cost of the Living History Ride will be $30 adults and $17 kids. For reservations call 668-2744.

It is hoped that the summer program will proceed without any further hitches from the Parks Department.

Kenny (continued from page 74)

necklaces away and getting a donation with selling the necklaces and putting the money in the jar for Kenny.

"The town won't let you sell anything on the beach except ice cream, candy and hot dogs. Not even suntan lotion. So I'm giving away the beads. And then you make a donation."

Also, Tanya showed me a large construction paper multi-colored book she had made for the occasion where you could write something for Kenny. There were more than fifty entries.

Someone named Mark wrote the following:

"Kenny is the true authentic identity of what I love about Amagansett. We all know and love the priceless gift he shares with us every weekend at the beach. It's just not the same without him."

Here are some other entries.

"Sending big hugs and kisses."

"We miss you and the malt cups."

"The lifeguards at I. W. have missed you immensely this past week!! Hurry back!!"

Tanya, who was turning page after page of entries in the book for me to read, said the lifeguards donated fifty dollars from their own pockets.

I donated two twenties.

"Half goes to the fire department," Kenny said.

If you want to send a donation, you can't.

Kenny looked at me crossly and said, "This is no charity." But you can leave one in the jar on the table at the back of Indian Wells Beach any time this coming weekend. If the weather is good, they'll be there. If you are a resident of the town you can get a beach sticker (which is free) to park there and if you aren't a resident of the town, you can still pull in for a few minutes during the day, slap Kenny on the back and leave a few bucks in the jar.

Just look for the two white banquet tables with the blue balloons and the yellow sign on the snow fence that reads WE MISS KENNY. You can't miss it. It's right across from CYRIL'S HOT DOGS.

Wilson is Emmet, Elle's boyfriend. Luke looked dapper in a suit and in a serious tone revealed, "It was really nice to get the chance to work with Reese again. She is really nice, a sweet-good person." Lee Ann Rimes performs the song "We Can" for the film. Rimes was arm-in-arm with her husband and both were glowing. Rimes shared, "When you see the film, it [the song] is such the perfect backdrop for the movie. I think the main thing is not to push people down to get what you want. To accomplish your goal with your head held high and to come through it with sweet success at the end."

Just when I thought there couldn't be a more star-studded turnout, Academy Award Winner Sally Field arrived! Apparently Sally was stuck in traffic and was worried she would miss the premiere. I don't think anything would have started without Sally, who plays Congresswoman Rudd, in the film. So, after an Academy Award on her shelf and a filmography that includes Forest Gump, Steel Magnolias, Smokey and the Bandit... come on she's Gidget! Why "LB2"? The answer is simple, "Reese wanted me to do it so I did it," Field replied. "I did it because I loved the first one and I just adore her! I'm very proud to be part of a movie that is for young women. They don't make very many movies for young women." Celebrity guests just kept pouring down the red carpet, including, Shoshanna Lonstein and hubby Josh Gruss. Peter Boyle exclaimed, "Well my wife is legally blonde and my daughters are legally blonde and I'm legally bald!" A sun-kissed Kelly Ripa dashed down the red carpet with husband, Mark Consuelos and her executive producer, Michael Gellman. But, not everyone was blonde...it looks like The King Of All Media, Howard Stern has a soft spot for blondes. Just ask his gorgeous model-girlfriend, Beth Ostrosky. These two giddy love-birds claimed they had nothing else to do so they decided to catch the premiere. Now, in all my years of celebrity interviews I was a bit nervous to approach Howard... who knows what he might say? I must admit, in some crazy hypnotic way he is very attractive, and he was surprisingly gentle with me and willing to chat. I guess with Beth in his life, he's a bit more approachable. Certainly seems that way. According to Howard, "We like to grill, that's our new thing. I got a Viking grill. Today I grilled portobello mushrooms, corn on the cob, asparagus boats and turkey burgers." He must be a good cook among other things, because Beth certainly seems satisfied. After the screening, VIP's went their separate ways. Most of the cast continued onto the exclusive after party at Hampton Hall, while Howard, Beth, Kelly Ripa and crew dined together at Savannah's.

Until next week...Life is short! You only live once, party on!

HEY, LET'S MAKE A FILM: A FILMMAKER'S DIARY...

By David Nemer

June 30- I still remember standing at the counter in Border's watching Keif ring up customers, as he told me about an idea he had for a script "we could shoot really low-budget, like $25,000-$30,000." It was April of last year. Keif, Donald and I had been talking about making a movie together since meeting through the Bellport Film Society three months earlier. I said to him, "Start writing. I'm sure we can come up with $25,000."

That was fifteen months and $95,000 ago. And now we're three weeks away from going into production on "Fallout."

Keif finished his script in October, and Donald and I loved it. We sat in Kitchen+Coffee in Bellport and came up with a plan to make it a reality. We'd try to raise $50,000 — a more reasonable budget with even some "breathing room" for contingencies. Keif and Donald celebrated the decision with vegan dishes and I ate a cheeseburger. Not long after, my good friend (and employer,) Lou Avignone, decided to become a partner in the film and fund most of the project.

Time passed.

In March, I met Frazer Dougherty, and as soon as we shook hands, I knew he was going to be someone special to our project. Frazer recognized our passion. He toured us through Pinewood West and agreed to let us use the studio for three weeks for $10,000 down, and he'd carry the balance. A once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. The only problem was that it was twenty percent of our budget for something which we had planned zero. Keif's parental anxiety over his script instantly kicked into full gear, as he feared the film wouldn't even get finished. Donald couldn't stop staring at the camera crane and dreaming up shots, and I didn't know what to do. Either this was fate kicking us or a bad decision waiting to doom us before we even got started. Finally, we hashed it out and agreed- we'd be fools to pass. We'll make up the money "somewhere else," we said. Let's do it.

Two weeks went by.

We met Tom Denier, a make-up/special effects genius, through a co-worker of Donald's. Tom loved our project and his role in the film is paramount. And we wanted him badly. Ten days later, he proposed a $20,000+ plan to us for $12,000. Our second once-in-a-lifetime in a month. I remember stepping outside Tom's studio in Brooklyn and watching Donald put one hand to his forehead and the other against the wall to steady himself. Our fortune kept getting better, even as our "breathing room" was turning into an asthma attack. But that night, we had a heart-to-heart with each other and made up our minds... we have a great script and got lucky with a great studio, so let's try to make everything else in this project live up to the same standards. We'll either figure out how as we go, or we'll crash trying. We walked back inside and told Tom, "Deal."

Since then, we've been lucky to have more talented people connect to the project- most importantly, people who see our vision and weren't afraid to make sacrifices. Greg Messina, our cinematographer, brought his crew on board, and through Frazer, we met our sound man, grip and set designer. Our friend, Dan Brenner loaned us his Sony DSR-500WS, as we're shooting on digital video. And with two ads in Backstage, we conducted many auditions until we finally found the actors we were ready to trust with our fate.

Last month, another friend became an investor in the film — which served as an inhaler — and I put in the rest we needed to keep it going. The downside was that I originally planned on using that money for editing. Now I'm really not sure what we'll do then. But you can't edit what you don't have... and anyway, by now, our original plan was like communism or New Coke- it only looked good on paper.

Still, I think we're on track with what we set out to do- give ourselves a chance to make the best film possible. Part of the trick just continues to be dealing with that god-awful thrill of uncertainty that comes with it.

When comparing these essays with the work he has done for Time, Rosenblatt said that when asked to give his take on a public event, he has to begin and end with the incident, even though he can range far and wide within the essay. "That kind of writing is like a blues riff, where the solo player goes off on his own, but has to come back to the melody. In this work, all the music is mine," he said, "and I like the freedom."

My favorite essay was the last one that Rosenblatt read, "Ashley Montana Goes Ashore in the Caicos." Inspired by a cover of the always anticipated swimsuit issue of Sports Illustrated showing the model Ashley Montana emerging — apparently bone dry — from the ocean in the Caicos Islands, Rosenblatt took the audience on a fast and funny review of celebrity and pop culture clichés, couched in the story of his "relationship" with Ashley Montana. It was, as one member of the audience pointed out, very much like poetry.

10 YEARS AGO IN DAN'S

THE GREATEST GAME IN THE HISTORY OF BASEBALL

By Dan Rattiner

The most exciting game of baseball I ever saw was not at Yankee Stadium. And it was not with the New York Mets at Shea. The most exciting game I ever saw took place last Thursday between grammar school kids, one team called the Brent's General Store and the other team that shall remain nameless. This nameless team was in first place, Brent's General Store was in second place and, as it was the last game of the season, if Brent's could beat them they would win the championship.

The game took place on the sandlot baseball diamond in back of the Springs School where many of these kids, age 6 to 11, attend classes. As you might have guessed by now, the championship at stake was not even the Little League Championship but the Little League Minor League title. Some of these kids, and they are both boys and girls, are only about two and a half feet tall and have strike zones measuring about ten inches. All dressed up in their uniforms they are quite a sight. With the parents cheering them on from the sidelines, they perform hesitantly in the limelight there. But they are cheered when they succeed, and they are consoled and complimented for trying hard when they fail.

The Brent's team has about three big kids on the team and the rest little kids who straggle out at the end of the batting order. As the pitchers struggle to get the ball over the plate, particularly with the little kids, there are a lot of walks. But there are also a lot of strikeouts. This is not softball. It is hardball. Some of the pitchers have big windups; the catchers are in full regalia. This is the big time.

My attraction to this particular game, of course, was that I have two kids on the Brent's team. They are David, age 10, and Gabriel, age 9, and they are the team's battery, the pitcher and catcher. I think this is great. I go to every game.

(In fact, I had promised George Plimpton I would make an appearance at the home of Chris and Priscilla Whittle in the Georgica section of East Hampton where a party was being given for Ken Miller's book The Hamptons with an introduction by George. I breezed in and I breezed out, past the guards and the carparks and the band and the food with the explanation, completely understood, that I had to be at a Little League game.)

I think the team went into this ball game with a very strong belief they were going to win. They had lost two of their first four games but since then had steadied and had won five in a row. What they found out in the first two innings of this final game was that they were playing a team of all big kids. Big kids who could turn a double play if necessary, big kids who could deal with a line drive. There was one 11-year-old after another in the line up and at the beginning of the third inning my son walked out to the mound almost in tears. The score was the other team five and Brent's nothing.

I should point out at this juncture a few minor changes in the rules from regular major league baseball. The league plays with a six run an inning maximum. Whenever one team gets six runs, even if there has been nobody out, their half of the inning is over. They change sides. A second rule is that they play six innings rather than nine innings. A third rule is that if any fielding team can get the ball back to the pitcher, then baserunners cannot advance. A fourth rule is that the winning team gets ice cream at Snowflake in Pantigo, or at John's Drive-In in Montauk if the game is in Montauk. And finally, with these games beginning at 6 p.m. they have an 8 p.m. curfew. Some of these kids have a normal bedtime of eight thirty.

The third inning started, and David, age ten, out on the mound had found his groove. He struck out the entire side of 10 and 11 year olds, some of them after carrying them to three and two counts. His whole mood improved. After each strike he would flash a big grin, pump his arm and hiss out a YESSSSS. He got a round of applause from the crowd as the team jogged off the field after the last called strike.

The pitcher on the other team fell apart in the bottom of the third. He could not get the ball over the plate. My son Gabriel, age 9, singled driving in two runs. This pitcher walked in three more. He remained in the game however. The other team's coach was determined, rightly, to talk him through this half of the inning. He finally struck out one of the Brent's little guys to end the inning.

Now, however, it was 5 to 5. A whole new ballgame.

David came out to pitch the top of the fourth, but he had lost some of the groove he had found during the third. He walked a few batters. Let up a hit. Before he pitched his way out of the inning, he had walked in one run. The Brent's were behind again 6 to 5.

I would like, at this juncture, to take the time to point out just how wonderful this competitive sport is for these children. Catching a fly ball is a fifty-fifty proposition for them. Throwing from shortstop to first is less than fifty-fifty. An outfielder will catch a ball when it rolls to a halt and then stand there fascinated as the base runners for the other team circle the bases. Each kid is taught by the coaches on how to do each thing. "Catch it and get rid of it right away." "Get under that fly ball. Don't let it get the best of you. That's it." Anyone who says competitive sports is bad for self esteem is out of his mind. Competitive sports are good for self esteem. It is good so long as everybody on the team is encouraged. And all these kids are. Motivation is victory and ice cream.

If things had looked bad early on for Brent's, what happened in the bottom of the fourth was pure disaster. The other team had brought in a new pitcher. In fact, he looked no different than any ten or eleven year old, but this kid was apparently making pitching his life's work. He blazed them in. And he had impeccable control. In nine pitches, he had wiped out the bottom of the Brent's batting order, little kids to be sure, with nine straight strikes. None of the three batters had even lifted the bat off their shoulders, much less swung at it. Sitting on the sidelines on a blanket with my 19-year-old son, who had bicycled over, I began to feel considerable anger. Strike two and strike three and they were not even sticking their bats out there.

As David pitched through the top of the fifth inning, unsteadily, but nevertheless without allowing a run, I noticed by my watch that the time was rapidly approaching seven thirty. Apparently the bottom of the fifth was going to be the last chance Brent's would have to win this game. And behind, 6 to 5, and facing the speedballer, there seemed little hope.

Nevertheless the two or three dozen parents on the Brent's side were screaming and shouting all kinds of encouragement and so it was not noticed when I got up from our blanket and walked to behind the batting cage to lend advice to our batters up close and personal. Wild horses could not have gotten me away.

The speedballer faced little David Gay as the first batter. David is about three and a half feet tall.

"Swing at the strikes," I yelled. "If it's a strike, it's a strike whether you swing at it or not. You might as well swing." David swung and missed. "Nice swing," somebody shouted. "Way to go David," somebody else shouted. "That's the swing."

"Don't go down with the bat on your shoulder," I yelled in case he had missed the point.

He swung a second time and missed. But then the pitcher lost concentration and pitched four straight balls. David Gay was on first.

If any of us thought, however, that the speedballer had come undone there in the bottom of the fifth, we were badly mistaken. I continued my demands that people at least swing at it. People did. They all missed. Pretty soon there were two outs, both strike outs, and up to the plate came our last chance, my ten-year-old son David Rattiner.

David is a big ten-year-old and qualifies as one of the "big kids." Through eight games he's learned to oil his mitt and spit off to one side and wipe his hands on his butt and bang the bat on the plate and he's had some good hits over the season. He swung at the first pitch from the speedballer and missed it by a foot. I said nothing.

"Nice cut!" somebody shouted.

He swung at the next pitch and missed that. The team, down one run, was also down to its very last strike. I looked at my watch. It was four minutes to eight.

Now you know what happened. I am not going to make this up. To my dying day I will remember the sound of that wonderful smash of bat meeting ball, and the graceful arc it took out of the infield and over the centerfielder's head to roll to a stop way off in the distance. David churned toward first and the centerfielder ran to retrieve it. These kids, for the most part, can throw about twenty-five feet and so relay after relay was required and as David rounded third and barreled into home, almost running down

At first, I thought both David Gay and David Rattiner were hurt as they thudded through this great puff of dust. I ran to them.

"Are you okay?"

"Yes," they screamed.

"You just won the ball game!" I shouted.

David had not realized it. He looked at me. I pointed to my watch. "Curfew," I shouted.

And then the entire team was leaping up and down as were all the mothers and fathers and the dogs were racing around barking and woofing at all the commotion and on the other side of the field there was silence. Bowed

About three games before this one, a parent had come around to me and had asked for twelve dollars and fifty cents. The team was not even near first place then but the parents were so proud of them they wanted to buy each kid a "participation" trophy. We all coughed up.

Larry Kom, the coach of the Brent's, heard this talk about "participation," from his post along the first base line. "Leave that word off the trophy," he said. "Who is going to know the difference in twenty years?"

And so now, with everybody leaping around, as chance would have it, there was this big cardboard box on the sidelines that had arrived just that morning.

The two teams made a double line, not as they do in professional baseball but as they do in professional hockey, and they passed by one another and shook each other's hands. It was apparent there were some on the other team who had been crying.

"Come on," their coach said. "We are good sports. There will be next year."

The teams quickly separated. And now, the gleaming gold trophies were removed from the cardboard box one by one and handed to each of the Brent's. The tiny wooden grandstand, about six rows high, became a place for the team to have its picture taken and about six parents with flash cameras appeared out front for the privilege. You would have thought the Queen of England was making an appearance. Anyway I publish one of these photos here. The trophies read MINOR LITTLE LEAGUE 1993. They are the Championship Trophies.

The joy extended in three vans and one stationwagon all the way down to Snowflake on the Montauk Highway. There, after everyone had gotten an ice cream and everyone was by the picnic tables out front, Larry Kom spoke to his troops.

"Let me tell you," he said, "you just beat a better team. They were all big kids. And you know why you won? Because you never gave up. Down five to nothing and you never gave up."

There was school the next day. The last day. Nobody gave a damn.

Deanne Indursky has much to celebrate, so music deal-maker hubby Art and son Blake gave her a celebration party at their Southampton estate. Friends came to toast Deanne - 300 strong. The buzz was that the entertainment would "bring the tent down". After an opening act ensemble that could sing gospel, rock and roll and R&B, came The Village People who had the place shouting YMCA so loud they could hear it at the New York Y.

To Chardonnay, Or Not To Chardonnay. That's A Good Question.

When summer hits the North Fork, winery events and benefits become hot news. Whether you subscribe to the ABC (Anything But Chardonnay) movement or are a diehard fan of the grape, there's a big bash planned that will satisfy your summer thirst. Following are some highlights.

Lenz Winery is proud to announce its upcoming 14th Annual Chardonnay World Classic, to be held this year on July 26 from 5:30 – 8 p.m. under a large tent in the courtyard. Tickets are $40 per person, which entitles attendees to sample as many Chardonnays as they care to in a casual, no-pretense setting. It also includes an Amplifier Vintner's tasting glass which is yours to keep. Over 60 Chards from around the world will be poured, which has, in years past, inspired our readers to vote this event "Best of the Best" Wine Event three times!

Novice and experienced tasters will gain insight into one of the world's most noble grapes, Chardonnay, and be treated to impressive samples from distinguished wine producing regions around the world.

Tickets are available for purchase by calling the winery directly at 800-974-9899 or 631-734-6010.

On the other side of the ABC coin, the Long Island Anything but Chardonnay & Merlot Festival will take place July 19 from 5:30-8 p.m. The following wineries invite you to the premiere of this event, featuring tastings of Viognier, Sauvignon Blanc, Cabernet Franc and Syrah, just to name a few:

Bedell Cellars, Corey Creek Vineyards, Galluccio Family Wineries, The Lenz Winery, Macari Vineyards, Osprey's Dominion Vineyards, Palmer Vineyards, Paumanok Vineyards, Peconic Bay Winery, Pellegrini Vineyards, Pindar Vineyards, and Wölffer Estate/Sagpond Vineyards. The event will be hosted by Martha Clara Vineyards.

The evening will include various selections from participants paired with hors d'oeuvres from Fauna Restaurant of Aquebogue.

A sampling of the menu includes sesame sushi, prosciutto-wrapped walnut arugula pesto with gorgonzola, crispy lobster gnocchi stuffed with ricotta, and strawberries stuffed with a mascarpone sabayon.

This is a wonderful opportunity to become acquainted with the diverse body of exceptional varietals that are produced on Long Island other than Chardonnay and Merlot.

Tickets: $30 in advance, $40 at the door. Space is limited, so advance purchase is recommended. Rain or shine.

Martha Clara Vineyards, 6025 Sound Avenue, Jamesport. Call 298.0075 ext. 0.

On The South Side: The inaugural Long Island Wine Classic on Saturday, August 23, will launch this year's 2003 Hampton Classic at the show's beautiful grounds in Bridgehampton. Sponsored by Wine Spectator, the event is designed for food and wine lovers and will take place in two parts: an afternoon Grand Tasting from 5-7 p.m. with gourmet cuisine from some of Long Island and Manhattan's foremost chefs, and an elegant wine dinner and auction from 7-10 p.m. Grand Tasting tickets are $150 and tickets for the Gala Dinner, which includes the Grand Tasting, are $400. Proceeds benefit the three Eastern Long Island Hospitals: Southampton Hospital, Central Suffolk Hospital, and Eastern Long Island Hospital. For more information and tickets please call 537-3177.

GRAND OPENING AT THE VAIL-LEAVITT WAS A "HOT" EVENT

The much-anticipated grand opening of Riverhead's recently restored 1881 music hall was a milestone for the many people, particularly WRIV radio station owner Vince Tria, who have worked so hard to make it happen. Although some attendees felt like they really were back in the 1880s when the brand new air conditioning system failed, Broadway choreographer George Faison rose to the occasion by spontaneously leading the house in a rendition of "There's No Business Like Show Business." Now that's grace under pressure.

Grand Ole Opening For Historic Riverhead Music Hall

By Roy Bradbrook

Just after eight o'clock on the hot summer evening of Sunday June 20, the dreams of a bunch of dedicated people became a reality as the opening announcement was made from the stage of the painstakingly restored 122-year-old Vail-Leavitt Music Hall in downtown Riverhead.

Built in 1881 and now on the National Register of Historic Theatres, this is one of a handful of 'upstairs' theaters still in existence in this country. Modeled after the famous (or infamous) Ford Theatre, the theater is reached via a grand staircase that leads you into the main auditorium.

The theater went through many problems and mini disasters, such as a fire back in 1925 in a down period of its existence when it had been converted into a Chinese restaurant. Then the theater continued its downward path of neglect really until last year when it became clear that something positive had to happen in order to safeguard grants for the restoration from the Riverhead Town Board from being lost.

At this point, local businessman and radio station owner Vince Tria joined the Vail-Leavitt board and, as Bob Barta, the board's vice president explained, "Vince had a clear vision and told us that we would have the theater restored and open within a year. Through his dedication, the hard work of all of the directors, the fundraising efforts from dedicated volunteers, and especially the wonderful cooperation from Supervisor Robert Kozakiewicz and patrons such as Bobby and Donna Goodale of Riverhead Building Supply, Ed Tuccio and Dee Muma from Tweed's Restaurant, and so many other good folk, this theater is a part of Riverhead's social life once again."

The festivities began earlier in the afternoon under a tent behind the theater where guests arrived for food and wine donated by 31 local restaurants and four wineries and wine suppliers. Among the guests was Suffolk County Clerk Edward Romaine, a candidate for County Executive who was full of praise for the venture.

"We have to concentrate on reducing urban sprawl. Downtown development and regeneration are absolutely the key to success. The reopening of this beautiful theater is another very positive step for Riverhead and all of Suffolk County." Later he went on to present the theater with a proclamation from Suffolk County in celebration of this landmark day.

After eating everyone progressed to the front of the theater, led by Bob Barta's Sunnyside Jazz Band, where Harry Denys, the president of the Vail-Leavitt's board cut the ceremonial ribbon. Then through the elegant lobby area up the grand staircase and we were able to see this restored beauty.

This is a theater auditorium to slowly explore and savor. The quality of the restoration is incredible. Splendid red curtains hang under the proscenium arch with a Commedia del Arte-inspired backdrop. Green and gold trim abounds and the original tin ceiling is once again resplendent. The whole effect is to transport you back to the heyday of the 1880s and again, one can only applaud the hours of dedicated work which have gone into ensuring authenticity while updating with such modern conveniences as air conditioning. But as things sometimes go, the 'Old Lady' decided to show herself without such modern accoutrements on this night because the air conditioning system refused to work!

There are several rather hackneyed sayings in the world of theater. One is "Break a leg," used from superstition rather than wishing success. Well, one of the featured artistes, Octavia Josephine Baker, took this too literally it seems for she did exactly that on Sunday morning! But in the tradition of "The Show Must Go On," Ms. Baker was carried onstage where she performed that part of her song and dance rou-

Tweed's Restaurant & Buffalo Bar

17 Main Strret, Riverhead
631-208-3151

By Jolie Trueman-Honey

Ed Tuccio loves Riverhead. And why not? His family first settled here in 1639. He was raised in a large house right on Main Street next to the old Suffolk Theater. His roots run deep. So when his sister suggested that he restore the old John J. Sullivan Hotel and open a restaurant on the premises, he jumped at the idea. "You can change the course of a community with a great restaurant," Tuccio said as he sat with my husband and me in the back booth of Tweed's, now beginning its fourth year and every bit the success that its owner once envisioned.

The larger-than-life Tuccio, whose real estate business is well-known on the North Fork, parlayed his interests in history, Americana and the bison to create this unique eatery.

Named after the notorious Boss Tweed of Tammany Hall, the ambiance of the restaurant, fittingly, puts one in mind of an expensive turn-of-the-century men's club with a slight romantic twist. Tuccio decided to let the experts do what they do best; so he hired Betsy Meyer of Water Mill to design the interior. Large wooden shutters adorn the long wall opposite the bar giving the room a private and intimate feel. The wooden bar, circa 1890's, is adjacent to elegantly appointed tables with maroon and white cloths and large comfortable leather chairs. The lighting fixtures are reproductions of gas lamps, and the end of the room is graced by a handsome fireplace, its mantle adorned by a changing collection of antique bric-a-brac.

We began our sumptuous meal with oysters served three ways. The Oysters Au Naturelle were sweet and tender served with a tangy red wine mignonette for dipping. For those who prefer the cooked variety, the Oysters Rockefeller were absolutely sinful with a Pernod-infused creamed spinach and hollandaise sauce. My personal favorite was the Oysters Portland, enveloped in sauteed leeks and crisp bacon.

Our next course was a shared bowl of Long Island clam chowder. Neither a tomato-based Manhattan, nor a creamed New England, this recipe originated right here; it belonged to Tuccio's great grandmother, Deborah Hallock, the last family member born on the original Hallock homestead. Made from a fresh clam stock, the chowder was chock full of clams, with potatoes, celery, onion and a variety of interesting herbs. And what made it unique was its unexpected kick. From what? Nobody's talking; the recipe is a guarded secret!

Next, we had the Tweed's Bistro Salad. Confession: I've eaten at Tweed's a number of times before I did this review. The good reviewer would have tried a different salad. But I so love this delightful combination of field greens with crumbled blue cheese, chopped roasted beets, apples, and crunchy candied walnuts lightly dressed in a walnut oil vinaigrette, that I threw responsibility to the wind and indulged myself.

When Ed Tuccio hired executive chef Jeffrey

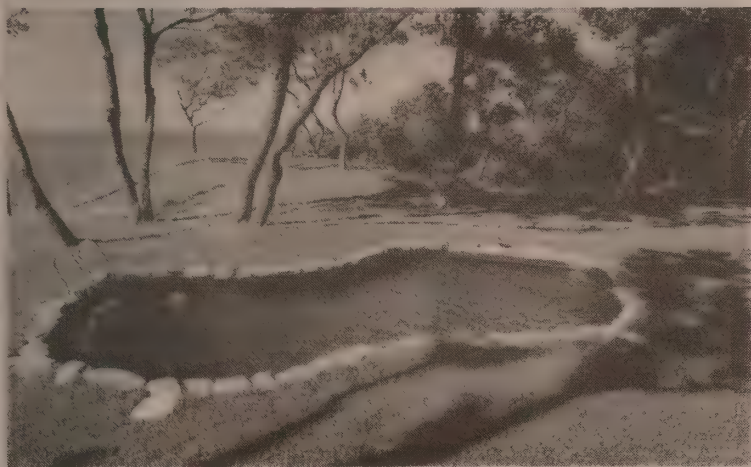

Trujillo, he was so impressed with Jeff's background, (CIA graduate, seven years at the Coast Grill, stints at both Tierra Mar and Atlantica, trained with Craig Claibourne and Daniel Boulud) that he gave him free reign with the menu with one caveat: bison must be included.

Tuccio, you see, has a passion for bison, both as animal and entree. In fact, he raises his own herd right in Riverhead. Get him started and he will tell you that the bison is the only animal that does not get cancer; it is faster than the horse, able to tolerate tremendous fluctuations in temperature; it can take

Big Event of the Week

The Icehouse Gallery Opens In Greenport

"Nature Reconstructed," by artist Kathy Levine, is the inaugural show for the new gallery, which opens in the former Whitney Art Works space on First Street. Levine's juxtaposition of nature and urban elements elicits a sensitivity in viewers as well as a sense of intimacy between man and his rapidly transforming environment.

The Icehouse gallery occupies the upstairs space, while the downstairs has been converted into a screening room for independent short, documentary and feature films by artist Hannah Gray. Ms. Gray plans to present, among other exhibits, the work of incarcerated children as a revolving show in the screening room.

Opening reception for "Nature Reconstructed" is Saturday, July 5, from 4-7 p.m. Call 477-0745.

Hail Caesar: Happy 79th on July 4!

Despite the name of this popular salad, it was not tossed by or for the famous Roman dictator who was assassinated in 44 BC, but was actually created a very long way from the empire in an Italian restaurant in, of all places, Tijuana, Mexico. Chef/owner Caesar Cardini, an Italian immigrant who undoubtedly WAS named for Julius, and his brother, Alex, lived in San Diego but operated the restaurant in Mexico to circumvent Prohibition during the 20s, and Hollywood types like Clarke Gable, W.C. Fields and Jean Harlow were regulars.

According to legend, the chef made the first Caesar salad on July 4, 1924, preparing it for a group of Hollywood stars after a long weekend of partying in Mexico. Their departure was delayed by morning rain, supplies at the restaurant were running low after the weekend, and Cardini had to whip up a meal for the group before their return to Hollywood, or so the story goes.

The original contained Romaine lettuce, coddled (slightly cooked) eggs, garlic, Worcestershire sauce, lemon juice, olive oil, freshly grated Parmesan cheese, croutons, salt and pepper. No anchovies. Almost everyone agrees on this. No one really knows when the anchovies got in, but they definitely enhance the flavor. The anchovies should be mashed in as the dressing is made, so even those who dislike straight anchovies will enjoy the salad. Dry or Dijon mustard and red wine vinegar are also frequently added ingredients.

My favorite version of Caesar salad is made with freshly squeezed lemon juice, hard-boiled eggs, mashed garlic cloves, freshly ground black pepper, homemade garlic croutons, and grated Parmesan cheese. Coddled eggs are soft as they are not completely cooked, and I generally avoid them in favor of the fully cooked variety.

Following are two recipes, one from Country Living magazine that uses cooked eggs and adds sautéed shrimp for interest, and one from Jeffrey Russell, the new chef at O'Mally's Restaurant in Southold. Jeffrey's Caesar dressing was adapted from a vegetarian version he came across and is a very refreshing change from the creamy gook that has given the noble salad such a bad name in many eating establishments. He serves it solo or topped with grilled chicken, shrimp or salmon. It's one of the best Caesars you will find on the East End!

Local romaine lettuce is now available at our farmstands here on the North Fork, so while there may be a dearth of sweet corn with which to celebrate this July 4, toss a Caesar and raise a glass filled with ice and post-Prohibitionist spirits to the memory of Mr. Cardini, who doubtless would have enjoyed that cocktail on domestic soil. Bon appetit!

Shrimp Caesar Salad

Reprinted from Country Living magazine, February 1999.

Recipe makes 4 servings.

Ingredients

8 Tbs. olive oil
4 cloves garlic sliced
1 8-inch piece Italian bread, cut into 1 inch cubes

1 lb. jumbo shrimp, shelled and de-veined
1/4 cup water
2 Tbs. fresh lemon juice
1 large egg yolk
1/2 teas. dry mustard
1/4 teas. salt
1/8 teas. freshly ground black pepper
1 2-oz. can rolled anchovy fillets
1 large head (local) romaine lettuce, torn into pieces
1/4 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Method

1. In large skillet, heat 2 Tbs. oil over medium heat. Add garlic and sauté just until lightly brown. With slotted spoon remove garlic to small bowl and reserve. Add bread cubes to oil in skillet. Sauté until croutons are lightly browned on all sides. Remove to large salad bowl.

2. In same skillet, add another Tbs. of oil and the shrimp. Sauté until shrimp are pink and firm, 4-5 minutes. Transfer shrimp to bowl with croutons. Set aside to cool.

3. Prepare dressing. In 1-quart saucepan, combine water, lemon juice, egg yolk, mustard, salt and pepper. Heat just to boiling over very low heat, stirring constantly. When mixture starts to bubble, remove from heat and set aside 5 minutes to cool slightly.

4. In a blender, combine yolk mixture and remaining 5 Tbs. of oil, reserved garlic and 2 anchovies. Cover and blend at high speed until dressing is thick and smooth.

5. To mixture in salad bowl, add romaine, 3 Tbs. cheese, and the remaining anchovies. Toss to combine. Cover and refrigerate along with dressing and remaining cheese until ready to serve, or time that could be accomplished whilst seated. Full marks to her for turning up. She was very professional, in contrast to other listed "Stars" and "Celebrities" who did not. Then there is, "It will be alright on the night." Well, Darryl Tookes took exception to the heat and the fact that his microphone was ill-adjusted but George Faizon, a noted Broadway choreographer, put everything in true perspective when in an unscripted and impassioned address, just as the audience was breaking for intermission, reminded everyone that this bijou theater does not really need amplification if artists remember how to project. He then led everyone in an impromptu exposition of "There's no Business like Show Business."

No one expects perfection on a night like this but the chosen acts and the running order did not do justice to the theater and the work that has been put into it. If the theater is really going to reach out into the community, it was a pity that more local talent could not have been used. The tremendous restoration work of the Vail-Leavitt Theater is now largely completed and once again all concerned deserve all the praise in the world for having the courage to take this on and end up with an absolute gem of a theater.

Now, in some ways really, comes the hard part. It will be interesting to see what the forward artistic policy and the balance of productions are going to be. The world of theater is hard and unrelenting and nowhere are you only as good as your performance on the one night your audience member is there.

Building a good reputation is hard and losing it is only too easy. One can only hope that the foresight, resolution, and above all professionalism shown in the restoration will carry over to the production phase.

Among all the festivities there was an undertone of sadness because Vince Tria, the man whom everyone agrees has been the catalyst and dynamo behind this project and that without whom this project would never have been completed by now, ironically was not able to be there for the opening night celebrations.

Vince is currently sick and out of action but all of the good wishes to him for a speedy and full recovery were truly heartfelt.

Using An 18th Century Medium To Express 21st Century Ideas

"Running Commentary," a show at Berger House in Greenport

"The Last Hard Road"

By Susan Whitney Simm

Artist Eliza Brewster grew up with the footlights of Broadway in her eyes. Her mother, lyricist Dorothy Fields, penner of the classic "I'm in the Mood for Love," was the daughter of Lou Fields, a partner in the very successful vaudeville act Weber & Fields.

So it is comes as no surprise that this talented artist marches to the beat of her own drum. It is also, after all those years watching rehearsals as child, not surprising that her career is not on the stage.

Eliza studied printmaking at both the Rhode Island School of Design and New York's Art Students League. After a show of her etchings at the Whitney in 1970, she attended a show at the same museum that would change her life.

"Smashing Peace on Earth"

"The show featured quilts, not art quilts, just quilts, and I loved the tactile surface of them. But I can't sew. And that was that until I had a baby and, as you know, etching, with all its caustic chemicals, is not compatible with a child. So I stopped creating for awhile."

Soon after, Eliza met Sam, her husband, and moved with him to his farm in northeast Pennsylvania, "the middle of nowhere." And there she decided to start using art quilts to express her vision. So she made one and, to her delight, it was instantly accepted into a big show in Kentucky.

"No problem! she remembers thinking. This is easy. Of course I've never gotten into that show again!"

But she has shown all over the country since in many different venues. And her work has become less and less traditional and more and more abstract. Inspired by Robert Rauchenberg, Eliza kept working and found her work becoming more political as well, inspired by her outrage over the Bush-Gore election.

"Before that I had made quilts that, though unusual, were not that controversial. And not all the quilts on a grizzly bear yet has fur as soft as cashmere, and is highly intelligent. And as food, it is veritably indistinguishable from beef in its flavor, color and texture, but...it is far more healthy. In fact, bison, having less than 2% fat, is lower in calories, fat and cholesterol than chicken or fish. (Tuccio's herd on Roanoke Avenue, by the way, is for breeding, not eating!)

So, Chef Trujillo quickly educated himself on the best ways to prepare bison and it has become a staple of Tweed's menu. We had bison filet mignon served rare with choron sauce (a classic bernaise with the addition of pureed tomato) accompanied by cream of garlic mashed potatoes and crisp asparagus and green beans. It had me fooled; I could have been eating the finest beef with just one difference; the portion is much larger. It was succulent, tender and juicy.

However, bison is only one of the many delectable choices on the menu. Our other entree selection was the Sashimi Sesame Tuna served over daikon slaw with wasabi and hoisin sause. The presentation was stunning, the slices of tuna encrusted with sesame seeds surrounded by dollops of the tart wasabi and curlicues of the sweetened hoisin.

We also tried the totally carb free vegetable lasagna, a mouth-watering concoction of slices of grilled eggplant, roasted red peppers, fresh mozzarella with a tomato coulis and basil oil. Who needs pasta?

While there was simply no room to try them on this occasion, other favorite entrees include the Duck Two Ways, which consists of a leg confit and a pan-seared breast with cranberry reduction, and the rack of lamb with French mustard herbs and Japanese bread crumbs which is out of this world. The fish selections are also always fresh and interestingly prepared as Chef Jeff is well-schooled; his father and brother are both commercial fishermen. This man knows his fish.

If you've room for dessert, pastry chef Diane Ilardi, a graduate of the Cordon Bleu in London, can oblige.

We tried the creme brulee served in a wide shallow ramekin which allowed for more crackled sugar on top! The entire experience of dining at Tweed's is a pleasure. The food is absolutely first rate. As Tuccio said, "I didn't want to have to travel to the Hamptons for a great meal." But the atmosphere is comfortable, laid-back and welcoming.

With the Vail-Leavitt Music Hall reopening literally around the corner, I can't think of a better way to spend an evening of fine dining and entertainment.

in this show are controversial or political. But I needed to find a way to express my outrage, and I found I could do that with my quilts. If people say that I'm not patriotic as a result, well, it's my form of expression."

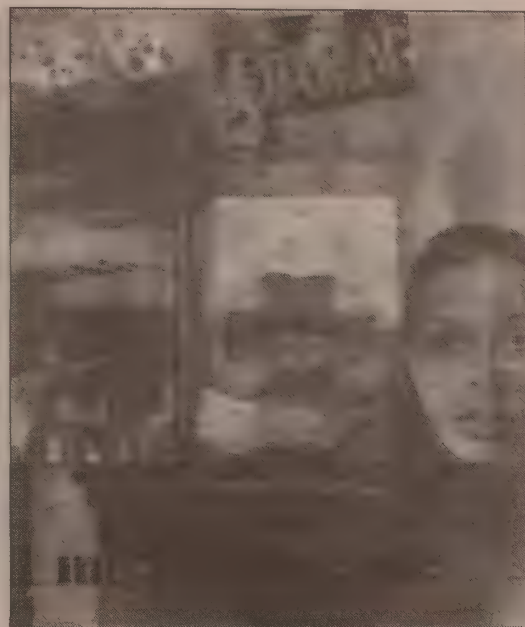

Eliza collects odd magazines for the unusual images she finds there. She then makes prints of the images and incorporates them into her quilt designs. The images are sometimes repeated to great effect with other images superimposed over them, as in "Smashing Peace on Earth" and the spell-binding "White Quilt #1." Creating a wonderful texture is clearly important to the artist, and this is most evident in "Two's Company, Three's A Crowd," which combines a bright primary-colors-on-black batik fabric with multicolored Oriental letters that sprawl across women's faces. The colors are often vibrant, as in "Tender Acts of Adoration," a commentary about physical abuse of women with a centerpiece of lips over which are superimposed a red cross, as in the symbol of the organization, which gives the effect of strategically applied lipstick. The effect is fascinating, the eye keeps returning to those lips that so perfectly and horrifyingly convey, in the context of the quilt, the artist's message.

Words are also part of Eliza's quilts. A quilt that was banned from the show by the director of the Stirling Historical Society (which owns the gallery where the show will be exhibited), entitled "The Last Hard Road," includes the words, "Godless and Proud of it," which does not necessarily reflect the opinion of Ms. Brewster. It may just represent to her an aspect of society that she is not afraid to portray.

The show is not about beauty, although a number of the quilts are extraordinarily beautiful. It is about making statements and expressing personal feelings through one's art, something Eliza Brewster has mastered through her powerful use of an unusual medium.

"Running Commentary" opens Friday, July 4, with a reception from 5-7 p.m. Berger House Gallery is located in the municipal parking lot next to Latham's farmstand. All proceeds from the show are being generously donated to the Stirling Historical Society.

Hampton Retreats: You Deserve It

For the upscale Hamptons renter, a new real estate service offers all the amenities of a fine hotel at the vacationer's rental home. Hampton Retreats, founded by Brad Zackson, a New York real estate developer, caters to those whose vacation needs include 24-hour concierge service, exquisitely decorated homes, and plenty of spa pampering.

The company offers short and long-term rentals at some of the Hampton's finest homes, and then adds five-star hotel amenities to each house. "Each vacation home will be appointed with the finest linens, towels, bathrobes, slippers, toiletries, china and gift baskets, all designed by Carleton Varney to create the Hampton Retreats brand." Varney, the president and owner of Dorothy Draper & Co., is well-known for his interior design work. He adds his design expertise to each home, and selects products that enhance each vacationer's experience. Some of the products he chose for the homes include Jacques Levine spa slippers, Avance spa products, Frette sheets and china and scented candles from his own line. "I am overjoyed to be involved with this unique company. I have an opportunity to bring my designs to a wide range of homes located in one of the most beautiful places in the world," says Varney.

Hampton retreats claims to benefit not only the renter but also the homeowner, as a house's value is enhanced by Varney's interior designs. Furthermore, by renting out their properties, homeowners are able to make money on their investments.

While rentals have gotten a slow start this year, Hampton Retreats may have found an untapped and profitable corner of the market. Nowhere else can renters get 24-hour concierge and spa service while luxuriating in a beautifully-designed house. For the Manhattanite in search of respite from the smoggy, gray, hard-working city life, Hampton

Retreats provides the answer. The company will make sure your vacation is filled with relaxation, beauty, and top-of-the-line comfort. They will deliver newspapers, food, DVD's, wine, fresh flowers, music, restock your refrigerator and bar, provide you with a private chef, take care of your children, do your laundry, offer full spa services such as massage and facials, get you movie tickets, drive you to a restaurant or to the beach, and even plan your mid-summer party. You'll hardly have to lift a finger, but if you do, make sure to take advantage of the personal trainer Hampton Retreats will have at your disposal.

Hampton Retreats has homes located throughout the Hamptons, all of which are valued from 1 to 25 million dollars. Carleton Varney handles all aspects of interior design, travel arrangements are made by ProTravel International, and American Leisure has been chosen for spa services. The providers selected are renowned for their world-class, high-quality services, which can be delivered at "a moment's notice." Anke Albert, who relocated from Germany to Southampton, was selected as hotel manager after an international search. She "understands Hampton Retreats' vision and possesses the experience and know-how to implement it." Those who select the company for their vacation plans can be assured that they will be well-taken care of and that their every need will be met by this internationally-renowned team.

Brad Zackson's lengthy list of accomplishments in real estate development spans the globe. He started by managing and supervising residential units in New York for Fred Trump's "Trump Organization," and then moved into developing, managing, marketing and selling real estate. He developed 21 Astor Place and Kings Bay Landing in New York. He has also worked in development in China, and he created the "Singapore Project" in Sao Paulo, which used an innovative design of "high-density rather than high-rise framework."

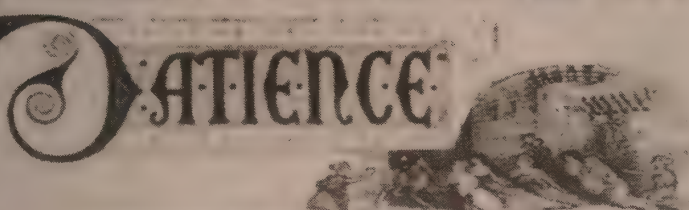

Hampton Retreats holds promise as a company with something new to offer Hampton's vacationers. For those who want 5-star hotel service in the comfort of a beautiful, spacious home, Hampton Retreats will provide you with the vacation of your dreams. As Brad Zackson states, "Our team of first class travel, design, hotel management and real estate professionals, will create a new standard for luxury living to meet every renter's expectation. Our clients will be consistently surprised and delighted with our superior planning and attention to detail. We will think of their needs and desires before they do." Isn't that what everyone wants - to have their needs and desires anticipated? With Hampton Retreats, it seems the company has already anticipated what every upscale New Yorker wants: the perfect, personalized, well-planned vacation with 24-hour attention and care.

—Rachel May
Hampton Retreats can be reached at 425 County Road 39 A, Suite 202, Southampton, NY 11968, or via Rubenstein PR: (212) 843-9328.

HOME FOR THE SUMMER... By David Lion RATTINER

It's the game.

There is this secret world that nobody seems to talk about when it comes to guys and girls. That secret world is relationships from the guy's perspective. Most of our TV shows out there address how much women stress out over guys, but there are few shows that address how much guys stress out over girls. It is amazing to me how much fear and anticipation guys go through when it comes to asking out a girl. It is also amazing to me how much effort and thought goes into a relationship from the guys' perspective that goes unnoticed.

Last weekend I spent Saturday night and Sunday afternoon in Boston visiting some friends that are staying in Boston for the summer. My friend Tom, who also goes to Northeastern, and is taking some classes this summer, was driving with me because he spent Friday night in East Hampton for a quick visit with his family, then hitched a ride with me back to Boston. The entire drive, Tom would not stop talking about his most recent relationship and its most recent demise.

"She says she wants a break for the summer which I don't understand," Tom was saying. "I haven't talked to her since we have taken this break, it has been more than a week. What do you think I should do? Do you think I should call her?"

"I don't know man. You got to do what you think is right."

"I'm so stressed out. What the hell am I supposed to do?"

"It will be alright."

After about two hours of going back and forth about him being stressed out, strategizing, then me telling him everything was going to be fine, we finally got tired of hearing each other talk and just drove. We did not even have the radio on, it was just the road, Tom, and me. It was a really old-fashioned bonding trip.

We got to Boston around dinnertime so we headed out to a diner that Tom knew about in a suburb outside of the city called Chestnut Hill. The diner was very old fashioned, like something out of the fifties. They play swing music and the walls are painted retro along with booths that ran down the walls to the end of the building. It seemed like a good place.

Tom and I sat down, looked at the menu, and immediately ordered some milkshakes. Tom was looking uneasy and once again started up the conversation about his ex-girlfriend. "You know I think that she is already seeing somebody else. I think that is why she says she wants to be just friends this summer. It gives her the excuse to go out with this other guy. I'm on the back burner now man, I can't believe that I am on the damn back burner."

"It will be alright man. You got to relax, have some of your milkshake," I said.

It was at this point that the waitress came over and asked us if we were ready to order. Tom looked at her and instantly I could tell that he liked her. We ordered some pancakes.

"What do you think of that waitress?" Tom asked.

"She's pretty," I said.

The pancakes came out and we started eating. Tom was shaking his leg, a nervous habit, and accidentally hit his plate with his knee causing the pancakes to go flying into the air and crashing down on the floor, syrup and all. I started laughing while Tom got down and the floor and started cleaning it up with his napkin. The waitress came back over and helped, as well.

She told Tom not to worry about it and that she would get him a new batch free of charge. She came back out ten minutes later with a new stack of pancakes for Tom which he carefully ate. I asked for the check.

Tom looked at me in despair, I could see he was scheming something. "I think I'm going to ask out that waitress."

"Are you serious?"

"Yeah I'm serious. If she says no we have to leave fast though. Do you think that I should?"

"If you want to, it takes a lot of guts to do that I think." The waitress came back; I started to pay the bill.

Tom looked at her and said, "Excuse me what is your name?"

"Julie."

"Julie, can I take you out tomorrow night for dinner?"

She smiled, "Umm, I have to think about it." Tom remained stable and cool; inside he must have been going crazy.

"Well it's okay if you don't want to," Tom said.

"Well, I don't want to give out my number but I'll take yours."

"That's fine."

He started to write down the phone number using her pen and pad that she uses to write down orders. She left, we said thank you, and walked out of the diner. When we got outside Tom looked at me. "Do you think that she is going to call?"

"I don't know stud, but you are the completely the man. I don't think I've ever seen that done before."

"Thanks Dave. You know something?"

"What's that?"

"You're a good friend."

Shop 'til You Drop.....With Maria Tennariello

Great weather, finally and the shopping is a breeze. Fourth of July is the biggest holiday of the season here in the Hamptons, so get all the deals you can while the deals are there.

Collette Country Store on Main Street in Southampton is a cool yard sale happening with antiques and heirlooms to knick-knacks, vintage clothing, Lily Pulitzer and furniture consignments. What a hoot! Right around the corner on Jobs Lane is Petite Collette with a wonderful unique child's boutique that includes from playful new clothing, shoes and accessories to the best in designer clothing. You must check this shop out...Trust me on this one.

The Michael Perez Gallery in Southampton is known for selling Pop Artist Michael Perez's original, colorful and huge paintings of women's faces. If your walls don't allow the space to house an original, how about an original limited edition Michael Perez T-shirt's for women and men, hats, totes and great looking denim jackets. The women's T-shirts are embellished with Swarovski crystal rhinestones and studs. Also new at the gallery is the exclusive handbag collection from pop artist Debbie Brooks. Her bags are all the rage with celebs. Check his website at www.michaelperezgallery.com

Complements Lingerie on Main Streets, Southampton and Bridgehampton has designer wear at affordable prices. Look for LaPerla, Manuel Canovas, Karla Coletta, Calvin Klein, Anne Cole, Vix, Gottex and Lablanca to name a few. And for the ladies, that extra special sexy lingerie is their specialty here.

On Montauk Highway in Southampton, East End Clambakes has their Summer 2003 menu ready for the holiday. Their new takeout store houses Captain Phil's famous seafood specialties and they are now available to go, go, gone...Call your order in advance or walk in and order a tasty seafood meal to go from their daily specials. A great idea for the beach, picnics, family gatherings and more. This shop specializes in clambakes, cocktail parties, weddings, corporate events, formal dinner parties, BBQs and more. Call 631-726-5360 or 726-6351.

Casual Home on County Road 39 in Southampton is doing the 10% to 40% off on select furniture and accessories. Love this store for their classic, country home furnishings. If you are looking for those hard to find counter and bar stools, there is a nice selection here.

Right across the Montauk Highway at Flying Point look for a tremendous selection of outdoor furniture, patio and pools statues, teak tables, chairs, lounges, umbrellas and so much more. The prices are unbelievable here. I'll take two of everything!

Set back off the Montauk Highway in look for Barnarage Antique & Home Furnishings. The new shipment has just arrived and Stan is having a July 4 "Blow Out Sale" on all of their home furnishings and accessories for both indoors and outdoors. Bet you find something you love here.

Check out the prices at Treasure Island in the Wainscott Village Center on Montauk Highway in East Hampton. The bad weather has forced them to cut their prices earlier this year and they have a tremendous selection of furniture in stock and ready for quick delivery. A great opportunity to buy that favorite outdoor set that you have been eyeing all summer.

At the Red Horse Plaza on Montauk Highway in East Hampton The Down Factory Store at the Elegant John has it all! They guarantee you the lowest prices in the country as well as the Hamptons. My

Dan's Fashion

The Sandal Scandal (Sort Of)

We need to seriously address a hideous fashion faux pas parading down village sidewalks throughout the Hamptons. The demon of which we speak is the high-heel shoe worn well before cocktail hour.

We are at the beach, in the countryside—not the big city. Walking into the Golden Pear at 10 a.m. in high-heels, is not only tacky, it's completely stupid. You look like a lady of the evening the morning after.

Shoes are very important for a myriad of reasons. When I was sixteen I had a two week internship at the State Department in Washington, D.C. On the eve of my departure my mother came to inspect the contents of my valise. A look of sheer horror came over her face as she extracted a pair of red Pappagallo low-heeled pumps. My mother, the daughter of a man who worked in diplomatic intelligence told me in her imperious manner that I had barely avoided causing a complete break down of international relations. All because of a pair of red shoes that were that moment's fashion must-have.

I was told that in most foreign countries only prostitutes wear red shoes, sort of a calling card if you will. If I were to wear these offending shoes I would breach protocol and Ambassadors would line up to present the Secretary of State with letters documenting the a front and the threatened end to diplomatic relations.

You may not start a cold war over your high heels but a label should be attached saying; worn before sun-set these heels could cause irreparable damage to your reputation for taste and style.

It is high- cheap in a resort area to wear anything higher than an inch during the day. Weddings are an exception to this rule. As, our Espadrille wedges. The canvas makes them casual and appropriate. If you are addicted to a heighty heel at least make it a strappy one.

With all the sensational sandals this season kicking the high heel habit should be a snap this summer. Jack Rogers

Jack Rogers' sandals are a mainstay in tiny resort areas. You can pick up a pair at Saks Fifth Avenue in Southampton. If you are just waking up to the fact you are among the erstwhile offenders, run in to Saks, and just dump your offending pair of heels in a trash bin. Don't let anybody see you. Jack Rogers are great because you can order them in any color, fabric and heel combination imaginable. Thinking ahead to Indian summer, suede combinations are available to order now at www.jackrogers.com.

Saks Fifth Avenue: 1 Hampton Road, Southampton

Miss Trish of Capri

Just because you've kicked a tacky habit doesn't mean you have to forewear a drop-dead glamour. Miss Trish of Capri's sandals are brilliant and perfect for the Audrey Hepburn in all of us. She has her sandals made in Capri by a man whose family has long turned out shoes for the jet set including Brigitte Bardot. She gets her stylish flourishes from a man in Florence who adds Svorski crystals to her elegant sandals. This season Miss Trish has added kitten heels and high heels for evening.

Miss Trish of Capri sandals are available in Southampton at Steven Stolman. She's also set up an out door summer boutique at Wolffer Estates Farm Stand on Montauk Highway. She and James Spodnik of Drake Design painted a vintage Volkswagen van lime green set off with a Barbie-pink awning from which to sell her to sell her seashell, starfish, and sea horse motif sandals.

Steven Stolman: 83 Main Street, Southampton and Wolffer Estate Farm Stand: 3312 Montauk Highway

Calypso in East Hampton has adorable Beverly Feldman flip-flops. With their turquoise-paisley pattern on the flop and clear rhinestones attached to the flip, they are fun for the beach or a cocktail party paired with silk-shantung Capri's.

Calypso: 1 Main Street, East Hampton

Lily Holt

Palm Beach's Lilly Holt is a favorite with the soignée Hamptons crowd. You'll catch Emilia Fanul in a pair shopping or at a clambake. Her bejeweled creations are the last word in bohemian resort chic.

CLASSIC CARS WITH BOB GELBER

Collector Cars

At about this time each year, e-mail arrives asking me what exactly makes a car collectible. Unfortunately, the questions often come from owners of sixties four door Dodge Dart types of cars. But I'll say it again: IF A CAR IS DESIRABLE THE YEAR IT WAS BUILT, IT WILL BE DESIRABLE TWENTY YEARS LATER.

Of course, some car buffs will argue with me about that point, but there is definitely a pecking order when it comes to collectibles. Here are some basic rules.

REPUTATION: The advertising theme for Packard was, "Ask the man who owns one." Great advertising copy, and a question that one can ask the owner of any classic car. Its reputation can be great, like that of any collectible Mercedes, and conversely, negative albeit quirky, like the reputation of the thousands of post-war British sports cars. Their owners adore leaky convertible roof and side curtains, strange electrical systems and rock hard suspensions.

STYLING: Let's face it, life is too short to drive an ugly car. Cars that blew your mind years ago will probably still blow you away today. Study the shape of a well restored 1949 Jaguar XK 120M roadster, and dare argue this point with me.

RECOGNITION: Over the years, a so-so car can become more collectible if it "catches on" with the public. Woody station wagons are a good example. At one time, they could be bought dirt cheap. Then collectors realized that no manufacturer would ever build a wooden car again. Early Volkswagen Beetles and Mini Coopers have gone up in value, obviously because of all the attention their new retro clones are getting.

INNOVATION: Important innovation doesn't hurt. The first '32 Ford Flathead V-8s, the '55

Mercedes 300 SL with those uplifting doors, the first Corvette and Thunderbird, front wheel drive, disc brakes, massive horsepower... and the list goes on and on.

BODY STYLE: You don't have to be a car genius to know that convertibles are the hot collector ticket. Next would be coupes, and a distant last would be four door sedans. The only four-door sedans that would have any collector appeal would either be 1920s big American iron, or pre and post WW2 foreign sedans, like Rolls and Bentleys. Strangely, today, there are some very hot and desirable four-door sedans on the market. Take the Japanese rice rockets, the big bore Mercedes and BMW Autobahn storm troopers. They might possibly have strong collector appeal in the future.

CONDITION: I've seen old cars that are in such good original condition that they are desirable for that very reason alone. In fact, I purchased one about fifteen years ago, a 1958 Thunderbird coupe from a local estate in the Hamptons. Never really liked this model, because, after the two seat "Birds", it was very square looking. In fact it was called the "Squarebird" by collectors. I bought it because it was thirty years old and had 16,000 original miles on the odometer, and was in absolutely perfect original condition. It was white with aqua leather seats. But I had a love-hate relationship with the car from day one. I certainly respected its museum condition, but it just wasn't my kind of car. A year later, someone who really loved the car bought it from me.

RESTORATION: To continue a thought from the above, a good unrestored car is worth more than a good restored car for one simple reason, you know what you are getting. A friend of mine ( and Larry , you know who you are) bought an old Packard four door convertible that had been sitting in a field in Quogue for over forty years. It was barely recognizalbe as a Packard, much less a car. He gave it to one of the premier restoration shops on Long Island, and many months and thousands of dollars later, a show-quality Packard was reborn. As beautiful as this car was, to me it was a choice was the king-size feather bed, that is the heaviest in the country. No kidding! After a days work at Dan's and the shopping trips, let me tell you, I sleep like a log...No kidding! Don't forget about the great pillows, comforters, sheets, towels with the same deals. Phone orders are also welcomed here. Give Frank and Richard a call at 631-324-2636 and tell them I sent you...

Love the silver charms for your charm bracelet at London Jewelers on Main Street in East Hampton. I bought one each for my little darlins, Krista, Chelsea, Marisa and Alyssa, just for being so sweet. The London Silver Gallery offers them at $50 and up.

If you haven't been to the Sunrise Garden Center & Florist on North Sea Road yet, you are really missing a lot. I stopped there yesterday to check out the sheds and Dawn told me they were having a "Fourth of July Blowout Sale" that would knock your garden hat off...The flats are now reduced to $8.50, select other plant material is 20% to 30% off and you must checkk out their selection of perennials and indoor plants. Their expanded giftware section has gifts with that gardeny feel for every occasion. A great place to stop on your way to Sag Harbor for that last minute gift for your hostess with the mostest!

Look for The Crazy Monkey Gallery, a hidden treasure located on Main Street in Amagansett. There are not only paintings by local artists here but also beautiful, eclectic, affordable jewelry (for all age groups) and great pottery. The jewelry ranges from

NOSTALGIA FACTOR: I learned to drive in a 1953 Plymouth station wagon. Every once in a while when flipping through Hemming's Motor News, I'll look under "Plymouths for sale" and see if there are any '53 wagons left in the world. That little blue and white two-tone wagon didn't excite anyone in the fifties. If you could find one today, it wouldn't be worth much, but I wouldn't mind having it in my garage.

Pottery is stunning by artists, Aileen Florell, Dallas Ernst, Addrienne Fleman and Patricia Fuchs. New to the Gallery is an in house furniture catalog ranging from exotic sleighbeds to traditional leather sofa's. Go for it, it's a great place to shop.

Time to run to Schmidt's Country Market to pick up the order I placed this morning. My mom, sister Paula, niece Christine and nephews Kevin and Joseph are arriving in the Hamptons for the Fourth of July weekend. We'll have fun, fun, fun, 'til my daddy takes my T-bird away.

Until next week. Ciao and Happy and Safe Fourth of July Shopping!

Guy de Fraumeni's Hollywood in The Hamptons

On a special weekend like the fabulous Fourth, you will probably hold your head high and flash your precious pearly whites at all the other celebrants baring pink gums. But, and it's a big but, if you should sight a terribly bulky individual whose half-naked body bulges unconvincingly with muscles of puke green Playdoh, hurry away in another direction! It is probably the usually mild-mannered, Bruce Banner, who takes on that awfully phony, computerized The Hulk appearance when he is very spitting-hot mad. If it's not Bruce, it might be just another East Ender who could not rent their house out this summer.

You may think that I warn you away from the not-so-jolly green giant of comic book fame because of his awesome, wrathful rages but, no, it's because he's so dreadfully boring as molded by the angst-ridden hands of director Ang Lee. He has pushed, pulled and stretched the simple pee-green putty story of a research geneticist with a bothersome alter ego, into an overly twisted lump of who-knows-what. I have my own idea of what but will simply wish he had not wrung out the "comic" in comic book lore. It's the great fun leap of faith that's taken by fans of super heroes that is its greatest strength. It's the fan's willful belief that gets Superman over the tallest buildings and ahead of a speeding bullet. For Ang Lee and his writer, James Schamus, to "flesh" out a dreary back drop explanation of psyched-out, over-weight plastecine, gobble-dee-gook to make it serious – just makes the character lumpier.

Lee's grouchy tiger, Bruce, is drain-strained by Eric Bana and his science colleague, hidden dragon is the fine Jennifer Connelly (Oscar winner, A Beautiful Mind). Her talents are totally hidden by a flash-frozen stare as dysfunctional as the 1970 families in The Ice Storm, Mr. Lee's angry, angst-ridden suburbia.

As fake as the computer generated, envy tinged body parts are, it is the live actors who are unbelievably flat. The Hulk realizes too early on, the trials and tribulations of Kermit's lament, "It's not easy being green." Therefore, he storms his atomic rages in jig time. As the Hulk, he's on and offstage faster than Houdini could get out of a straight jacket. Too soon, he and the rest are hog bound in serious stares or the bristling hatred of Sam Elliot looking like a one man Fuller Brush sample kit, or the mad scientist hair look and zaniness of Nick Nolte as (what else?) a mad scientist and Bruce's surprise dad. The worst surprise is that the Jekyll/Hyde nature of The Hulk doesn't work because the Jekyll/Hyde direction doesn't. Perhaps Mr. Lee's heavy hand couldn't win in an arm wrestle with a guy like The Hulk. Did you get a load of the size of just the Hulk's arm arteries? Thicker than the gray-green goop between the Hulk's fat ears.

ED KOCH Goes To THE MOVIES

When I called HS to suggest that we see this film, he was not happy. He doesn't like scary films and had read The New York Times review which opened with "When 28 Days Later is not scaring you silly, it invites you to reflect seriously on the fragility of modern civilization..." I pushed the reference to the deeper, philosophical aspect of the film and he agreed to see it. At the end of the film, I said, "It was ridiculous." He responded, "I liked it."

The flick opens with an animal-rights group raiding a lab and freeing all the chimps. They are not aware of the fact that the chimps are infected with a rage virus causing very hostile attitudes, including a need to attack and kill. The virus is passed on by the exchange of blood, in this case by the biting chimps.

Jim (Cillian Murphy) wakes up in a deserted hospital recovering from an accident and subsequent coma. He leaves the hospital and walks the empty streets of London. Ultimately he meets three other people: Selena (Naomie Harris) who tries to kill him with her machete thinking he is infected with the virus, Frank (Brendan Gleeson) and his daughter Hannah (Megan Burns). The ingénue, Hanah, showed no acting ability and while her father, Frank, was more animated, he was not necessarily a better actor.

The four begin their journey throughout the city looking for other inhabitants, in particular an army unit sending out messages. After meeting the British army contingent, the four have many incidents with the infected sick who act and even howl like animals. The time spent with the British contingent was more interesting than other episodes in the movie. The commander, Major Henry West (Christopher Eccleston), has been corrupted not by money but by power.

I wasn't scared nor was I amused. Adding to my frustration was the Danish Dogma 95 technique leading to no lights and hand-held camera work that makes the scenes often shrouded in darkness and difficult to follow what is happening.

Over the years, I have stayed away from movies such as Night of the Living Dead. I truly wanted to like this film; regrettably, it was a disappointment. At the end of the film the question I put to HS was where do we eat? We went to Chinatown and had a spectacular feast.

Before Ed Koch was a film critic for Dan's Papers he was the Mayor of New York City.

Standing Ovation for 'La Traviata' at Hampton Day School.

When the audience rose to its feet with Alfred and Violetta locked in their last embrace as she dies, the talented artists and staff of The Opera of the Hamptons knew that, once again, they had achieved their goal.

To operate a traveling regional opera company requires incredible reserves of dedication, hard work and an eye for not just talent but how true synergy can come from the correct selection of the cast. In this wonderful performance of Verdi's 'La Traviata', Barbara Giancola, the Artistic Director, Atarah Hazzan, the Music Director, Stage Manager Charles Bosselman and Stage Director, Hayden DeWitt succeeded in every respect in making the audience oblivious of any distractions such as sunshine streaming in through the windows of this magnificent Field House at the Hampton Day School in Bridgehampton or of acoustics, which naturally are not of opera house quality. For this is the life of a touring company. Not for them is the luxury of dimmed auditoriums, extravagant designer sets and vast orchestras and chorus or even plush, upholstered chairs for their patrons. No matter, when it works, as Opera of the Hamptons succeeds in achieving time after time, in vineyards, in barns, on the lawns of Villa Maria or the Hampton Day School, the result is a treat for opera novices or aficionados alike because what they see and hear is an intimate production from highly talented young international artists giving their best, for this is the one and only performance of the production, so no one can think, 'We'll do it better tomorrow,' for in this world, truly tomorrow never comes.

From the time that the party guests filed on to the new 'Theater in the Round' stage and the sound of 'Libiamo', probably the most famous drinking song in the operatic repertoire resounded, it was apparent that this was an exceptionally talented cast. David Katz has become a firm favorite with the audiences here and it is noticeable how on each return visit his tenor voice is maturing and he is bringing even more feeling to the roles he takes. In this production, he sang the role of Alfredo, a young man from the country, who falls in love with Violetta, who, to quote Barbara Giancola in her customary erudite and witty synopsis of the story, today would be called a 'high priced call girl'. Verdi used the old fashioned term of 'courtesan'. Violetta was sung by a newcomer to the company, Karen Frankenstein and in taking on one of the true major soprano roles, she demonstrated a wonderfully pure voice and great range, coupled with stage presence that will surely lead to her gracing major opera houses around the world in the years ahead.

La Traviata, literally, 'The Fallen Woman' is based on the famous play by Alexandra Dumas Jr., 'La Dame aux Camelias' and is a work demanding three major roles, Alfredo, Violetta and Alfredo's father, Giorgio Germont. In major scenes with Violetta and then with his son, Giorgio's role is vital to the development of the story as he first begs Violetta to give up her relationship with Alfredo and then he confronts Alfredo when he has turned to reckless gambling and then insults Violetta at a party because she is there with an old lover. Zurab Ninua, singing the role of Giorgio, was last seen as one of the company's Young Artists of the Year in 2001, and thrilled with his dramatic and vibrant baritone voice and commanding presence.

Cheri Rose Katz as Violetta's friend Flora, Charles Bosselman, expertly juggling his stage management duties with singing the role of Violetta's protector, Stephan Kirchgraber as Violetta's physician and Anthony Tolve as Gaston completed a true ensemble bringing life and depth to this enthralling and passionate yet sad story. An additional treat was the gypsy flamenco performance of JoDe Romano and Peter Suarez during the party scene. They left the audience wishing that Verdi had written a little more Spanish music so we could have enjoyed more of this very talented duo.

When Violetta's plaintive cry of 'E tardi!' rang out, as she realized that it really was too late because her death was imminent, you could feel the charge of emotion in the room and when a few moments later the opera was over, you could then sense that not only the singers but many in the audience were emotionally drained. It was wonderful to experience that and also to have that magnificent, timeless Verdi score once again repeating in your mind as you drove away. This is what theater of all descriptions is, or should be, about.

This performance was underwritten by The Manhattan Mortgage Company to benefit the Hampton Day School Diversity Scholarship Program. Funds from the Town of Southampton and New York State Council on the Arts also helped to make this performance possible.

The next venue for Opera of the Hamptons will be back at Castello de Borghese on August 16 when the ever popular 'Opera to Broadway' will be staged.

Take Five 2003 with Jan Silver

We're into the heart of summer entertainment. This is the final weekend to catch Bay Street Theatre's outstanding production of two one-act plays. The original cast of the Off Broadway hit revue Our Sinatra is reprising the show now in East Hampton. The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center celebrates its fifth anniversary with Susan Lucci's cabaret show (Fri.) and Aspen Santa Fe ballet (Sat.).

Attorney Johnnie Cochran (July 3) and sportscaster Ann Liguori with Jim Bouton (July 2) were the openers, respectively, at the Bridgehampton library's and WHBPAC's summer speakers' series, and authors speaking this week include novelist Daniel Stern on Friday, Roger Rosenblatt and Rona Jaffe (separately) on Sunday, The New York Times' reporter Warren Strugatch moderating a provocative "Out of the Question" panel at WHBPAC next Wednesday, and famous rabbi Esther Jungreis in Westhampton next Thursday. Southampton's Parrish Art Museum and East Hampton's Guild Hall and Ross School begin their summer film series. Noted musicians expected at local clubs this week include Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown (Fri.), Marshall Crenshaw (Sat.) and Dave Mason Band (Sun.) at Amagansett's Stephen Talkhouse.

As for special events and benefits, Southampton holds its big July 4 parade starting at 10 a.m. down Main Street and there are fireworks on Saturday night in many villages. Benefits this weekend include an "All-American Picnic" with Grucci fireworks (for Southampton Fresh Air Home) on Friday, a big dinner dance Saturday for local NPR/jazz station WLIU-FM, a cocktail gala Saturday at Halsey House (Southampton Historical Society), and the "Last-Bid" art auction in East Hampton (for Hampton International Film Festival). For details, read on:

THEATER

Sag Harbor's Bay Street Theater will close its well-received professional production of Harold Pinter's The Lover and Arthur Schnitzler's Bacchanlia after Sunday's performance. For tickets ($38-42), call the box office at 631-725-9500 or go online to www.baystreet.org. The next offering, the world premiere of Jack Heifner's (Vanities) comedy Earth to Bucky, begins previews next Tuesday, July 8, which is "pay-what-you-can-night" for tickets purchased at the box office that day (after 11 a.m.).

Eastern Long Island's home for classic musicals, Bellport's Gateway Playhouse, continues its critically-celebrated production of Cole Porter's masterpiece musical Kiss Me Kate through Sunday, and then the Long Island premiere of Miss Saigon opens next Tuesday. Call 631-286-1133 or 1-888-4TIXNOW or go to www.gatewayplayhouse.com for tickets.

MUSIC AND DANCE

Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center celebrates its fifth anniversary with two shows. On Friday, popular actress Susan Lucci will give a special performance ($55-75) with fireworks and a reception ($125) at 8 p.m. On Saturday at 8:30 p.m., the Aspen Santa Fe Ballet (fresh from its NYC debut) performs ($45-65). Call the box office starting at noon, 631-288-1500, for tickets.

East Hampton's John Drew Theater (Guild Hall)

features music from the Great American Songbook this summer. Manhattan cabaret star Eric Comstock, Hilary Kole and Christopher Gines are reprising their Off Broadway hit, Our Sinatra, now through July 13. Tickets are $45 at the box office at 631-324-4050. (Mira Spektor's "Ladies of Romance" mini-operas follow on July 17, and then the Mabel

Susan Lucci appear at WHBPAC on Friday night

Mercer Foundation's first East End Cabaret Convention, with many national cabaret stars, comes in July 18-20.)

East End Songwriters Guild continues Sunday, 8 p.m. at Montauk Theatre Productions with singer/pianist Mark Mangold ($10, 6 South Elm St.). Pianofest's weekly recital is Monday, 4 p.m., at the Avram Theater, Southampton College ($10 tickets at the door). Itzhak and Toby Perlman's music program for outstandingly-gifted young string musicians continues its open "works in progress" concerts many evenings at the Shelter Island campus, West Lake Drive. Call 631-749-0740 for the weekly schedule (free admission). Music Festival of the Hamptons opens next Friday and runs through July 26. Their glossy program brochure is available at local shops and online at www.musicfestivalofthehamptons.com. For telephone sales, call 1-800-644-4418.

Putumayo: A World Of Music

Two days after I got back from Cuba, I sat down at my desk and opened a package from Putumayo World Music. Out fell "Congo to Cuba." Prophetic? That maybe stretching it a bit, but after a week in a country consumed by music, where it's impossible to find a space that isn't shimmering with the beats of Latin music, it seemed appropriate.

As a bit of a traveler, and an avid music fan, I was well acquainted with Putumayo's catalog, a wide array of sounds and rhythms collected from around the world and performed by some of the best musicians in their respective genres. Now celebrating their tenth anniversary, and gaining an ever-greater audience and popularity, Dan's Papers took the time to speak to Dan Storper, the founder of Putumayo.

Dan's Papers: So how did you start Putumayo?

Dan Storper: My travels took me to Latin America and while I was there I started to import handicrafts and clothing and I opened a chain of stores in the States selling what I'd bring back. I was always excited about music and one day I was walking through Golden Gate Park in San Francisco and I heard this amazing African band. I walked into one of my stores in New York shortly after that and they were playing thrash music and it just didn't fit. So I started making mix tapes of world music and people began asking for copies and then they started buying them. That's how it started. I never really set out to start a record company.

Dan's Papers: How do you find the music for the compilations?

Dan Storper: At first I was just finding it as I traveled. Then people started sending me a lot of music and when we went fulltime into music I started working with Richard Foos and Jacob Edgar. When I travel now it's interesting because I'm always looking for music and going to festivals and it gives me the opportunity to see music as a part of the culture that I'm in. It's really such an integral part of every culture. And there's been a real growth in the awareness of world music. It's like international food; anywhere you go in New York you can find cuisine from around the world. And there's been a similar appreciation of music that has been developing.

Dan's Papers: What are you listening to and working on now?

Dan Storper: We've just put out "The Oliver Mtukudzi Collection," which is really amazing and we're working on an American Blues anthology and also a two CD set for our tenth anniversary.

Dan's Papers: Where can Hamptonites find your collections?

Dan Storper: You can find us in Calypso, Hampton Coffe Co., Java Nation, LI Sound and Bookhampton. We really have a wide selection of music, whether it's mellow, instrumental music or more upbeat, faster stuff. There's World Lounge, Latin Groove, Global Soul – a whole range of genres that will appeal to all different types of people and suit every mood.

Music Festival

Eleanor Sager Leonard holds her great uncle, renown pianist, Benno Moiseiwitsch, in loving memory. Leonard credits Moiseiwitsch for her passion and respect for music and hopes to instill that same love for music in others, through a 21 series of concerts in the Hamptons. The eclectic array of musicians will feature renown musicians like pianist David Dubal and violinist Eugene Druker. Young artists will also be given the opportunity to display their incredible talents in the company of master performers.

The opening of the concert gala will take place on Saturday, July 11 as Johann Sebastian Bach conducts the Atlantic Chamber Orchestra in the Brandberg concerti 1,2,3,4,5. Romantic classics like the Mendelsohn Violin Concerto, the Haydn Symphony and the Mozart symphony will be performed on July 12. The Guttman family will perform an all Beethoven program, including a narration of Beethoven's letters, on July 13th. A tribute to composers whose fates were altered prior to World War II because they were Jewish will take place the following day. Proceeds will be donated to New York- Israel Cultural Cooperation Commission to benefit cultural exchange with Israel. The festival will also include a variety of piano recitals, Music by the Guttman family friends, song recitals, and the celebration 90 year old composer, Norman Dello Joio, who lives in East Hampton. Also, David Dubal, internationally known pianist, writer, teacher and broadcaster will give a series of Master Classes for the Listener with 6 pianists for 3 consecutive days beginning on July 22nd. These lectures and concerts will be held at the festival tent on Snake Hollow Road in Bridgehampton and the Wolffer Estate Vineyards, Sagg Road, Sagaponack.

New Comedy: Earth to Bucky at Bay Street Theatre

This July, Bay Street Theatre in Sag Harbor brings you the world premiere of an irreverent new comedy, Earth to Bucky, which will run from July 8 to 27. Patty Ann Fuller, a garnish glamour girl enters into the small-town-Texas life of two brothers as she looks to bury her Mama in style. As she tries to ignite her old flame with Ricky, a high school football player, she pursues his inexperienced brother Bucky at the same time. Events unfold that are uproariously funny, powerful and insightful with love, life and the family bond that ties us together. Tom Caruso directs this wonderful performance that stars Matt Keeslar, T.R. Knight and Kellie Overbey Shane. Matt Keeslar, who plays Ricky, is best known from big screen roles on Scream III, Texas Rangers, Psycho Beach Party and the Last Days of Disco. His stage work has included the Vineyard Theatre's production of Mercy, Fit to be Tied at Playwright's Horizons, and the work at South Coast Rep., and he has appeared in several television productions as well.

T.R. Knight, who plays the role of Bucky, has been in Broadway's acclaimed Taruffe and Noises Off, a Drama Desk nomination for Off-Broadway's Scattergood as well as other Off-Broadway's Scattergood as well as other Off-Broadway and regional productions and a recurring role on Television's "Charlie Lawrence."

Kelly Overbey Shane, who plays the gaudy Patty Ann, has appeared on Broadway productions of QED, Judgement at Nuremberg, Present Laughter and Buried Child. Other credits of hers include, work at Manhattan Theatre Club, New York Fringe Festival, Williamstown Theatre Festival, Playwrights Horizons, La Jolla Playhouse, The Old Globe and Philadelphia Theatre Company.

Thomas Caruso is the resident Director of Mamma Mia! On Broadway, Thomas was the Associate Director of the musical revival of Follies by Stephen Sondheim and James Goldman. Directing credits include The Next Marylin, the national tour of Master Class, and All-American Boy. Thomas has also assisted in numerous Broadway productions including Love! Valour! Compassion!, Master Class, Stanley, Parade, and Les Miserables.

Performances run July 8th-27th. Single tickets: $38-42 and opening night tickets are $60.

To purchase tickets call the Bay Street Theatre Box Office at 725-9500

Fiction Live

Come to The Stephen Talkhouse on Saturday, July 12 to hear some of the best contemporary fiction around. The New Yorker magazine will present "Fiction Live," a night of readings that will include T.C. Boyle's Friendly Skies, Roddy Doyle's The Dinner and George Saunders's I Can Speak.

This will be the 13th in a series of "Fiction Live" readings. Previous events have already been staged in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, San Francisco, and London.

Proceeds from the Amagansett event will go to The Child Development Center of the Hamptons (CDCH). The CDCH Foundation supports the right of children with disabilities to learn and grow alongside other children. The foundation provides for educational and therapeutic services on the East End of Long Island that help children become more productive, cherished members of their community.

Doors open at 7:00 p.m., the show begins at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $15 and can be purchased through Ticketweb or by calling 866-468-3399.

Puppetry of the Penis

Yes, I did go see Puppetry of the Penis. Like many I'm sure, I had no idea what to expect. Even if I did, I think I still would have been shocked. Now don't get me wrong. Ladies, you absolutely can't miss this show. The act was started for the Melbourne International Comedy Festival in 1998. Two men from Melbourne named Simon Morley and David Friendly somehow came up with the crazy idea that they did not need a balloon to make animals. All they needed was simply to be a man. More puppeteers joined them along the way and the tour began. I have never seen what I saw at the Stephen Talkhouse last Friday. It truly was amazing. They call it the ancient art of genital origami. From appetizers to the main course they turned their penises into things you can't imagine. The "Hamburger" was my personal favorite. Although the "Windsurfer" and the "Eiffel Tower" run a close second. It "stretched" everyone's imagination. Puppetry of the Penis has appeared all over the world including

The Russian Tea Room and on Jay Leno. One lucky Birthday celebrator in the audience got to join the pair on stage and tickle them. She may have wanted to crawl under a rock at first, but she was a great sport and realized what precious jewels she beheld. Sometimes props were used and you couldn't help but think "ouch". The champagne top wasn't as bad as the portable 3 speed fan. To end it all, they skateboarded off stage with the help of the fan, a cape, a helmet and the ever so lovely windsurfer. Fortunately, there's a book and a video available, because the tours next stop is at the Wilma Theatre in Philadelphia and at the Sherwood Auditorium in La Jolla, California. The book is an instructional for all of you out there who want to impress your lady. And for those interested, they are holding auditions, looking for men with a "flexible" working attitude. Visit their web site at www.puppetryofthepenis.com you won't be disappointed.

Barflies' Top Fives

"We don't serve that here" —Tracey

It's a gorgeous Saturday in the Hamptons. You've had a long, relaxing day at the beach, you barbecued with friends, and now you're primping for a big night out in this famed social scene. But before you start getting your "drink on," there are certain guidelines you should be aware of. Because remember, your favorite hot spot is someone else's workplace.

Namely, ours. We have been bartenders in New York City, and on the East End at Resort, the Star Room and the Stephen Talkhouse. Because we work at such varied venues, we've seen it all. In short, we are the only truly qualified source for bar etiquette. More importantly, we can be your best friend or your worst enemy. Read on to see how.

TOP FIVE WAYS TO GET A DRINK FOR FREE

1. Be polite: "please" and "thank you" go a long way, and you would be surprised how many socialites leave their manners at home
2. Give compliments: one man likened one of us to Penelope Cruz and drank for free all night
3. Offer to buy your bartender a shot: if you take care of us, we will take care of you
4. Tip big: what goes around, comes around
5. Don't ask for a free drink: this is presumptuous (you wouldn't walk into the Gap and demand a free pair of jeans, would you?)

TOP FIVE WAYS TO GET A BARTENDER'S ATTENTION (AND GET A DRINK QUICKLY)

1. Don't pull the bartender's hair or grab her arm: This may sound outrageous but it happened regularly at the Star Room last summer
2. Have your money in plain view and be ready to order
3. Wait your turn: we are more likely to serve someone who is not jumping up and down and shouting
4. Smile: nobody likes to serve a sourpuss
5. Tip big: we will always come back to you first

TOP FIVE WAYS TO GET ON A BARTENDER'S BAD SIDE

1. Asking for ten glasses of tapwater: just because it's free doesn't mean you shouldn't tip (after all, it takes time away from paying customers)
2. Ordering a big number of drinks, one by one: if you order everything at once, we can serve you more efficiently
3. Thinking that the bartender is your friend just because you learned her name: we have no friends after 2 a.m.
4. Assuming the bartender has no other aspirations other than bartending: watch out—we will probably be your boss one day
5. Not tipping: do you notice a trend developing?

TOP FIVE WAYS TO PICK UP A BARTENDER

1. Have we mentioned big tips yet?
2. Stick around until it's less hectic: don't bug us when we're busy (and we appreciate staying power)
3. Once heavily intoxicated, don't leave your business card: believe it or not, it's hard to find slurred speech attractive
4. Having the chutzpah to actually do it: picking up a bartender is an intimidating task, and you get points for trying
5. Let's face it, this is the Hamptons. If you look like Ed Burns and have as much money as Bill Gates, well, we're not insane. Your place or mine?

Bobby Van's is still the place to be. It's rare that you can find a place with outstanding food as well as a fabulous bar scene and great service to match. They have been around long enough to prove themselves and is now opening up another restaurant in Manhattan making it the 4th Bobby Van's nationwide. I visited the Bridgehampton location on Friday and couldn't believe the crowd. I found the summer. The atmosphere is always sophisticated and polite. The bar is always packed with just enough room to mingle. It simply is the "it" spot of the Hampton's. From the sweet hostess's to the courteous bartenders and the accommodating wait staff this is the place you're looking for. Take the train in from Manhattan and get off at Bridgehampton. Bobby Van's is a walk away. If you'd like dinner, which you should, call (631) 537-0500 for reservations. Also ask about their other locations which all offer the same great quality. Tell them Christine sent you.

ART COMMENTARY

RAY JOHNSON AT

THE POLLOCK KRASNER HOUSE

The notion that Ray Johnson's art shares a kinship with performance art is an intriguing one, an idea that's not often pursued. No wonder: the implications are not without their considerable challenges.

When we think of performance art, varied things come to mind. After all, it's a hybrid form, characterized by diverse media, methods and intentions. This critic recalls the "Happenings" of the 1960's. Weren't some of these, in fact, improvisational performance art involving live presentations (although not necessarily with "live" people)? Without question, however, is the recent performance art endeavor, "Offering," a mobile site piece created and performed by Japanese dancers Eiko and Koma.

As we viewed (or more succinctly "experienced") this work in the graveyard of New York's St. Mark's Church, it became apparent that it was not only a dance concert, but contained elements of sculpture (the choreography), poetry and music (sound effects). What was particularly fascinating were the sounds originating from the street: sirens, horns and church bells. Simply put, here was aural, urban improvisation juxtaposed with the visual, planned ritualistic dance and site.

How could Mr. Johnson's collages now at the Pollock Krasner House possibly conform to this description of performance art? It seems to this critic that performance art should have temporal, narrative and spatial components: it should exist in time, contain a plot, and employ defined space (although such elements may be linear or non-linear ("time-tripping").

Mr. Johnson's collages convey spatial containment, his drawings of prosceniums or stages (rectangles) manifested here by frames within a larger frame ("Agnes Martin").

His plot-related pieces, along with temporal movement, signify the narrative element. Consider especially the Ruth Kligman triptych where confined space literally tells the story of her various interactions or non-interactions with Jackson Pollock.

The line juxtaposition in Mr. Johnson's collage featuring a mad scientist character establishes frames-within-frames as well, communicating a story via a single image, rather than with a series of images. What that "story" delineates is subtle, indeed, and allows for creative flights of fancy.

Collages and Objects by Ray Johnson will be on view at East Hampton's Pollock-Krasner House until August 3.

HONORING THE ARTIST: PETER MAX

Ask Peter Max what's the secret of his success (in a subtle way, of course), and he may talk about his cats instead. Ask him what U. S. Presidents he has worked with, and he surely reinforces his commitment to preserving rain forests.

That's not what you'd expect from Peter Max, a highly successful artist whose signature portraits and graphics are known the world over. Here is an enigma if ever there was one: a man who lives in the fast lane, who is seemingly driven by contemporary commercial trappings, yet one who also connects with the past, nature and above all else, spirituality.

This contradiction is a hard one to process, yet it is not an act for Mr. Max. It is a philosophy of life that started with his growing up in China, living in a three-tiered pagoda house where his mother gave him painting supplies, encouraging him to "make a mess," saying, "We'll clean up after you."

Is that where the freedom of expression started for Mr. Max, the joy of creativity? Is this when he learned that doing something nice for someone was important?

Perhaps. Mr. Max is the first to admit, however, that there is a myriad of elements that can influence a person: parents, religion, books, friends. In Mr. Max's case, we have a feeling it's the act of living itself where he learns such life lessons.

For example, he says without arrogance, "Walk to work. Say something nice to someone. Breathe in joy while you're walking."

Suddenly, he becomes quiet, taking a breath himself. "Love and serve others. It's not like when we're born we don't know what to do. People do good things."

Mr. Max does good things, although, again, he appears modest when talking about them. He fights for animal rights, saying honestly that he would turn down a million dollars if he were asked to "do something that would hurt an ant."

Mr. Max also cares about saving our forests. "Once I was having a show in San Francisco, and a man I hadn't seen in several years asked if I could help save portions of the Redwood Forest from a lumber company. I couldn't think of the best way to do it, but finally I called President Clinton. His assistant called back and six months later, the trees had been saved. If my heart tells me to do something, I do it."

This same commitment to causes also propels Mr. Max's creativity. "If you feel inspired, follow that inspiration. All doors will open as a result," he says with vigor.

We're inspired ourselves to give Mr. Max the quiz made popular by James Lipton on "Inside the Actors Studio."

What's your favorite word?: "Inner peace and calm."

What's your favorite sound?: "My cat sleeping next to me."

What profession would you like to engage in?: "Astronomy."

Well said, Mr. Max.

—Marion Wolberg Weiss

For Men Only

Men are just as vain as women when it comes to hair, skin and body products. Men are more conscious of the need to look after their skin, particularly in the competitive corporate world as the male grooming market expands worldwide. There is a new product for men that is really exciting and comes from the most natural and organic sources. Launched in Australia in December 1999 by Glenn Kiddell and Clare Matthews, VitaMan recognized a need within the male market for a comprehensive, niche product line for men. It utilizes Australian plant extracts first discovered by indigenous aboriginal tribes, now well known for their soothing, restorative and anti-bacterial properties. With a base organically grown Australian aloe vera, these Australian plant extracts have been scientifically proven to offer healing anti-bacterial and cell renewal properties, resulting in a product line that makes a difference to how a man's skin and hair looks and feels. The product line encompasses, skin, hair and body treatment from scrubs and masks to cleansers and moisturizers. In addition, VitaMan stays away from the use of artificial colors or fragrances, or synthetic chemicals which may be harmful if absorbed through the skin.

Body/face Cleanser ($18) is pH balanced and has a natural outdoor and fresh citrus aroma that awakens the senses. It does not contain harsh chemical cleansing agents that dry out the skin so your skin is left feeling clean and moisturized. Use it in the shower to cleanse your entire body.

Body Moisturizer (-$22) – is a lighter crème formulated to be easily spread and absorbed. You should apply this after showering to the entire body. It is ideal for daily use especially if outdoor or sporting activities are done on a regular basis.

Sea Salt Scrub ($25) – Has locally sourced coastal sea salt that will not damage the skin and dissolves easily when you rinse. It is the perfect gentle exfoliant for eliminating dead skin cells and best used in during a shower when your skin is wet.

Shave Crème ($14)– Excellent for hydrating and moisturizing the skin. It creates a better barrier between the skin and the blade, therefore less friction and irritation to sensitive skin. It helps to lift the hair follicle for a smoother shave.

After Shave Balm ($18)– This is an aftershave balm used to soothe and calm any inflammation or irritation to the skin. After applying it liberally over all shaved areas, leave it on to absorb into the skin.

Face Scrub ($18)– This helps prevent ingrown hairs and improves problem skin such as blackheads and clogged pores. After you apply it to your face you work it in a circular motion, rinse then moisturize. This is done once or twice weekly for best results.

Wrinkle Smoother Serum -($33) – Helps to dissolve the substance that holds together the outer layer of cells this allows them to be exfoliated more

About Face....with Annette

Summertime And The living Is....Easy?

Seems to me, it takes more work and more beauty products to get us through the summer than it does the winter. Perhaps it's because summer's here and winter seems like a memory. Anyway you look at it, reality bites and it's time to go shopping and load up on the essentials.

You can't go wrong loading up on Terax hair products. Sold in fine drugstores in and about the Hamptons, they are getting great publicity lately. In Style magazine raves that Terax Crema draws more glamorous women than an Oscar ceremony, listing Crema users Madonna, Kim Basinger, Gwyneth Paltrow and Demi Moore. InStyle also named Terax as the Overall Shampoo for two years in a row, saying that Terax shampoos are a Hollywood staple. High up there on the list is also the Terax Collagene, which delivers moisturizer without weighing down your hair. Remember, the sun, sand, salt and chlorine wreak havoc with the hair so it's best to treat it before you go into these elements. Leave a little conditioner in your hair. I am not one to buy into these products that say they prevent UV rays from entering the hair. I do believe that hair can oxidize, especially blondes and redheads. So a preventive measure beforehand goes a long way. Either apply it and comb your hair back as if you just got out of a pool or ocean, catching it in low knot or top knot, or just leave some in after you shampoo your hair. Remember also to give your hair a light shampoo and condition

Kiehls Pharmacy, a leader in innovative beauty products for the skin, hair and spirit since 1851, has taken one of it's hottest selling items, Lip Balm #1, and added another to it's line, Lip Balm 15. Available in clear and two tinted shades, it's just the necessity you need to put in your bag when heading to the beach or pool. Enriched with Sweet Almond Oil, Wheat Germ Oil and Aloe Vera, these natural additives can only add smoothness and softness and are fully prepared to take on the heat of the sun. Tinted Lip Balm SPF 15 Hue 30G is based on Kiehl's already popular Light Lip Gloss "Golden Berry" which gives a light rose tone for a natural look. The Lip Balm SPF 15 Hue

You can pick up these tubes of wonder at Saks Fifth Avenue, North Main Street in Southampton and also at Second Nature Markets... or call 1-800-Kiehls-1 to mail order.

Discover the summer's hottest colors, inspired by the sun, sand and sea. Presented by Dior, they are a collection of sun-kissed shades with splashes of glitter to catch that summer sun or moon rays. New from the collection: Dior Addict Glitter Lipstick, ultra-sparkly, sheer, 5 shades. Aquadior Eyeshadow Pencil, waterproof silky powder in 4 shades. The collection ranges from $16 to $30. Available at Bloomingdale's.

Prescriptive's new super Line Preventor+Intensiv Eye Treatment is worth looking into, especially if you are a 'squinter'— and who isn't in this sun? This treatment is fortified with high quality emollients to take care of that delicate hard-to-treat area around the eyes. All the while, it guards against lines and wrinkles. Available at Macy's .5 oz. $45, Super Line Preventor+ 1 oz. $47.50, 1.7 oz $75.

Remember... protect is the word for the week!

As with any surgery, there are specific risks and possible complications associated with the LAP-BAND surgery. Talk to your doctor to determine if you are a candidate for the LAP-BAND System.

Celebrity Skin Secrets...

Do you ever wonder how celebrities always seem to have radiant looking skin? It's not always the camera angles or the make-up that gives them that flawless appearance.

Dr. Alexander Covey, Surgical and Medical Director of East End Laser Care in Southampton and Center Moriches, knows the latest in cosmetic surgery and can help you achieve younger and more beautiful looking skin. Dr. Covey's expertise is sought out by top models, celebrities, and many local and summer residents. On Thursday, July 17 at 7:00 p.m. Dr. Covey will present a seminar on The Newest Treatments in Cosmetic Laser Surgery at the Southampton Inn, 91 Hill Street, Southampton, NY 11968. Topics will include non-invasive cosmetic laser treatments such as "Current Laser Techniques for Wrinkle Reduction," "Laser Hair Removal," "The Latest Cosmetic Procedures To Eliminate Unwanted Blemishes, and Uneven Facial Tone," and "How Botox and Collagen Reduce Wrinkles."

Join Dr. Covey and his staff and meet patients who have had remarkable results. Find out how cosmetic laser surgery can help you look and feel more beautiful.

All attendees will receive special offers and there will be a drawing for a free Botox treatment and a free microdermabrasion treatment. Pre-registration is necessary. Call (631) 287-6662 to register for this exciting seminar because space is limited. Refreshments will be served.

Beauty Meets The Best... The Style Bar Day Spa

Whether scheduled for an ultimate updo or a rejuvenating massage, trend-setting teens to sophisticated socialites enjoy the health and beauty services that the Style Bar provides. The comfortably sized and welcoming spa drips with all the polish and panache of a huge Manhattan salon, without the uptight attitude.

Intrigue would be the best word to describe my initial reaction. The Style Bar holds on to traditional décor, while throwing in a twist of funky eye candy. Ralph Lauren fabrics cover the handsome chairs and vibrantly colored products like Knotty Girl's, "Drama Queen" marshmallow body-wash and "Pink Princess" cotton candy shampoo, line the walls. Their selection of hard to find adult buys include Anthony-Logistics For Men, Phyto, Terax, and Crew body shampoos and conditioners. Fun stuff like teddy bears, neon "cerveza" signs and local art, by Micheal Knigen, add a touch of quirky flavor.

I have never understood why people enjoy pedicures as much as they do. I simply do not like having my feet touched. However, I was pleasantly surprised by my experience at the Style Bar Day Spa. I quickly surrendered myself to the warm bubbly water and intoxicating smells that saturated the small, private area where pedicures are given. I experienced the "Tutti Frutti" pedicure, one of their newest specialties. This was far beyond your standard foot care. I was trimmed, massaged and scrubbed with sensitivity and thoroughness. A light, lathering Dead Sea salt was applied to exfoliate my skin, followed by a therapeutic mud that removes toxins and leaves feet feeling tingly and soft. Next, a Whipped Puree made from shea butter, with essential vitamins, was applied to moisturize and promote cellular respiration. An added benefit: the delicious smell of orange creamsicle. This fabulous trio left my skin feeling replenished and silky smooth. To top things off, my appointment concluded with one of Essy's new Hamptons oriented nail polishes called "South of the Highway."

Health and beauty specialist Evelyn Waser taught me the importance of filing and scrubbing, which softens calluses and promotes circulation. Sandal wearers should file every few days, while athletes, who need the added natural protection that calluses provide, should wait to file every few weeks. I also learned that nails turn yellow from chlorine, sun, and nail polish color. In turn, a base coat is an essential part of any manicure or pedicure.

Other services that the Style Bar Day Spa provides are facials, messages, waxes, makeup, hair care, microdermabrasion, nail care and foot care. The Style Bar offers services for weddings, proms, birthdays and any other special events. Catering and housecalls are also available by request. A surplus of staff makes for minimum waiting time and ultra thorough treatment. One can even request to have two professionals working on them at one time.

The Style Bar Day Spa is located at One Bay Street in Sag Harbor. You can call them at 631-725-6730 for information and appointments.

rapidly. Alpha Hydroxy Acids are beneficial in breaking up the build up of dead skin cells that can inhibit moisture absorption. Counteracts the effects of aging through stimulation of cell renewal. Just dispense a few drops onto the back of the palm and smooth on your face, eye area and neck.

Face Moisturizer ($25) – Keeps your skin clean and healthy. The anti-bacterial properties help to calm itchy irritated skin. More concentrated specifically for men's skin, which tends to be more dehydrated. It's fragrance free, non greasy formula is easily absorbed and doesn't leave a shiny look or greasy residue.

Mangrove Mud Face Masque ($22) – This product aids the skin's surface cells to both eliminate toxins and excess water from the skin while allowing the active minerals to be absorbed and utilized by the cells under the skin. Benefits include cleaner, softer and younger looking skin. Excellent for blemishes and problem skin.

Now we get the shampoo, conditioner and gel. It's not just brand X shampoo, conditioner and gel for your man, It's the real deal.

helps protect against environmental pollution.

Conditioner ($16) – Use this product after shampooing your hair. Apply liberally to wet rinsed hair, massage, leave in for one minute.

Scalp & Hair Treatment ($18) – For acute scalp itchiness/flaky scalp or scalp psoriasis. Use it weekly to maintain a healthy scalp.

Hair Styling Gel ($13) – Is water soluble with the perfect amount of hold.

Pomade Hair Styling Wax ($13) – Great for slick looks, brings out curl in curly hair, and short croppy haircuts.

Styling Crème ($13) – Wonderful vanilla/chocolate aroma from natural vanilla beans. Water soluble so it washes out easily. It also nourishes the hair and scalp. It can be applied to wet or dry hair, short, medium to long and slick back looks.

Now when you are looking for that perfect gift for that perfect someone in your life, you might want to start with some of these wonderful products. After all, men love to pamper themselves too you know...

A Hairy Situation...

Hair: More Uneven The Better!

The trend of the last two years- a choppy, chunky cut and color to go along with it- is seemingly moving on to a different level. Funny thing, if the hair is cut symmetric and perfectly straight, or with straight levels and lines, the human eye doesn't take too much notice. However, if the cut or image is asymmetric, uneven, or oddly colored, the eye tends to linger and the image is noticed.

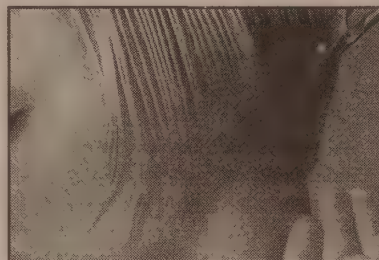

Hair is predicted to take on a 'spacey look' this summer and fall. Borrowed from styles of different decades, the trend promises to be quite different. Styles will be greatly influenced by clean angular lines, heavy bangs, layering, disconnection and varying lengths. Hair will be cut with precision and finished off with free hand work or detailing. 'Tilted Shape' will be created by texturizing and asymmetrically layering each side for a different, almost space-age look. Another way to look at it is that it will be a bold, sort of circular shape, with a broken outline to give it a shattered look and to create softness. Fringes that hang loose and free while framing the face with a strong, ultra soft or even commercial lines will be the look. Choppy and textured layers will be added to create movement.

Orange, red and gold will be encouraged to swing around the head for depth and style. Horizontal and diagonal sliced partings will incorporate color shading, shape and texture. Watching Sex and the City

Sunday nights, is a good example of what is coming up. Kim Cattral's hair is certainly off center. One side of hair is dual layered. A cut that stops right above her cheekbone and then drops down a few inches is certainly different than the usual swinging blonde's hair. The opposite side is cut totally differently.

Hair is also low-lighted now as frequently as it is high-lighted. The front may be a lighter shade than the center or back. To see 'frostings' or streaking of the 60's and 70's and even 80's and 90's seem so old. Hair is colored in chunks, not the precision teeny tiny strands of yesterday. Perhaps foil is added to give different dimensions. Another interesting technique I saw was by Louis Licardi. He teases the hair... remember teasing? And just coloring the tips, he adds color all around the head. The result? No tell tale root signs and just a profusion of color lightly added at the tips of the hair. Very natural looking, not deliberate. Touch ups can be delayed for a long time!

Hair is cut almost as if it were done by mistake. Before succumbing to this new look, take a peek around, pick up some styling books and study them. Consider the upkeep on the new cut- will it have to be cut constantly to keep it's shape? What if you like to wear your hair up? Can it be done? Getting off the beach, what can you do to control it? It's fun, but may be more trouble trying to keep it fresh looking than it's worth. Spacey or not. —Annette Gunnells

The Electronic Maid

When you drove out here this weekend, stuck in the mire of traffic on Route. 27, were you thinking about needing the air conditioning turned on, or how you wish you'd left the front lights on, or maybe you'd like the pool all nicely heated for your arrival? A new web site called ConnectedHearth.com allows its customers to control their homes from the web, running everything from security systems to making a pot of coffee. With this new system, customers can flip open their palm pilots and, with a few quick motions, prepare their home for arrival.

The web site was launched July 1 and is said to be in high demand. Cameras and control systems are installed throughout the home so that customers can check on their homes online and control any number of appliances throughout the house, depending on their specifications. Even the Jacuzzi and espresso machine can be used via the web site, so that when you get home, you have a cup of espresso and a bubbly tub awaiting you. It is the ultimate luxury, akin to having your very own maid.

The service will notify customers via email of any problems such as "unauthorized entry, fire, water leaks, and low temperature," which would be especially valuable through the winter months when beach houses are empty but need monitoring and occasional tending. And it offers peace of mind to those who absentmindedly leave the coffee pot or the stove burner on. With ConnectedHearth, you can log on and check to see that everything is in order and turn the appliances off and on. You no longer have to wonder, as you head back to the city on Sunday, whether or not you left the upstairs lights on, or if you remembered to set the alarm.

The web site is said to be very secure, using the same encryption that banks use for their online services. The equipment installed in the home is a "complete home automation system controlled in-home via wall-mounted touchscreen consoles." It all sounds a bit Jetson's, very new age, but the convenience and peace of mind the system offers is appealing, and for those with multiple homes, it is surely a time-saver.

—Rachel May

ConnectedHearth is found on the web at www.connectedhearth.com, or at 1-800-575-3479.

A Great Sticky Situation

Vitaballs: Gum That's Good For You

First there were the Flinestones, now there are Vitaballs. The morning ritual will never be the same.

Tommy and Jenny crawl out of bed and pretend to have washed their faces. Mom, or maybe Dad, is downstairs making the peanut butter and jelly sandwiches for lunch and preparing the bowls of cereal for breakfast. Tommy and Jenny finally make it downstairs. Tommy has his shirt on backwards and it's not a fashion statement; Jenny's hair needs to be brushed. The bus is coming in five minutes, rush through breakfast and get them out the door. But wait, don't forget your vitamins. Mom/Dad hands Tommy and Jenny each a gum-ball and out the door they go.

In the what-will-they-think-of-next department, a new innovation has replaced the typical morning vitamin for kids. They're called Vitaballs and they are gumballs that have 100% RDA (Recommended Daily Allowance) of all the vitamins your kids need. Vitamins A through E, and all the folic acid a kid could ever want. This will have kids begging for their vitamins.

Available in four flavors — grape, cherry, watermelon and bubble gum (of course) — the gumballs are designed to deliver their vitamin content within five to ten minutes of chewing. This leap in vitamin technology was the result of a great deal of dissatisfaction over kids' vitamins, especially when it came to taste. Most kids vitamins taste like colored chalk, but Vitaballs taste like gum and they're fun. And better still, even adults can enjoy Vitaballs. Just one gumball a day will deliver eleven essential vitamins.

Perhaps you're worried that the kids will like them just a little too much and raid the cabinet? Well, there really isn't too much to worry about, it's impossible to overdose on vitamins. The vitamins contained in Vitaballs cannot reach toxic levels in the body and even if you accidentally swallow the gum it will be digested.

But what about bubbles you ask? Yes, you can blow bubbles with Vitaballs. Will it stick in my hair? Yes, just like regular gum, it will stick in your hair, so be careful Jenny.

It sounds so good, where can I get some. Vitaballs should be in many of the stores where you buy vitamins today or check them out on the web at: www.vitaball.com.

Now only if they could make proctology exams as much fun.

Hampton Designer Showhouse

When it comes to interior design, the Hampton Designer Showhouse offers the best of all worlds.

There are hot young designers who decorate in leopard prints and gems. There are classic designers whose lush fabrics proclaim tradition and comfort. There are modernist designers whose sleek lines and contemporary pieces look as though they belong in the MOMA or a Bauhaus exhibit. The Showhouse expresses the language of design in an array of options.

This is the third installment of a Hampton's showhouse for some of the country's foremost designers and decorative artists, and this year it finds itself in a lavish 1920s Southampton mansion on five acres of landscaped lawns and gardens. Over 20 interior design groups and decorating artists have worked steadily for the past several weeks refurnishing, retouching, and in some cases remodeling the many rooms of this gracious, charming home. Here is just a sampling of what they have created. For a more

Michael Love of Interior Options marries quality, innovation and function for the design of the kitchen. She uses bold reds against the checkerboard black and white patterned floors. The exciting geometric patterns create both an atmosphere of whimsy and distinctive design motifs.

Connie Beale and Brian del Toro have collaborated on the Butler's Pantry for Connie Beale, Inc. An effective combination of khaki and lavender graces the cabinetry. Meticulous craft merges with sophistication and color for an update on this traditional space. The designers succeed in maintaining the traditional integrity of the room.

Moving up the staircase to the second floor, Patricia and Alexis La Porte from La Porte Interior Solutions lend color, form and drama to their spectacular mural, called the "Landing of Serenity."

The space evokes a sense of peace and serenity with their use of misty gold on the winding staircase.

Laura Hunt, a Texas Native, recreates a fantasy emanating with natural elements of the sea out of the second floor sitting room. Above the fireplace she has placed an aquarium in a wall and filled it with pearls. The room itself is expressed in shades of sand and sea foam blue, with accents of red coral.

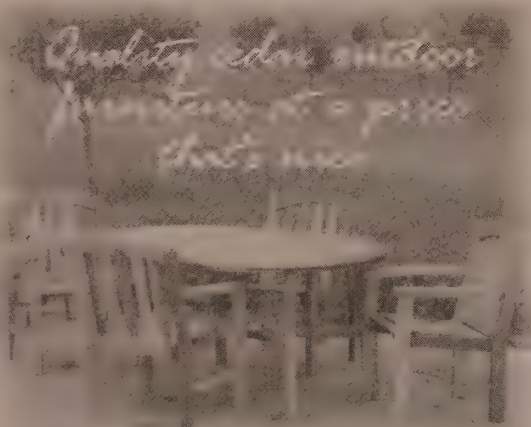

James Rixner, a familiar name at the Kips Bay Showhouse, has orchestrated what he calls a "symphony of greens" in the sitting room overlooking the formal gardens. Mr. Rixner chose Jack Lenor Larsen fabrics to complement the pistachio onyx fireplace, which rises floor to ceiling. The walls are covered in a new grasscloth/silk.

About Gardening....with Annette

Container Gardening

There are still plenty of perennials cropping up all over garden beds, but as they begin to get scraggly and spent, it's time to start thinking about replacements. That's the problem—there is a void where there was once a profusion of color. Not to worry, with container gardening, you can keep the look going for many weeks to come. Not only that, container gardening makes it possible to grow a garden in situations where there is no yard or soil available. The containers themselves can be as ornate or plain as you like. Clay or plastic, wood or metal, ceramic or wire frames with sphagnum moss... the list goes on and on. All that is essential is that the container be capable of holding soil as well as allowing excess water to drain away. Keep in mind that plants thrive more readily in larger amounts of soil, because the soil temperature and moisture level fluctuate less as soil volume increases. Unless you are extremely vigilant, plants are more likely to suffer frequent drying out and overheating when planted in small pots.

Annuals are particularly well-suited for use in container plantings. They quickly fill and overflow the planters. You can also plant them in masses of a single species, which can be very dramatic, or in a mix of different kinds. Portability is another plus in container gardening. The containers can be moved around at will, but keep in mind, moving a shade loving plant into hot sun can surely destroy it! Their watering demands are different in the shade as well.

Placement can be as versatile as you want, hanging them from a garden fence, a low hanging tree limb or a porch rail. Even a small apartment balcony or terrace can be turned into a colorful garden by filling it with annuals.

Care of container plantings takes little total time, but it does need daily attention. Soil should be checked every evening and when the weather is dry and windy, both morning and evening. Pay attention to watering before your plant becomes bone dry, and on the other side of the coin, don't drench them to death. Once you set up a routine and become in tune with your plants, you'll get to see what's best for each one's needs. Keep plants looking full and lush by deadheading them. Once every 10 to 14 days you need to fertilize. Miracle

Gro is about the best I have found to take care of all their nutritional needs.

Some annuals that do well in containers:

Vinca, Sweet Pea, Petunias, Pot Marigold, Morning Glory Vine, Coleus, Geranium, Impatiens, Lobelia, Pansy. There are plenty more... check your local gardens centers weekly for the best picks... daily if you are as addictive as I am!

Keep those hands dirty!

Grapes For Edible Landscaping

How about landscaping with grapevines and you can have a spacious arbor with cool shade in your yard the second season after planting. Or grapes could provide you with a hedge or screen shielding your yard from the street or some unwelcome view. Use grapevines to soften the look of a fence or keep the wall of a building cool.

To grow grapes you're going to have to build something to keep them off the ground. You'll also have to cut the grapes back regularly, not just to keep it from running wild but also to get a full crop of sweet fruit. Taken together the trellis and the pruning technique add up to what I call "The Training System."

Grapes produce fruit on one-year-old wood only. Without pruning, the fruitful wood gets farther and farther out from the trunk with each passing season. Another good reason to prune is that grapes tend to produce too much fruit, which stresses the plant. Bud development for the following year suffers, and the weakened vine is more vulnerable to winter injury. Proper pruning removes most of the previous season's growth and with it up to 90% of the fruit buds. That channels the plants energy into producing strong new growth and increases the sugar content of the remaining grapes.

One-year-old branches on grapes are called canes. The ones you leave to produce fruit are shortened to various lengths: long canes are eight to twelve buds each, short canes are four to seven buds each, or spurs are just two or three buds.

When pruning, save only the healthiest canes. Ideal cane thickness is about pencil size, with three to six inches between the buds. Spindly canes are weak and unproductive while overly thick, bull canes are too vegetative. Healthy canes are red-brown for American varieties, tan for hybrids, neither too light (which means they haven't received enough sun) nor blackened (indicating disease or winter damage).

The safest time to prune is late winter just as the buds begin to swell. That way you can assess the extent of winter damage. It doesn't hurt the vine to prune while the sap is flowing, even though the amount of bleeding may seem extreme.

There's romance in many of the popular uses of grapevines in the landscape: an arbor shading a patio, a bower over a bench, or leafy tunnel and there are practical advantages to trellises as well. Keeping the vines with the fruit buds high off the ground reduces the risk of frost damage, a big advantage with seedless varieties, which are usually more vulnerable to cold. If the structure is near the house or where people gather or pass frequently, bird damage will be reduced. Grapes often live seventy-five years or more, so your trellis will serve as a near-permanent landscape attraction. It's worth the trouble of careful planning and high-quality construction.

The curtain method of training is the system currently favored by most commercial growers. In the home landscape the curtain system is perfect if you want to make a dense-looking hedge about six feet tall or grow the greatest number of varieties in the least amount of space. Yields and sugar levels will be high and pruning, spraying and picking are easier.

The trellis is a single wire running six feet above the ground, supported by sturdy posts. The grapevine's trunk goes straight up to the wire, then two shoots extend horizontally along the wire in opposite directions to make cordons. Fruiting canes arise every eight to ten inches along the cordons, and shoots drape down on either side forming the curtain.

A pergola is a series of sturdy poles that carry rafters and support the vines. Pergolas have open sides so you can see through them, with the grape foliage overhead. They're usually built to shade patios and major walkways. The structure's openness allows breezes to pass through and creates an island of comfort in a hot summer landscape.

Grape yields can be as high as or higher than with the curtain system, but grapes may not be as sweet because the jumbled shoots will shade each other.

Depending on the size of the pergola, you may be able to plant more than one vine. Each vine should have at least an eight by eight foot square area to cover; ten feet by ten feet would be even better. Of course you could eventually train one vine to shade an immense area but no coverage would take several seasons. And why not get some flavor variety into the grape crop and stretch the harvest with early and late varieties?

—Crow Miller

The Art Of The Home

Two artists share their nature-inspired work starting this week at an exhibit at the Pritam & Eaves Gallery in East Hampton. From July 5 through August 5, Jod Lourie and Howard Werner are showing "Appetites: Tables and Gardens," and "Heroic Furniture, Vessels and Sculpture," respectively.

The two sculptors work in different mediums but both focus on elements of nature. Jod Lourie's pieces are bronze and glass and "refer to life in the garden—vegetables, flowers, insects, lizards, and frogs." Her "Squash Table" is made of four bronze squash whose gracefully curled, arching stems support a glass tabletop. The bodies of the squash are beautifully veiny and textured green and mottled brown. Her "Asparagus Stands with Frog Ball" are also bronze and combine the textures of the frog ball (what looks like a head of cabbage or lettuce with a frog perched on one side) with the long, curved lines of the two asparagus stands, which are 27 and 20 inches high.

Howard Werner's work is born of wood. He uses eucalyptus, palm, cottonwood, ash and elm. He cuts into the wood with a chainsaw and sculpts it into pieces such as the "Rustic Club Chair," a smooth-hewn piece of wood with the bark on the outside and a seat carved into the center. The alternating colors of the dark bark and light inner layer of wood, along with the smooth but still natural-looking shape make the bench a gorgeous piece. His "Eucalyptus Vessel" is a mounted bowl that stands at 56 inches high. It is a warm, amber color and the edges are left slightly rough, the shape of the bowl not quite symmetrical, revealing his influences of both primitive and modernist sculptors.

The artists' work is appropo for the beginning of summer as a celebration of nature. Pritam & Eaves will be holding a reception to celebrate the opening of the exhibit on July 5, from 4 to 6 pm. They are located at 27-29 Race Lane, East Hampton, (631) 324-7111.

Tool Time

Barbara K greets me at the door of her spacious Wainscott home and immediately I notice her blonde hair and perfectly applied makeup, how glamorous she is. "This," I think to myself, "is the queen of construction? The potential Martha Stewart for the Do-It-Yourself set— who's going to teach us all how to hang our own pictures and replace our own door knobs?" No sooner than I begin our conversation, however, do I realize that this thirtysomething New Rochelle native has not only built the house we are sitting in herself, but that she also has some serious plans to dominate the home repair market for women.

Barbara Kavovit (aka Barbara K) understands business. She has a degree in finance and worked as an assistance commodities trader before she decided to set out on her own. At the early age of 22, she entered the home improvement market by spending $60 on a few business cards and handing them out to women in front of a Gristedes in Westchester. "I realized that there was a fear factor involved in women and doing home repairs," she says. By offering to act as the "middlewomen" between her female clients and their contractors, she intended to eliminate that fear of unreliable, late or messy contractors. It worked. Soon, Barbara K was receiving calls from women requesting that she make sure their home repairs went smoothly. "The money exchanged hands with me," she explains, "and I made sure everything was neat and clean."

By 1990, Barbara K was targeting more than just home repairs. She entered a two-year contract with IBM for interior renovation. She became involved in developing a condominium complex in New Jersey. In 1995, she founded her own construction company, taking on projects that included renovation work for Carnegie Hall and the construction of townhouses for well-known models. By 2000, that company, Anchor Construction, was producing $80 million a year.

Clearly, Barbara K has already conquered the male-dominated world of construction. But now she has a new mission. Inspired by her desire to make more women comfortable with home repairs (and partially inspired by an episode of "Sex and the City," where a flu-stricken Samantha cannot find a guy to help her repair some curtains), she has created Barbara K Enterprises, a comprehensive lifestyle brand whose mission is to provide solutions for women through innovative home improvement products.

"It's for the Do-It-Yourself diva, so she can fix things in her home and save time and money," she explains. Barbara K believes that when a woman picks up a screwdriver and fixes something herself, her confidence is raised. She becomes empowered.

Barbara K has also done her research. With over 70% of all female home owners doing minor repair work themselves, and 37% of women saying they would rather spend an afternoon working on a home improvement project rather than shopping

The master bedroom and bathroom reflect Robert Stilin's desire to use the classics and adapt them to modern lifestyle. His color palette is soft, with fabrics of natural textures. The furniture, a mix of antique English, Swedish and French, also includes mid-century modern. Mr. Stilin lives in East Hampton with his eight-year-old son.

Another local resident, Eugenia Au Kim, brings a sense of Zen sensibility and her own Chinese heritage to her work for The Design Studio. She has turned the Showhouse's rustic potting shed into a sophisticated pavilion that is designed for quiet meditation. Bonsai plants are placed inside the space, along with a Buddha head sculpture, and a statue of a love goddess.

For his Showhouse debut, Scott Sanders chose red, white and yellow for the poolside terrace. Floating in the pool are two large, inflatable red lobsters, while crimson-accented wrought iron furniture gleams in the sun. He playfully places a lawn jockey, dressed in red jacket and white pants, at one corner of the pool.

These talented designers, along with others, contribute to the eclectic splendor that is this year's Hampton Designer Showhouse. Other famous names include: Darren Henault Interiors, de la Torre design studio, Eric Cohler, Inc., Ingrao, Inc., Jackson Siegel Aaron, Mark Hampton Inc., Marshall Watson Interiors, Noel Jeffrey Inc.,

Richard Keith Langham, Inc., Salisbury & Marcus, Scully & Scully, Sherrill Canet Interiors and Raymond Waites Design.

Presented by House & Garden, the Hampton Designer Showhouse opened on Saturday, June 28 with a Gala Preview and will continue until Sunday, July 27. Proceeds will benefit Southampton Hospital. This year's Showhouse is located at 107 Great Plains Road in the Village of Southampton. Showhouse hours will be as follows: Monday through Sunday, 11:00 AM to 5:00 PM. Children under six, infants, strollers and pets are not allowed in the Showhouse. Admissions is $25. For more information, please call 283-4248.

or cooking (Source: Home Improvement Research Institute), she realizes that women need both the skills and the tools to do home repairs.

That means there is a perfect audience for Barbara K's line of products. She has developed 11 separate toolkits for women, including her signature 30-piece kit. That one comes packaged in a sleek, neat blue case that is complete with its own set of instructions ("Empowerment through education," Barbara K explains.) Her lightweight tools have cushioned grips and are ergonomically designed to fit women's hands. "You've never seen a hammer like this one," she says holding the curved, thin-necked neck tool. Or a screwdriver for that matter—it has a place for your thumbnail (to avoid ruining your manicure). Even the pliers are springloaded for easy use.

And that's just the beginning. The Hang-it Kit comes with a tape measure and hooks. The Craft Kit comes with a cordless glue gun. There's a Precision Kit with tiny screwdrivers and pliers—to fix your kids' toys or your favorite reading glasses. There's a Dorm Survival Kit in the works—for the college co-ed who will take the project of hanging posters into her own hands. And coming just in time for Christmas shopping will be the Barbara K Roadside Safety Kit, featuring jumper cables, flares, a rain slicker, and guidebook, among other things.

As for Barbara K herself, she recently signed with a large talent agency. The Barbara K television show and book series are just around the corner. "I want people to automatically think of Barbara K when they think of how to get things done," she says.

It makes sense that a woman who has been so successful at working with the big tools can market smaller ones for other women. She wants to teach other women how to do what she has done. "It's not about a tool company," Barbara K assures me, "it's about a way of life."

Barbara K toolkits can be found in a dozen retailers including Bloomingdale's, Gracious Home, Linens-N-Things, Bed, Bath and Beyond, and JC Penny.

Silvia Lehrer's Cooking Column

James Beard, recognized as the father of American gastronomy in the 20th century, once said, "Eating out of doors has always been one of my great joys. All it takes is a state of mind and a place to settle." Chefs and Champagne 2003 celebrating the James Beard Centennial will settle on the sprawling grounds of Wolfer Estate Vineyards in Sagaponack on Saturday, July 12. I think he will be pleased. The James Beard Foundation and The Beard House, North America's only historical culinary center, located in the heart of Greenwich Village, is a place where Foundation members, the press and the general public can savor the creations of both established and emerging chefs from across the country.

One of our great chefs is Alfred Portale. He was named Best Chef in New York in 1993 and in 2002 his restaurant, Gotham Bar and Grill in Manhattan, received the James Beard Foundation Outstanding Restaurant Award, a top honor that recognizes dining establishments and serves as a national standard for quality and consistency within the industry. Indeed, Mr. Portale has influenced restaurants throughout the country in "his Gothamesque mode." A former jewelry designer, he applied his innate designer's instincts with his classic French training to the creation of dishes that redefined how accessible "serious" food could be. He quickly made a name for himself as an adventurous chef taking patrons on irresistible culinary journeys since 1984.

He is particularly delighted to be part of Chefs and Champagne for the quality of the event, its worthy causes and the Beard House's ability to raise food consciousness in the United States in a grass roots sort of way. And for that he is very grateful. Among the numerous chefs selected to offer their delicious specialties at this year's Chefs and Champagne are Larry Kolar of Maison, a new casual restaurant in the style of Brittany in New York City, and James Carpenter of Della Femina in East Hampton.

ALFRED PORTALE'S MONTAUK CHOWDER WITH WILD STRIPED BASS

Can prepare the soup one-day ahead and complete steps 4 and 5 before serving.

Makes 8 servings

For the clams

- 2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 2 cloves garlic, sprinkled with coarse salt, smashed to a paste
- 3 cups dry white wine
- 2 sprigs fresh thyme
- 3 dozen little neck clams, well scrubbed

For the chowder

- 1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
- 3 ounces slab bacon, diced
- 1 medium onion, diced
- 1 small head fennel, trimmed and diced
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 28-ounce can whole plum tomatoes with their juice
- 1 teaspoon chopped fresh thyme
- 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper, or to taste
- 1 1/2 cups diced Yellow Finn potatoes, cut into 1/2-inch dice
- 12 ounces skinless, wild striped bass fillets, cut into 1-inch pieces
- Coarse salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
- Chopped fresh flat-leaf parsley for garnish

1. In a large stockpot, heat the oil over medium-high heat. Add the onion and garlic, and saute for about 4 minutes, until onion is translucent. Add the wine and thyme and bring to a boil over high heat.

Cook about 8 minutes to reduce wine by one-third to cook off most of the alcohol. Add the clams; cover the pot and steam, stirring occasionally for 10-12 minutes, or until clams open.

2. Lift clams from pot with tongs and spread out to cool. Discard any unopened clams. Strain the cooking broth through a fine-mesh sieve or cheese-cloth-lined colander into a bowl; you should have about 2 1/2 cups broth. When clams are cool enough to handle remove meat and discard the shells. You should have about 9 ounces clams. If doing ahead, refrigerate and cover clams in a suitable container until ready to use.

3. In a large stockpot, heat the oil over medium heat and cook the bacon until it is lightly browned and the fat is rendered. Stir in the onion, celery and fennel, and saute to 5 minutes. Add the garlic and cook about 2 minutes longer. Add the tomatoes and their juice with reserved clam broth, thyme and cayenne. Bring to a boil over high heat. Reduce the heat, cover and simmer about 20 minutes. Refrigerate covered if doing ahead.

4. Meanwhile cook the potatoes in lightly salted boiling water about 8 minutes, until just tender. Drain and spread them on a plate to cool. Set aside.

5. Add the bass to the soup and poach gently for 6 to 8 minutes, until the fish is just cooked through and opaque. Just before serving add the reserved clam meat and the potatoes. Cook until just heated through. Season with salt and pepper and serve, garnished with parsley.

LARRY KOLAR'S SALMON BRIOCHE SANDWICH

- 1 pound skinless salmon fillet
- Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper
- 1/4 cup diced roasted red pepper
- 2 tablespoons chopped celery
- 1 tablespoons chopped shallot
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon chopped flat-leaf parsley
- 1 1/2 tablespoons each thyme and tarragon leaves
- 8 slices brioche
- Tossed greens for garnish (optional)

Preheat oven to 375 degrees

1. Season salmon with salt and pepper and bake about 12-15 minutes until just cooked. Set aside to cool.

2. Meanwhile combine remaining ingredients and stir to mix. Taste to adjust seasoning as necessary. Flake the salmon into small pieces, add the dressing and stir gently to mix.

3. Divide salmon mixture on 4 brioche halves and top with remaining halves. Serve with mixed greens lightly dressed with vinegar or lemon and olive oil.

JAMES CARPENTERS VINE RIPENED TOMATOES WITH ROBIOLA CHEESE, ASPARAGUS PESTO AND GRILLED BREAD

Serves 6-8

For the pesto

- 1 cup cooked asparagus
- 1/4 cup toasted pine nuts
- 1/2 cup fresh basil
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 cup olive oil

For the bread

- 6 slices crusty bread
- Oil
- Halved garlic clove

To serve:

- 1 pound Robiola cheese, sliced
- 1 bunch arugula, washed and spin-dried
- 6 ripe tomatoes, sliced
- Extra-virgin olive oil
- Balsamic vinegar to drizzle

1. Place the cooked asparagus in the food processor with the nuts, basil, cheese, salt and pepper and process to mix. Pulse the machine while gradually adding the oil until mixture comes together.

2. Lightly brush bread slices with oil. Grill the bread until lightly golden on each side. Transfer to a platter and rub with a cut clove of garlic.

3. Place a slice of cheese and an arugula leaf between slices of each tomato and arrange on a plate. Dollop pesto on one side of each tomato, drizzle with a bit of extra-virgin olive oil, and a spritz of balsamic vinegar. Add a slice of bread along side each tomato.

Dining In The Hamptons

When you walk into Pacific East the first thing you notice is the grandness of it. The restaurant is spacious, warm and exciting. A friendly hostess will seat you down at your table as you pass by the luxurious polished oak wood bar, which is alive with beautiful people enjoying fine conversation and fine drinks among a truly elegant setting.

The restaurant has style mixed with class, fun mixed with elegance, and luxury mixed with romance. The setting is extremely attractive with candlelight, soft music, wonderful art, and a sleek wait staff. I cannot tell you how much I enjoyed my dining experience at Pacific East in Amagansett.

Executive Chef Michael Castino is making culinary art. Inspired by Asian cuisine, he has created an original and delicious menu, including exotic and fine ingredients that are from all over the world and not easy to come by. Mr. Castino's genius in the kitchen and co-owner Aram Sabet's clear vision have created one of the finest restaurants in the Hampton's, one that has made its mark on the people who dine out here.

I have to say that much of the time when I go out to eat I gauge much of the experience by the conversation and the atmosphere of the place that I am at. Pacific East won me over in that department the second I sat down.

When it comes to food, generally I do not expect to be impressed, for me food has always been just food, no matter where I go. Pacific East, however, is a different story. The food is simply out of this world. It's as if a group of scientists got together and determined how to stimulate all of the pleasure senses on human lips and tongue— and then gave the formula to the chefs at Pacific East. The combinations let your taste buds dance.

As appetizers, I tried the fire and ice Hamachi sashimi with Vietnamese chili peppers, which is quite possibly the best sashimi dish available on the East End, and a fresh miso rubbed chicken salad with Japanese wonton noodles, sugar snaps and baby spinach. Excellent.

I also toured Pacific East's complete selection of sushi, including a group of specialty hand rolls that they have created. I tried the Pacific East Roll, a Japanese styled hand roll in the shape of a flower with lobster meat, caviar, and a spicy dipping sauce. Every dish was presented in an artistic fashion that would impress any date, friend or family member.

The entrée's at Pacific East are seafood dominated with a few signature meat and poultry dishes, including a Kobe steak, a filet mignon and a rack of lamb. Being a fish lover, however, I went for the tempura yellow fin tuna sashimi while my friend went for the cedar planked black cod that lay on top of a celery root parsnip puree complimented with a sweet sauce.

At Pacific East you will sit with your date, take a bite of your food and look up at each other in amazement, fully focused on the genius of the food.

The service was smart and sharp, the presentation of the food stunning and the taste of the food remarkable. Every time you sample a dish prepared at Pacific East your eyes roll in the back of your head, you breathe in with satisfaction and you enter a different place— a place reserved solely for people who get to eat food as good as the food at Pacific East. Pacific East makes food that is nutritious and fresh with all ingredients of the highest quality. The food bursts with intense and fantastic flavor.

Pacific East

As we sat and dined into the night, Pacific East made an interesting transition. We arrived around nine o'clock and finished our entrée's by ten o'clock. The experience can be described as elegant, quiet and delicious. We ordered dessert, a chocolate bomb that is a freshly prepared warm brownie with a scoop of fine vanilla ice cream. We also sampled a shockingly delicious sticky rice pudding that comes out in half of a coconut and a classic crème brule that delights the senses not only when you eat it but also when you crack the top of it. We took our time to enjoy every bite, but the easy atmosphere made time move quickly.

By eleven o'clock, Pacific East transformed. The music goes to a quicker beat and many of the people that were once eating in the restaurant are now at the bar enjoying cocktails. You can let loose for a while and have an excuse to stay inside the restaurant while still relishing in the setting.

Pacific East delivers the whole package. It has the looks and the food that make a night on the town as much fun as being a kid in a candy store. With the sensational food, the outstanding atmosphere, and a serving system that runs like a Ferrari engine, food lovers will find themselves in culinary heaven.

Side Dish By Aji Jones

The 4th is already here! If you're looking for a place to eat before the big fireworks show at Main Beach, you won't want to miss The Maidstone Arms (324-5494) annual Fireworks BBQ. Set to take place tomorrow beginning at 5 p.m., (don't worry you'll still have time to find parking) the Fireworks BBQ will take place Sunday in the event of rain.

Speaking of rain, the bad weather finally ended last week and the sun peeked out. Amazingly it stayed sunny for the entire week! With the summer weather here (God willing) it's time for our outdoor dining roundup. When you're in East Hampton you should definitely stop into 29 (formally The Grill) for lunch on the patio. Or try The Blue Parrot for some delicious Tex-Mex cuisine, picnic style. Babette's and Café off Main both have great breakfast menus, with tables on the Newtown Lane sidewalk. Looking for an outdoor spot to eat dinner? Go to East Hampton Point, Turtle Crossing or Ricardo's. If you're in Sag Harbor you don't want to skip Beacon's seaside porch, or go down the street and sit on the patio at Sen or New Paradise Cafe. Shelter Island more your cup of tea? Well you absolutely can't miss Sunset Beach - where else can you dine with the stars over your head and the sand under your feet? There are other beautiful outdoor dining spots on Shelter Island as well. Drop by Ram's Head Inn, The Chequit or Dave's Grill. Finally, we can't talk about great outdoor dining without talking about Montauk. The Lobster Roll and Clam Bar both offer quick and delicious seafood right off the highway. If you're more in the mood for a meal waterside, try Gosman's Dock or Harvest. So there you go foodies! These are of course just a few of the many restaurants offering outdoor dining in the Hamptons. But hopefully this will aid you while restaurant hunting during the summer season.

If you haven't already noticed, the former space occupied by Peconic Coast has been taken over by well-known Manhattan restaurant Ed Kleefeld. The new restaurant, known as Jean-Luc East (Jean-Luc is Kleefeld's nickname) is now open in East Hampton at 103 Montauk Highway. Executive Chefs Eric Le Daily and Julio Quisbert serve up specialties such as summer cerviche chopped salad, seared ahi tuna and vegetarian kebabs. A huge raw bar will also be available, along with specialty drinks at the bar, like lemon white wine and cinnamon red wine sangria. Call 324-1100 for details.

The Beacon is now offering their popular summer prix fixe all night Monday through Thursday for $26. Start with soup or salad and there is a special main course daily. Monday will be fish of the day, Tuesday is oven-roasted chicken, Wednesday will offer pasta of the day and Thursday moules frites will be served. The Beacon is now open seven days a week. They are also available for private functions. For further information, call The Beacon at 725-7088.

Don't be so shy! Come down to Mary Jane's for their sing-along piano bar every Friday and Saturday nights from 9 p.m. to 12 a.m. Paul Gene tickles the ivories playing favorites in the main dining room. For further information, contact Mary Jane's at 324-8008. And for God sake, please don't sing with your mouth full.

The Drivers Seat (283-6606) now serves brunch, lunch, and dinner seven days a week. The popular Southampton Village bar and restaurant offers intimate indoor and outdoor dining, or just stop in for a cocktail. The patio bar is especially popular on Saturday nights with live music by Walter Finley.

Yet another restaurant is opening up for the summer. The Salty Dog in Noyac is now under new management and opening to the public. Serving lobster, burgers, steaks and pasta, The Salty Dog over looks beautiful Noyac Bay. Call 725-0976 for info.

Babette's (329-5377) has announced that they are extending their hours. The popular celebrity hangout located in East Hampton will be open all week for breakfast and lunch, and will serve dinner Thursday through Sunday from 5:00 pm - 10:00 pm.

TOM VALENTI'S

FARM-STAND TOMATO BREAD SALAD WITH COUNTRY-GRILLED CHICKEN

Serves 4

MARINADE FOR CHICKEN:

1 1/2 cups of MacNut™ Oil	1/3 cup grated parmesan cheese
2/3 cup red wine vinegar	1 1/2 teaspoons of salt
1 clove of garlic, minced	1 teaspoon of fresh ground black pepper
1/2 teaspoon chopped fresh thyme	4 roaster chicken breasts, skin on with rib
1 teaspoon fresh chopped rosemary leaves

In a mixing bowl, take the marinade ingredients and stir them together well. Pour half the marinade over the chicken. Let marinate at least 1 1/2 hour turning once. While the chicken is marinating prepare the tomato bread salad.

3 juicy vine-ripened tomatoes cut into 1 inch pieces
3 thick slices of good quality sour dough bread cut into 1 inch cubes and toasted
1/2 red onion chopped into a fine dice.

Lightly season the tomato with salt and pepper. Take the tomato, bread and onion and mix in a bowl. Take the remaining marinade and pour over this mixture and season to taste. Allow to marinate. Grill the chicken over medium heat, turning occasionally for 25 to 30 minutes or until firm to touch or juices run clear. To serve, divide the tomato salad evenly among four plates and place the chicken on top.

Chefs & Champagne: Celebrating The James Beard Centennial

Reflecting back to the time I took classes with James Beard in his Greenwich Village brownstone, I can see his big, burly, courtly figure sitting high in his captains chair in the middle of a large working kitchen with actively participating students. Although his apparel combined plaids, stripes and prints, he had a great sense of style and taste. It was the mid-70's and James Beard was already an icon.

The James Beard Foundation, founded in 1985 by Julia Child and Peter Kump, after Mr. Beard's death, celebrates his centennial at the annual Chefs and Champagne 2003 on Saturday July 12th, to be held on the exquisite grounds of Wolfer Estate Vineyards in Sagaponack, NY. The guest of honor will be Chuck Williams, Beard's close friend and trailblazing founder of the Williams-Sonoma stores.

At this years event the lavish tasting party will offer culinary specialties from a select group of about 25 exciting chefs from New York City, the East End and beyond and features Champagne Charles Heidsieck. The participating chefs include, Alfred Portale, Gotham Bar and Grill, Rick Moonen, rm, Michael Lomonoca, Noche, James Carpenter, Della Femina, David Bouley, Bouley and Danube and a host of other celebrated chefs. It is indeed an honor to be selected for an event celebrating and remembering the man who was mentor, teacher, friend and all things gastronomic to legions of new young chefs.

The Beard House celebrates the country's culinary artists at dinners throughout the year, is a constant center of activity with lectures, workshops and classes, provides an extensive program of scholarships and education opportunities and works around the country to educate children about nutrition awareness and food appreciation. James Beard was the preeminent source for all things gastronomic. To carry on this legacy the library and its archives at the House are open to members, food writers and students. For information about or to attend the Chefs and Champagne event call (212) 627 1128.

Boy Meets Grill: A Sizzling Relationship

What better way to celebrate patriotically on the 4th of July than the All American Barbecue! Where to start? What to shop for? Gathering the components for a large event takes time and planning. Do you really want to take on the task of grilling for 30 or more guests? Perhaps a better and easier alternative is to join your friends and let someone else take over for you. My suggestion is just that... let a caterer come to your home and attend to all the details. Your only responsibility is to work on the guest list and hope it doesn't rain that day!

Firstly by definition, a Barbecue at home should serve as a backdrop for a relaxed, casual event. Whether by the pool, in the garden or on the terrace, these areas should all have ample space for easy dining outdoors, and sufficient space to grill safely. This is also a form of entertainment for you guests, and our chefs suaveness at the grill does get attention!. The process of food

HOMEGROWN WITH BRIAN HALWEIL

A Long Island Farmer in Union Square

On a rainy Wednesday morning in June, a young woman in a denim skirt, denim shirt, denim jacket and denim hat covering her long, firetruck red hair, stepped out of a stand at the Union Square Greenmarket in Manhattan and declared, "This rules my world." She wasn't referring to indigo, but the bag of a dozen organic baby bok choy she clutched in her hand.

"I go very out of my way for these," said Lara, a runway model and devout organic consumer who lives in Chinatown, but favors the greens, edamame, kimchi and other Asian specialties that the stand offers.

Without any prompting, Lara added, "I'm interested in supporting local farms and giving money to people living near me."

In this case, Lara was supporting Hydrogarden Farm in Yaphank, one of seven Long Island farmers and fishers that sell in the New York City Greenmarket network, according to Jessica Wurwarg, a Long Island native who manages the markets. (Aspiring or existing farmers take note. "We're always looking for new farmers, especially organic producers," Wurwarg said.)

In contrast to Long Island farmers who market their wares at roadside farmstands on the Montauk Highway, Route 25 in the North Fork or elsewhere, these growers often rise before 4am to commute into the Big Apple and participate in a symbiosis that makes both farmer and urban foodie very happy.

For proof, look no further than the mob of delighted customers in front of the "Fresh Fish" sign stenciled in blue, block letters at the stand of Blue Moon Fish of Mattituck. Sandwiched between the bohemian "Catgrass is Wheatgrass" stand and the bustle of University Place, Stephanie Villani took orders for fish and mollusks that are from the waters of Long Island.

"If it's crossed out, it's sold out," Villani explained, pointing to a dry-erase board with several items crossed out. "We usually sell out everything, but today's horribly slow."

The board listed more than a dozen different fish – from skate to fluke, and from blowfish to blackfish – as well as clams, mussels, oysters, bay and ocean scallops, fish roe and assorted home-pickled and home-smoked fish. They have tuna and swordfish in the summer, and sold Long Island lobster before the recent die-off in local populations.

"People have trouble with the idea of locally caught fish," Villani said. "People ask for salmon or shrimp or Chilean seabass, and I have to say 'Chilean seabass isn't from around here, but we have a great striped bass you should try.'"

Most customers express nothing but gratefulness. "People tell me it's really hard to find high-quality, fresh fish at reasonable prices in Manhattan," Villani said as she lifted a sea robbin from one of the three ice-filled display counters that define the stand.

Villani takes great pride in getting feedback from her customers and sharing it with her husband, Alex, who captains their 36-foot trawler out of Mattituck Inlet. "I like to hear that the fish tasted great," Villani said. "Most fishers put stuff in a box and never hear about it."

Of course, the Villani's don't just do it for the praise. "Billy Joel was really right when he said 'You can't make a living as a bayman anymore,'" Villani said. "You really can't." Most fishers sell their haul to distributors or canneries for a fraction of the final retail price.

At the Greenmarket, there's no middleman. Just the farmer or fisher and the customer. "That's why we're here," Villani said. "That's why everybody's here. Because you can make a living this way."

Dining In The Hamptons

To outward appearances, the first moments of dinner at Salt at the Star Room follow the well-established guidelines for fine dining. Enter, greeted by the hostess, tablecloths and place settings, waiters taking orders and delivering drinks, busboys clearing empty plates. You sit down, are presented with a wine list and that's where the usual order of things ends. You don't get a menu. Instead, you are briefly quizzed by your waiter about your likes and dislikes, preferences and allergies. Then the food starts arriving. No agonizing over selections, no indecision – you're in the hands of the chef.

And the architect of this novel approach to dining is Cynthia Sestito, who has eschewed the confines of a set menu and chosen instead to embrace creativity and the wealth of fresh local produce to shape an ever-changing selection of dishes for each evening.

Sestito has been in the Hamptons for more than fifteen years and she has been creating innovative menus from day one. She opened Webb City in Sag Harbor in 1986 and in doing so introduced one of the East Coast's first Thai-European fusion menus that had critics and diners alike, raving about her cuisine. From Webb City it was on to One Ocean Road in Bridgehampton, opening The Farmhouse in East Hampton, then The Independent in Bridgehampton. Sestito's Hamptons background has given her well-established connections to local purveyors and access to the best and the freshest that the Hamptons have to offer.

As we took our first sips of our drinks, the food began to arrive. The energized atmosphere that is

doors as the clock begins to march steadily toward late night is matched by the menu for the night. We started with a few delicate salads – typical of the first courses with which Sestito starts each meal – a candy salad with grilled melon was well-matched with an aged goat cheese salad with arugula in a vinaigrette dressing. As we finished the salads, our next course arrived – tomato with mozzarella – and we realized the other aspect of Sestito's approach to dining that makes a meal at Salt well worth the trip. You never know what's coming, so you are continually surprised by each course. For the food lover, it's exploration, adventure and a little indulgence.

Softshell crabs and conch fritters followed and were a pleasant segue into the weakfish, which was far and away the favorite of the evening. Tender and fantastically fresh, this dish confirmed any lingering suspicions about Sestito's approach to the menu-of-the-day style dining. And there's a logical component to the approach, as well. Why force the food to conform to the menu? Instead, let the freshest and the best form the menu.

A glance around the dining room produced a bit of envy, as dishes we didn't have opportunity to try were placed on other tables, but we were comforted by the fact that we received a few dishes that others eyed longingly.

As dessert arrived and the music was turned up a notch as the real nightlife began, we were presented with the dénouement, a plate of desserts that had a little bit of everything – fresh strawberries, chocolate and just enough ice cream to keep everyone happy.

Finishing our drinks, we surveyed the scene as the party began and reflected on what had been a unique dining experience. Walk in, sit down, and let Sestito be your guide.

Salt is open from 6 p.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday. The three course tasting is: $45 pp on Friday, Saturday $45 pp before 9 p.m. and $55 pp after 9 p.m. with entrance to the nightclub included. They accept Visa, Mastercard, American Express and Discover.

Grill

being methodically cooked on oversized grills, the robust aromas, and the final result in the flavor and presentation, add to the anticipation of a fantastic meal.

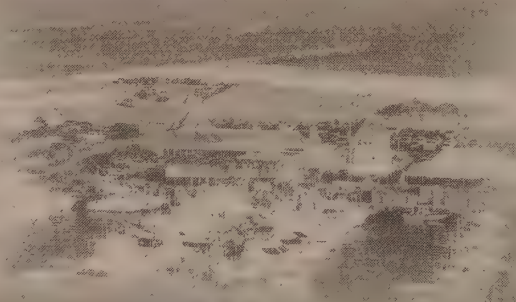

Which brings up the question what to serve? We offer different menus, all are sublime at this time of year. Firstly there is always the traditional mixed grill, tweaked slightly. Tuna or swordfish are fabulous grilled accented with a papaya cilantro salsa. Great starters such as roasted peppers with arugula quesadillas and jumbo shrimp marinated in the essence of lemon and dill complement the main event. For dessert, juicy watermelon that drips down your shirt (hope you dressed casually!), freshly baked peach cobbler dusted with powdered sugar and our legendary buttery cookies (allow extra tread mill time for that!)

Another option is our Down East Summer Clam bake Barbecue that is always delicious, fun and highlights the ultimate flavors of summer at its best. Served on the beach or by the bay, while enjoying a sunset is a wonderful dining experience. The detail of coordinating great rentals that add to the barbecue theme will only enhance the event and make it more special. This selection of clambake fare can also be arranged to be presented in picnic hampers, fully cooked and packed for two that can be brought to the beach for ease. Add beverages, and this is another great option to entertain your guests.

So this summer, go shopping only for a comfortable hammock and leave the art of implementing a successful barbecue party to the professionals!

Police Blotter

Happy Independence Day to all! Celebrate, rejoice and have fun; just keep in mind the reasons you're able to do so. The Spring and Summer so far have allowed only a few bright days, but those that want to have fun have started having it.

East Hampton Town Police arrested a pair of celebrants at their party zone this past week. It was Friday night when an officer arrived at a Franklin Drive, Montauk home in response to a noise complaint made by a neighbor. Two partiers there found themselves soon in handcuffs after refusing police requests and causing a comotion with responding officers.

An innocent party person wound up at East Hampton Police headquarters after a perpetrating partier pulled a knife on him at an Amagansett club. The victim told police that another man had tried to pull his pants down in the club. When he told him, "Don't ever touch me again," the partying pant-puller pulled a knife and waved it in his face. The victim ran outside to tell security and then drove directly to headquarters. The partial pant-pulling pervert is still trying to be located.

People, this weekend is all about the red, white and blue. So stay away from the green! A police officer was pulling over a vehicle for driving 50 miles per hour in a zone marked 30, when he saw the driver reach over into the passenger seat and "put something away." When the driver was questioned, he produced a bag of marijuana. He was arrested and charged with unlawful possession of marijuana.

Dan's Letters

THE OTHER SIDE SPEAKS

Dear Dan,

I read your June 27 article about Deep Hollow Ranch with great incredulity. To make a series of statements about what the Parks Department has or has not done without checking with this office is ludicrous. Your article was full of misinformation. If you were only looking for one side of the issue, that is fine but you should make that clear to your readers.

The Parks Department has not had a problem with the use of temporary bathrooms in the pasture area at Theodore Roosevelt County Park; actually we prefer them to a permanent building in a pristine area of the park. During the 2002 summer season, Mr. Leaver was advised by the Health Department that in order to continue to provide food service in the pasture area, a permanent bathroom facility would have to be provided. When that information got to my office the question was, even if I supported a bathroom building how could this be accomplished? As a result, I asked for an opinion from the County Attorney regarding the current license agreement with Deep Hollow Ltd. I was advised that food service was not part of the agreement and that if we wanted to continue we would have to issue a new Request for Proposals that included food service. Over the winter a series of letters, phone calls and meetings took place in order to come up with a solution. We advised Deep Hollow Ltd. that we would like to see the living history program continue and a way to do that would be to not provide food but that was not acceptable to Deep Hollow. The Parks Department has and continues to be supportive of the living history program. I attended one of the school programs as recently as the spring of 2002 (you indicated no one from this office had been there since 1999) and I am very familiar with the programs Deep Hollow Ltd. has offered.

We have also not discouraged buses from transporting people to the park, including Third House. We did restrict wagon access after an accident in 2001, when a horse became loose from the wagon causing it to topple and the horse then hit a van. Mr. Leaver was advised that the wagons must be confined to the trails as per the license agreement.

If the source of your misinformation is Deep Hollow Limited, that is very troubling. I hope they are not spreading mistruth and using children in order to further their own agenda.

Judith A. Gordon
Commissioner of Parks

In the spring of 2002 when Ms. Gordon says she visited Montauk, the Commissioner of Parks was Peter A. Scully, not Judith A. Gordon. "Coach Tours" (senior citizen busses) were banned in a letter from the Parks Department to Deep Hollow Ltd. mailed April 23, 2002. There have been six commissioners in ten years.

ANOTHER FAN

Dear Dan,

What can I say, I love Dan's Papers. I live in Connecticut and was raised here however my husband is from the North Fork. I have been "summering" on the island for over twenty years. This year for the first time we will most likely only be out on the island for one to two weeks this summer, we usually spend six to eight weeks. There are two things I will miss very much, the ocean and the hard copy of Dan's Paper's at the end of each week. Your articles are entertaining, informative, humorous and well written, each and every week, this one being no exception. I love the articles, the more hard news ones and the fanciful ones too. My fifteen-year-old jumps right to the police blotter and my fourteen-year old loves the monkeys! This week's Dan's Paper's is fun and full of good reading as usual. I hope to win your contest to receive a year of Dan's right to my door.

Reading Dan's makes those of us who love the East End but do not live there year round feel like we are almost there. Thank you and keep up your fine work.

Cathy DeCarle
Via email

NO LOVE FOR IRA

Dear Dan,

I have enjoyed your coverage of Ira Rennert and his new house. Since Ira is building such an ostentatious house, he must be interested in being prominent.

It may be that you could enhance Ira's prominence by writing more about him. Interesting background on him can be found at www.foe.org/WSSD/doerun.html

Go for it.

Prof. Tom O'Brien

CASINO CONFUSION

Dear Dan,

Will the truth about the casino ever be told? The local Indians are not a Federal tribe. Non-political experts say they will never be. The land is deeded and not a reservation land. The company they chose makes the Mafia seem honest. Yet these are not the real issues anyway. Besides the environmental horror of a commercial building there would be not an environmentally smart or Indian type thing to do would it? The major environmental groups are already prepared to fight any such disaster; the real story is different. There will never be a casino here. That is a clear.

What then is the real story? It is to make a deal. 'We will not do a Casino and you give us blank'.

Some say all people deserve part of the American dream. Agree. I never knew that the American dream could be a form of welfare. That is what collecting money for doing nothing really is.

How about this idea instead of welfare— help to finish school, money for college and beyond, job skills for older people, interest free loans for stores and other businesses.

I hope this does not upset anyone. I mean the American dream still entails some work ethic does it not. If an orphan can graduate med. school on loans

Vincent Lobbato

This is a complicated issue in my opinion.

GOOD OLD ADDICTION

Dear Dan,

I love Dan's Papers. We're occasional visitors to the Hamptons... and I've been reading Dan's Papers online for several years now. I'm so hooked... Every weekend, it's a cup of coffee, and I log on and start my weekend just right...

CASINO CONSTERNATION

Dear Dan,

Over the years I have enjoyed your articles and applauded your stances. I am appalled at your blasé casino stance.

Have you considered the traffic problem? How will all the wealthy attend the cocktail parties you endlessly photograph? The important people will not be pleased to sit in endless traffic.

Have you risen so far that you have forgotten the little people? Hampton Bays is the dumping grounds of the Hamptons and now its very nature is threatened. It is one of the few places left where ordinary people can enjoy a bit of paradise.

And from a strictly business outlook the casino might suffer when it takes many miserable gridlock hours to reach. We are NOT against the Shinnecocks achieving financial independence — but we want to save Hampton Bays and the whole East End from disaster. Finding another venue for the casino is incontrovertibly sensible.

With your "largest circulation" you have the perfect opportunity to make a difference, yet you are strangely silent WHY?

Betty Ward

Introducing The First Ever Hamptons Regional Cuisine

Chef Cynthia Sestito

Formerly Chef/Owner

Web City and
One Ocean Road

Richie Akiva and Scott Sartiano of NYC's Butter Restaurant and Mark Baker of NYC's Lotus, in partnership with Scott Gray and Scott Storbo of The Star Room, invite you to our new Restaurant Salt at The Star Room

Cynthia's kitchen is stocked with the best local ingredients, including breads from local bakeries and cheeses from North Fork cheese artisans created especially for Cynthia's dishes.

Each table receives a unique multi-course family-style meal based on their food preferences.

"This is the best way for our patrons to experience the unique and complex array of tastes and flavors that this region has to offer," says Cynthia

Depending on Montauk's morning catch and the best local organic produce of the day, your table is offered a unique multi-course meal including

- Hot and cold appetizers
- Entrees of fish, beef and poultry
- Platters of vegetables and delectable desserts

Adjustments made for food allergies and dietary restrictions

Your meal may include

- Baby Arugula salad with Wolffer Rose vinaigrette,
- A melange of seafood including Cynthia's signature Conch, Squid and Lobster fritters
  - Organic aged Sirloin
- Grilled Wild Black Fish wrapped in Wolffer Estate grape leaves with its flavor enhanced by Cynthia's signature "pale smoking" technique, using local herbs and indigenous woods to cement a flavor that is truly of the east end's earth.

Open For Dinner Thursday Through Sunday From 6PM (serving past Midnight on Fridays)

WHAT WILL YOUR HOME BE WEARING TO THE BARBECUE?

(We can have you dressed and ready before anyone else!)

Here's to a glorious summer, but the hotter and sunnier it is, the more you'll need the protection of Sunesta Awnings from East End Awnings. Our awnings are strong, water-repellant and available in over 200 beautiful colors and patterns. Sunesta awnings have no ugly confining braces or upright poles and they retract easily, either manually or with the push of a button with an optional motor.

They'll shield you from the brutal sun, provide soothing, cooling shade and beautify your home, all at the same time. (And maybe prevent a few wrinkles, too.) We hope you get exactly the weather you wish for this summer... just be careful!

Call now so we can order and install your awnings before things get even hotter!
